THE ARMY SERVICE SCHOOLS
FORT LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS

October 11th, 1919.

My dear Colonel Martin:-

Quite properly it has been decided, as you inform me, to write a history of the 110th Infantry. The recital of the deeds of that organization, and of the individuals who composed it, will not only do justice in part to the past but will be an inspiration to those who follow.

The added comforts of our advanced civilization tend to soften the men of today; to make them less ready to face hardships that might be avoided by following a devious path; to shrink from surroundings that our forefathers faced with equanimity. As soon as a people finds it too difficult to leave the primrose path on demand, that people is decadent and its end is near.

That we, as a people, have not reached the decadent stage was proven by the 110th Infantry in its struggle on the Ourcq and the Vesle; in the bloody fighting of the Argonne Forest and the constant raiding in the Woevre, lasting up to the minute preceding that on which the Armistice became effective.

May the history of the Regiment properly set forth the achievements of each and all.

Very sincerely,

Charles H. Muir,
Major General.
(Lately commanding 28th Division)

Preface

THIS book is written with a view of placing in the hands of the members of the 110th Infantry the official data of the Regiment.

When the idea of compiling the historical account of the Regiment was conceived, it was intended to use only the Abbreviated War Diary, the Individual Record Card of each officer and man and the commendatory orders received by the Division and the Regiment. Later, it was decided to put in brief narrative form the activities of the Regiment from its organization until it was mustered out of the service, and this was considered wise in view of the many inaccuracies in the histories of some of the organizations.

The several companies prepared official histories, but, in some cases, these narratives were written by officers and men who were assigned to the Regiment after its fighting had been completed and naturally some inaccuracies and contradictions crept in. The committee has endeavored to harmonize the contradictions and place in the hands of the reader an authentic account. This work is in part an exact reproduction of the official history of some company.

It is not the intention of this history to go into chronological detail, as this is dealt with in the War Diary and very little praise is bestowed upon individuals. Official orders and citations present this feature more accurately. It is evident to the reader familiar with actual history, that praise is given to some individuals and doubtless is deserved by many whose names do not appear, but every deed of gallantry and faithfulness did not come under the immediate observation of the committee and for this reason omissions will be apparent.

In addition to the story of the Regiment's activities it was decided to reproduce maps and aeroplane photographs of important fields of action on which the 110th struggled. We believe that the reading of the history with the aid of the War Diary, illustrations and maps, will give a comprehensive view of the work of the Regiment.

In the meetings of the committee, from time to time, the scope of the work expanded. In this expansion it was thought wise to include a short history of the 3rd and 10th Pennsylvania as the personnel of these honored Pennsylvania units formed the new 110th.

By provision of War Department Order No. 88, series 1917, and by direction of Division Order No. 22, dated October 11, 1917, the 10th Pennsylvania Infantry became one of the base regiments of the 28th Division and was officially designated the 110th Infantry (10th Pa.). These orders robbed the 3rd Pennsylvania of its identity, but the committee in preparing this history endeavored without discrimination to deal with the 110th as a new organization. By reason of geographical convenience all members of the committee, with the exception of one, were selected from former Tenth Pennsylvania men. The committee salutes and sends greetings to the men of the Old Third, and assures them of our undying appreciation of their comradeship and valor in the composite organization. Your noble history which tells the story of how faithfully you served the State and Nation for half a century, makes an inspiring record of American heroism, and had you been permitted to serve as a distinct unit in the World War all past traditions would have been preserved and fresh laurels would have been won.

It was the original intention to use only a few photographs. Later, it was thought wise to reproduce cuts of some individuals and, what is more important, all scenes which the men of the Regiment retain in sacred memory. The placing of these cuts and the narrative are not in every case consistent, and in this matter we were governed not by our wishes but by the advice of the publisher. The size of the cut depends entirely upon circumstances. Toward the close of the work, in order to save space, it was found necessary to decrease the size of all cuts. An effort was made to secure cuts of men, who by reason of association with the Regiment deserve a place in the history, but our efforts were not always successful.

In order to insure the greatest possible accuracy all matter for this work has been submitted to individuals, whose knowledge of the facts was the most trustworthy.

It was urged that a protest against the attitude of the Army to the National Guard should find a place in this volume. While no exhaustive comment on this controversy has been attempted we have exhibited the facts as they appeared to us and, with reference to Army officers assigned to the Regiment, we have lodged blame where it was deserved and bestowed praise where it was merited.

We believe that after the declaration of war the General Staff erred in its plans for the general reorganization of the Army, and no evidence has been presented that justified the destruction of National Guard units. Pennsylvania suffered the loss of five regiments of infantry and one of cavalry, and all were organizations of long and brilliant records.

We have refrained from criticism of the Army's attitude toward junior officers except in the almost universal tendency to belittle the National Guard service. Justice, however, demands that some reference be made to General Officers. We believe that the long service of the General Officers of the Pennsylvania National Guard warranted that their services should have been utilized and more courteous treatment accorded to them. After the term of our federal service has ended and we have had time for thought, our deliberate judgment is that the work of the Brigade Commanders of the National Guard showed ability equal to those in the Army. No Brigade Commander assigned to the 28th Division during its entire service served as brilliantly as General William G. Price, of the 53rd Artillery Brigade. General Richard Coulter, a Pennsylvania Guard product, served in many hard positions where he was expected to fail, but always brought order out of chaos and received the commendation of his superiors.

We are conscious of our inability to propose a finished military plan for the country, but with a patriotic desire to contribute a thought for those who are to prepare plans for future armies, we beg leave to submit the following as pertinent to the problem.

FIRST, the National Guard system more nearly approaches to the principles of a Democratic form of government than any other military plan thus far suggested.

SECOND, that the citizenship of this Country will not bear the burden of the support of a large standing army.

THIRD, that the time has not yet arrived when the danger of great wars has passed and we must have trained officers and men ready for any emergency. The World War has taught that international conflicts come unexpectedly. For a hundred years it had been predicted that the world had seen its last great war, but the late struggle came out of racial enmities and trade rivalries and as long as these and similar conditions prevail, the danger of conflict abides.

FOURTH, the Citizen soldiery and the Regular Army must be completely and harmoniously amalgamated. The Army should be localized in order that state pride and tradition may contribute its inestimable benefits to the morale of each unit. All National Guard and Army units must be combined into divisions, corps and armies with available auxiliary troops, that mobilization may be quickly effected. We cannot expect, as in 1917, to have great powers holding the enemy until we are ready. The preparation of officers, some training of men and the organization of our resources are immediate necessities.

FIFTH, we believe that the law or regulations governing the National Guard should require a standard of physical examination which would be acceptable to the government without a reexamination. This would add greatly to the strength of the National Guard, as it would eliminate an unreasonable amount of paper-work, which always creates confusion at the time of the muster into the Federal Service. The physical standards ought to be simple and practical.

SIXTH, the peace plan of army organization should not be radically changed at the outbreak of war. These plans should be carefully considered by our professional soldiers and only those measures should be adopted which have stood the test of deliberate consideration and experiment. The cost, confusion and delays of a complete abandonment of any plan during the mobilization period, is apparent to any citizen. The greatest criticisms offered by National Guardsmen were directed against the wholesale change in the table of organization. These were thrust upon officers and men in a moment without previous warning and even our professional soldiers were unfamiliar with their scope and use.

All of these matters should be taken up in a dispassionate way and a fair analysis made so that the divergent opinions and ceaseless controversies, which for several years have produced an ever widening alienation between the citizen soldiery and the Army, may be entirely eliminated. The Prussianized methods of some Army officers and the selfish policies of some National Guardsmen are both intolerable and should have no place in our military establishment.

The reader outside of this organization, realizes that this book deals with matters in which personal pride plays an important part. We make no apology for this human element in the preparation of this work. Faults there were and mistakes were made that would not reappear if the same action with the same elements was repeated. The war was fought on such a colossal scale and with such new death-dealing weapons that all soldiers were amateurs. The official citation and commendatory orders of higher officers serve to show what others thought of us, while the narratives of our own officers show what we thought of ourselves and the reader must consider both phases in forming his judgment. To make a claim of courage is superfluous in view of the unprecedented number of casualties suffered. A reference to the official records shows that every original field officer and every company commander, except one, were casualties. A further study of these records shows that one hundred and twelve percent of the original command belongs to the casualty class. This means many were wounded and recovered and rejoined the Regiment to receive a second and in some cases a third wound. Men who suffer after this fashion are not overawed by their foes and deserve the name of "iron men".

In praising the work of the Regiment, justice requires that mention be made of General Orders No. 143, a complete copy of which is given in this volume under the heading "Commendatory Orders". It was the first order issued by G. H. Q. commending the troops for their conduct in assisting to stop the Fifth German Offensive. The ringing words of General Pershing are quoted:

"You came to the battlefield at the crucial hour of the Allied cause. For almost four years the most formidable army the world had as yet seen had pressed its invasion of France, and stood threatening the capital. At no time had that army been more powerful or menacing than when, on July 15th, it struck again to destroy in one great battle the brave men opposed to it and to enforce its brutal will upon the world and civilization.

"Three days later, in conjunction with our Allies, you counter-attacked. The Allied Armies gained a brilliant victory that marks the turning point of the War. You did more than give our brave Allies the support to which as a nation our faith was pledged. You proved that our altruism, our pacific spirit, our sense of justice have not blunted our virility or courage. You have shown that American initiative and energy are as fit for the test of war as for the pursuits of peace. You have justly won the unstinted praise of our Allies and the eternal gratitude of our countrymen."

From this time the Division was known as a "shock" Division. Similar orders of a commendatory character were received until the very close of the war. General Pershing, in testifying before the Senate Committee advocated the retention of Divisions which had become famous in France and spoke of the fine work of National Guard organizations. He illustrated his point by referring in name to the 28th Division.

With practically no training after arrival in France, the Division was thrown into the breach and from the time it entered the line July 4, 1918, until the signing of the Armistice, November 11, 1918, we were fighting, maneuvering or moving to a new sector. The Division has to its credit a small number of kilometers advanced, but its greatest fighting was done in breaking the line of the enemy, after which a fresh division would take up the pursuit. For example, we fought for three days on the Oureq River and completely smashed the Prussian Regiments opposing us. Whereup the Division making the relief pursued the enemy fifteen kilometers to the Vesle River with practically no opposition. Again the Division crossed the Vesle, attained the heights beyond and was taken out of the line to get ready for the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. For fourteen days the Division fought in the Argonne under the most difficult circumstances. The enemy held the high ground which gave him a wonderfully strategic point from which to observe all movements. Several enemy Divisions were thrown into the line to oppose the 28th, but we stubbornly continued our advance and when we were relieved it was discovered that the enemy had completely evacuated the Argonne Forest.

The following chronological arrangement of the movements of the 110th tell the story of its efforts:

Second Line Trenches .....	July 4-14.
Champaign-Marne Offensive, B and C Companies on the front line and almost completely annihilated .....	July 15-17.
Aisne-Marne Offensive .....	July 18 Aug. 6.
Fismes Sector .....	Aug. 7-17.
Oise-Aisne Offensive .....	Aug. 18 Sept. 9.
Moving and reorganizing .....	Sept. 10-19.
Neuvilly Sector .....	Sept. 20-25.
Meuse-Argonne Offensive .....	Sept. 26 Oct. 9.
Thiaucourt Sector .....	Oct. 20 Nov. 11.

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Palmer, official observer with General Pershing, the famous correspondent, paid this tribute to the 28th Division that: "it was the only Division in the Allied Army which could reorganize in the midst of battle and go on fighting."

According to Colonel Palmer, the four things which earned the 28th Division the title of the "Iron Division" were:

"Its habit of fighting on and sticking, no matter what the odds against it.

"The fact that it was the only Division in any of the Allied Armies which was able to reorganize in the midst of battle and go on fighting.

"Capturing and operating a German railroad, keeping another transportation trouble from Headquarters.

"Its tanks and men running over a German counter-attack and smashing it before it was fairly launched."

We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to many who have assisted in procuring data for the work and have contributed these pages. We make acknowledgement to Colonel Kemp, Colonel Barnett, Colonel Hagerling, Colonel Hendler, of the Army and Navy Journal, and valuable service rendered by George Hutchinson in the preparation of maps, and Mr. Joseph Levy; also to C. L. Barnhouse, who has permitted us to produce "Khaki Bill" familiarly known as "No. 9", which, in years to come, will be even more affectionately remembered by the boys of the 110th. Also to Dr. Taggart, of the University of Pennsylvania, who has furnished for us pictures of the great parade in Philadelphia.

We are particularly indebted to Adjutant General Frank D Beary and Hon. Thomas S. Crago in assisting in procuring records.

In presenting this volume to the surviving officers and men of the 110th Infantry and their friends, we again wish to state that it has been prepared for the purpose of preserving in permanent form the official records and data of the organization and individuals that composed it. Those who made the supreme sacrifice are held in blessed memory by comrades who remain. No monument, however costly, can compare with the gratitude we cherish for their association in meeting and conquering the onslaughts of our bitter foe. We who live to carry forward the burdens which they shared with us pledge that by word and example we shall endeavor to promote a spirit of true Americanism, the thing for which they made the supreme sacrifice.

Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry

ORGANIZATION

The Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry was organized in the summer of 1873, and was mustered into the National Guard of Pennsylvania in December of the same year. Colonel John A. Black of Greensburg, Pennsylvania, was the first Commander of the Regiment and held this office until November 1878, when he resigned and was succeeded by Colonel Alexander L. Hawkins. Colonel Hawkins was commissioned Colonel on February 27, 1879, and held the rank of Colonel and the command of the Tenth until May 11, 1898, when he was mustered into the service of the United States with the same rank and retained his old command.

Colonel Hawkins' first service in the National Guard of Pennsylvania was with Company H located at Washington, Pennsylvania. He was in command of this Company when elevated to the command of his regiment. Colonel Hawkins also served in the Union Army, enlisting as a private in Company K, 15th Pennsylvania Cavalry while a student at Waynesburg College, and was mustered out of service as a Captain. He was in command of the Tenth Regiment dursome time, but the hope was in the heart of every man that he would live to reach the country in the service of which he finally yielded up his life. Loved and respected by those under him, on account of his devotion to the welfare and comfort of his regiment, this sad event cast a gloom over the entire organization. On the afternoon of July 19, the remains of this late commander and friend were viewed for the last time by all the members of the regiment. From the time of his death until the "Senator" slowly steamed into the bay at San Francisco, on August 1, the ship's flag was carried at half staff, and this was the mute signal that conveyed the news of the sorrow the Tenth regiment brought home with it. Services were held in the Masonic Temple in San Francisco on August 5, the entire regiment being present and remaining with the escort procession until reaching the ferry, from which place to Oakland the remains were accompanied by officers of the regiment and Company H, the organization from the Colonel's home town. In charge of Chaplain Hunter the body was taken to Washington, Pennsylvania, for interment.

He was the senior regimental Commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War. He was brave in battle, and always thoughtful of the interest of his men, and they not only considered him their commander, but also their counselor, leader and friend. For twenty years he devoted his time and energy to the construction of the Tenth Regiment. Its history is his monument.

The Tenth Regiment Infantry, National Guard, was originally formed under special orders No. 66, dated November 28, 1873. Section XI of which reads as follows:

"The following named companies of the Seventeenth division, National Guard of Pennsylvania, are hereby formed into a regiment to be known as the Tenth Regiment Infantry, and will be known and lettered as follows:

"Light Guards" as Company A, "Mt. Pleasant Rifles" as Company B; "Westmoreland Guards" as Company C; "Livermore Rangers" as Company D; "Washington Blues" as Company E; "Keystone Guards", Company F; "Coulter Guards", Company G; "Washington Guards", Company H; "Gallagher Grays", Company I."

Colonel Black ranked from December 19, 1873. Major D. D. Lloyd was the first Major, and ranked from the same date. The following staff officers served under Colonel Black; Adjutant H. W. Overholt of Mt. Pleasant; Quartermaster Cyrus Thomas of Greensburg; Commissary G. W. G. Waddell of Waynesburg; Paymaster T. D. Cunningham; Surgeon C. C. Reichard.

On January 15, 1874, upon petition of citizens of Waynesburg, previously favorably considered, the Waynesburg Blues, Company K, of Waynesburg, was mustered into the National Guard service as a part of the Regiment with John M. Kent as Captain.

Originally Company A was located at Monongahela City, Company B at Mt. Pleasant, Company C at Greensburg, Company D at Livermore, Company E at North Washington, Company F at Orbisonia, Company G at McLaughlinsville, Company H at Washington, and Company I at Latrobe.

In 1874 the Tenth Regiment was detached from the Seventeenth division and assigned to the Eighth Division, covering the counties of Westmoreland, Washington, Greene, Fayette and Somerset.

In 1878 the National Guard was formed into a division of five brigades and the Tenth Regiment was assigned to the Fourth Brigade. During 1877 Companies B and G were disbanded, reducing the regiment to a seven-company formation. In 1881 the Guard was made into a division of three brigades and the Tenth became a part of the Second Brigade.

The Division encamped at Mt. Pleasant during 1874 and was inspected October 1st. The Eighth Division was inspected at Latrobe, during a four day encampment, September 8, 1875. The Guard was mobilized at Camp Anthony Wayne, Philadelphia, in August 1876, and the Tenth reported 476 officers and men.

The Regiment was present at and participated in the State encampments of 1874-75 and 1876, and in 1877 was an important factor in the settlement of the Pittsburgh Railroad strike in July of that year, being on duty for over a month. In 1878 an entire reorganization of the State's Guard was made and a legislative enactment provided for the equipment of the troops, the renting or building of armories, the transportation to and the pay and maintenance of the troops at annual encampments of instruction.

In 1881, Companies B, D and F, from Indiana County, were transferred to the 5th Regiment, and Companies B, D and E of the 15th from Beaver County were transferred to the Tenth. In 1883 the regiment consisted of the following companies; Company A at Monongahela City; Company B at New Brighton; Company C at Uniontown; Company D at Freedom; Company E at West Bridgewater; Company H at Washington; Company I at Greensburg; Company K at Waynesburg. Company A was disbanded during 1883, and another company from Monongahela City installed in 1884. Company E, West Bridgewater, Beaver County, was disbanded during the winter of 1886-87 and in February 1888 a company was organized with the same letter (E) at Mt. Pleasant, Westmoreland County. In 1881, Company C of Connellsville was disbanded and a company with the same letter (C) was organized at Uniontown, Fayette County. In 1891, Company D was disbanded and a company having the same letter (D) was organized at Connellsville, Fayette County. The Regiment as thus organized continued to May 11, 1898, and was then mustered into the U. S. Service. The Regiment in its entirety did service for three weeks, and several companies as long as fifty-five days during the great labor strike in the coke regions of Westmoreland County in April 1891. The Regiment was again for a period of over one month engaged in active service during the now celebrated Homestead riots in July 1892.

SERVICE IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

At the beginning of the Spanish-American War the Regiment was located as follows: Headquarters at Washington, Pennsylvania; Company A at Monongahela City; Company B at New Brighton; Company C at Uniontown; Company D at Connellsville; Company E at Mt. Pleasant; Company H at Washington; Company I at Greensburg; and Company K at Waynesburg. In compliance with orders received by the Governor from the Secretary of War, the Regiment on April 27, 1898, concentrated at Pittsburgh, and Greensburg and traveled to Mt. Gretna, arriving on the morning of April 28th. Each company had a peace strength of sixty men. It was determined to raise the number of men to seventy-five for each company. These men were secured by recruiting from the various company towns. The recruits arrived at Mt. Gretna May 9, 1898. The whole Regiment was mustered into the United States service May 11-12, 1898.

On May 17, 1898, a telegram from the Adjutant General at Washington, D. C., directed the movement of the Tenth to camp at Chickamauga Park, Georgia, where it would be a part of the army to invade Cuba. While the men were preparing to move, a second telegram was received changing the destination of the Regiment to San Francisco to become a part of General Merritt's command, which was to operate in the Philippines. On the evening of May 18, at nine o'clock, the Regiment left Mt. Gretna for its eventful trip across the continent. At Harrisburg, Greensburg, Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania towns the troop trains were greeted by enormous crowds of patriotic and admiring friends. These wonderful greetings continued throughout the entire trip, and when San Francisco was reached, the people of California seemed to make a special effort to welcome the men from the Keystone State. The Regiment while in camp in the Richmond District of Camp Merritt, devoted its time to drilling and training.

SAIL FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

On the afternoon of June 14, the Regiment went aboard the S. S. "Zealandia" and the next day sailed out of the Golden Gate on its way to Manila. The convoy was composed of four transports and carried the First Colorado Infantry, one battalion of the Twenty-third U. S. Infantry, one battalion of the Eighteenth U. S. Infantry, Batteries A and B, Utah Light Artillery, First Nebraska Infantry, a detachment of U. S. Engineers and the Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry. The expedition was under the command of Brigadier General Francis V. Greene. General Greene called upon the Regiment in 1918, while it was completing its training at Camp Hancock. He had not forgotten his old organization and was greatly elated when the Regiment was turned out in his honor. He was amazed at the size of the organization which was more than six times its strength when it was part of his brigade.

The ships carried about thirty-five hundred men. They docked at Honolulu, the largest City of the Hawaiian Islands, which had the day before been annexed to the United States, which news was carried to Honolulu by the next expedition about a week later. The people gave the troops a rousing welcome and all were taken to the Royal Gardens, where they were waited upon by fair women and entertained by the Royal Hawaiian Band and seated at tables laden with the choicest provisions of the great tropical country. Everything was done to make the day most memorable.

During the afternoon the Regiment engaged the First Nebraska Infantry in a game of base ball in which the Tenth was victor by the significant score of "16 to 1". This was the beginning of the famous Tenth Regiment ball team which won the cup in the league formed from military organizations in the Philippines. A. Y. Crouse of Company K and J. Edgar Boyle of Company B, who later distinguished themselves with this Regiment in the World War, were the pitcher and catcher respectively of this team. A ball game always called for a half holiday and officers and men alike attended and rooted for the success of the team. The Colonel was one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the game. The team was made up of some of the best known college and semi-professional athletes of South Western Pennsylvania.

On June 26, the Regiment resumed its journey toward the Philippines and on Sunday morning, July 17, to the sound of Admiral Dewey's guns the "Zealandia" steamed into Manila Bay. On July 21, the Pennsylvanians waded ashore and went into camp near the town of Paranaque which is about six miles from Malate, a suburb of the city of Manila. The camp was known as Camp Dewey; the men slept under "pup" tents. In spite of the protest of the Regimental Commander neither officers nor men were permitted to take into camp with them the property necessary for their protection in the rainy season, notwithstanding the fact that the government had provided good serviceable canvas which had been turned over by the State of Pennsylvania. Three weeks of experience in this camp established the wisdom of the protest as the shelter tents were totally inadequate for the preservation of the health of the men and the protection of government and private property.

COLONEL HAWKIN'S OFFICIAL REPORT

The following is taken from Colonel Hawkins' Official Report to the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania.

"The troops immediately established outposts and pickets and guarded the main lines of travel for their own protection. The entrenched lines of the insurgents were several in number, the most northern of which was probably twelve hundred yards south of the Spanish fort at Malate. Soon after the Tenth's arrival a new entrenched line was laid out by orders of General Greene and the building of the same begun. This line was about two hundred yards nearer Malate than any part of the partially entrenched line started or built by the Insurgents. The left of this line rested on the beach at the bay and extended in an easterly direction. It was well built, with four openings for artillery, and by the morning of July 31 was in such a state of completeness as to furnish excellent protection against the fire of both artillery and infantry. The main road from Cavite to Manila was immediately east of the regimental encampment, being on the edge of the dry land, and was a well built macadamized road. The Tenth's entrenched line extended east just to this road, in extent between two hundred and fifty and three hundred yards. Immediately in front of this entrenched line the ground was open, with but little cover, and in plain view of the advance line of the enemy, which was probably four hundred to six hundred yards in front of the line of American soldiers. The several commands in regular order were detailed for outpost duty and completed the entrenched line referred to.

"On the morning of July 31, it fell to the lot of the Tenth Pennsylvania to be detailed for outpost duty for the next twenty-four hours. The entire command was at or near this advance line, excepting Company B, which was posted on guard on a road near the village of Pasai, about two miles to the right rear of the line occupied by the rest of the regiment. Major H. C. Cuthbertson, in command during the day, placed the second battalion, composed of Companies A, C, H, and I, Major Everhart Bierer commanding, and the Utah Light Artillery, in the entrenchment, and Companies E and D, of the first battalion, in reserve about two hundred yards in the rear of the center of the advance line. Company K's position was about the same distance in the rear of the right of the line east of the Manila road, and it furnished out posts and pickets from a point seventy-five yards east of this position and in a curved line to the north and west.

"During the day there was no movement or firing of any account, and most of the time the men were busy strengthening their earthworks. That night about 11 o'clock the Spanish forces opened a heavy fire of shell from four pieces of artillery at Fort Malate which continued for half an hour, the Tenth Pennsylvania being the first American troops to be fired upon in the Philippines. The attack caused no material damage to the Regiment's works nor casualties to its members. The enemy then advanced a heavy line of infantry, firing by squads, until within about four hundred yards of our line, when halting, he formed a line and delivered many volleys; this lasting about three hours. When this volley firing had continued nearly half an hour, the enemy evidently relieved a part of his line from the extreme right at the beach and again opened fire from two pieces of artillery with shell and shrapnel. The casualties of the Regiment behind the entrenched line during the entire engagement were one man killed and four wounded.

"About 11:30 P. M., the enemy advanced a line of infantry toward a point east of the entire prolongation of the Tenth's entrenched line, with the evident intention of turning the Regiment's right flank. Seeing this danger, Major Cuthbertson withdrew the pickets and outposts, advancing the reserve line under command of Major Bierer, who made disposition as follows: Company K, (Captain Thomas S. Crago) about sixty feet to the right of the road (the eastern end of the entrenched line) the left resting on a dense bamboo thicket, the line extending east of the entrenched line and about thirty feet in advance of the same, the right resting about five degrees north of the entrenched line. Companies E, (Captain James A. Loar) and D, (Captain Frank B. Hawkins) prolonged this line to the right in the order mentioned.

"When this new line had been placed in position, the enemy, firing volleys, had advanced considerably nearer. The three companies of the Tenth Pennsylvania which were deployed to the right of the Calle Real numbering about two hundred men, and there met the assault at the lowest estimate of one thousand of the enemy. The men met this advance with continuous volley firing.

"Colonel Hawkins being indisposed and confined to his quarters was not present with his command until the heavy firing warned him that the Regiment was engaged in battle. He then went to the front with twenty-eight men of the regimental guard. About a half hour after his arrival on the battle line, Battery K of the 3rd U. S. Artillery arrived and was posted near the center of the Tenth's line. Company I then formed a double line on the extreme right of the entrenchments. Thus the battle waged without much abatement until about 1:30 A.M., when the enemy retired from the extreme right. About this time a battalion of the 1st California Infantry, sent by General Greene as reinforcements, arrived. One of the companies was posted on the left of the line at the beach, the other three with a detachment of Battery H, 3rd U. S. Artillery relieving Companies D, E, and K of this regiment on the right. About 2 o'clock A. M., the enemy again opened fire with artillery and occasional volleys from the infantry in the Tenth's front until 3 o'clock, but when the Pennsylvania soldiers returned the fire volley for volley, the Spanish troops retired and the firing ceased.

"In this engagement it is estimated that not less than one hundred thousand rounds of ammunition were expended by the enemy and about sixty thousand by the Americans, the Tenth alone expending about thirty-nine thousand rounds. The casualties behind the entrenched line were small, while in the three unprotected companies about one in five was either killed or wounded.

"During that memorable night of battle a terrible typhoon was raging. The rain fell in torrents, the night was very dark and actual sight of the enemy in his advance was only secured by the continued flashes of lightning. The men were thoroughly deluged with water, many rifles became clogged and parts failed to work by being covered with sand from the rifle-pits. In many instances the men were seen immersing the rifles bodily in water, thus cleansing out the sand, and then proceeded with their firing.

"In this first battle the Regiment lost nine killed and about forty wounded. The dead were buried in a little cemetery near the camp, but later all of the bodies were removed to the United States.

"After this battle the Regiment was called the "Fighting Tenth" and retains this name until this day.

"As Commander of the Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry I now desire to make public, that it may become a matter of record in the archives of Pennsylvania, that the next day after the battle before Malate, the following commendatory order was issued and published by Brigadier-General Francis V. Greene, commanding the brigade to which this regiment was attached.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, U. S. EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

GENERAL ORDERS NO. 10.

The Brigadier-General Commanding desires to thank the troops engaged last night for the gallantry and skill displayed by them in repelling such a vigorous attack by largely superior forces of the Spaniards. Not an inch of ground was yielded by the Tenth Regiment Pennsylvania Infantry and Batteries A and B Utah Light Artillery, stationed in the trenches; the Battalion Third U. S. Artillery and First Regiment California Infantry moved forward to their support through a galling fire with the utmost intrepidity. The courage and steadiness shown by all in their first engagement are worthy of the highest commendation.

The dead will be buried with proper honors under the Supervision of Regimental and Battalion Commanders at three o'clock today in the yard of the convent near Maricaban.

By command of

BRIGADIER-GENERAL GREENE.

W. G. BATES,

Assistant Adjutant General.

"And further, that he said to the regimental commander: 'The conduct of your troops has been so gallant that when the final advance is made on Manila, your Regiment shall have the position of honor.' I now assert in all solemnity that until the Tenth Pennsylvania was relieved on the morning of August 13, 1898, and had arrived on their march back to camp at a point near the crossing of the Manila and Pasai road, I had received no intimation, nor was I furnished with any order indicating the advance of our army on Manila on that day. A copy of the order for my command, directing the advance, was sent to Camp Dewey on the early afternoon of August 12th and remained on my field desk until brought forward on the morning of the 13th by an orderly. The troops of the command, however, acted with so much celerity and promptness that they returned to camp, secured the necessary rations and ammunition, as ordered, and were back to the reserve line at the beginning of the bombardment of the Spanish forts and positions by Admiral Dewey's fleet.

"When the bombardment ceased, and the advance of the army was ordered, the Tenth Pennsylvania, regardless of her position in reserve, was pushed directly to the front, and although the reserve was posted about a mile in the rear of the advance line, this command passed several of the advance organizations, when they were halted near Fort Malate and marched directly through the towns of Malate and Ermita. On our arrival on the Luneta, immediately opposite the walled city, distant about two hundred and fifty yards from the same, in which most of the enemy had retired, the white flag of surrender was floating from the city, and we knew that our objective point had been reached, and that Manila was ours.

"At the opening of the first street entering the walled city from the Luneta, and while immediately opposite the barracks of the Seventy-third Spanish Infantry, we were halted by orders of General Greene, delivered through an aide who came up from the rear. At this time the First California Infantry was immediately in our front and was halted just beyond the street entering the walled city just referred to. The First Nebraska had now arrived and was on a line with this command on the same street. General MacArthur's brigade was on the right of our line, and having met some resistance from the enemy at the block-house, was not yet up to the front. In probably a half hour, however, Brigadier-General T. M. Anderson, in command of the division, came up and took quarters near our position. Negotiations between the commissioners of the two nations to fix the terms of the surrender were at this time going on in the walled city, and during this interval thousands of the Spanish troops stood or walked around on top of the outer wall of the city, and a number of Spanish officers came out of the city and mingled with our troops.

"After waiting at this point about two and one-half hours, the First Colorado Infantry, which this command had passed at Fort Malate, with band playing and colors to the breeze, passed our position, moved into the walled city, and was given the honor of the first United States troops to fling to the breeze the flag of our conquering country in this famed city of the Spanish nation."

FALL OF MANILA.

On August 12th, the Regiment was busily engaged in improving the breast works. The men worked twenty-four hours without rest and on the morning of August 13th, the Regiment was marched to Camp Dewey, and then returned and was placed with the advancing column toward Manila. The clothes of the soldiers were torn and covered with mud and in this condition the men took part in the battle causing the fall of Manila. The enemy made but little resistance and three hours after night fall, without anything to eat, the men found quarters and refreshing sleep in Santa Cruz, one of the large churches and convents of the city. The men had worked, marched and fought for more than forty-eight hours without sleep or rest.

Before the Regiment left San Francisco, a recruiting party under the leadership of Colonel James E. Barnett, returned to the East to make up the quota of one hundred and six men for each company, that being the war strength table of organizations. These recruits mobilized at Washington, Pennsylvania, June 24, and on the following day were mustered into the service of the United States. On July 4, the recruits left for San Francisco, and on August 20, left San Francisco for Honolulu, leaving Honolulu on November 10, 1898, arriving in Manila November 25, and joining the Regiment on December 2nd.

PHILIPPINE INSURRECTION.

For weeks prior to February 4, 1899, the American troops in the city were under emergency orders, and every precaution was taken to render abortive any aggressive movement of the insurgents; outposts had all been recently doubled, so that when the attack was made on the night of February 4, they were able to hold the enemy in check until the arrival of the main part of their respective commands. Starting with a few desultory shots directed at the Nebraskans, near the San Juan river, it was immediately followed by a general attack along the whole of the insurgent line. The position of the Tenth Pennsylvania was to the right of the Bulumbayan road, running north from the city, and within one hour after the first shot was fired the regiment was in its position on the line. Our outpost had sustained a heavy oblique fire from a block-house on the right and from a large force stationed at the Chinese Hospital immediately in front. Upon the arrival of the Regiment a strong advance line was thrown out, which successfully repulsed three attacks made during the night. At early dawn, February 5, a general advance was ordered by the American forces, the Tenth Pennsylvania receiving orders to advance upon and capture the Chinese Hospital, from which, after a stubborn fight, the regiment succeeded in driving the enemy, gaining possession of the hospital and the Sangleyes road.

In the afternoon the advance was continued, the course of the Regiment being up a long hill on the crest of which is situated De la Loma church, a large and well fortified place. From there and outlying buildings and old Spanish fortifications on the hillside, the insurgents poured a heavy fire, but the Regiment continued to advance. Major Bierer, in command of the left wing, was here wounded and forced to retire, Major Bell of the U. S. Army (later Major-General) taking command of his Battalion. While the fight was in progress Colonel Hawkins sent Lt. Col. Barnett with Companies E and H to extend the right of the line which had become exposed. About this time two pieces of artillery were moved into position and opened fire on the insurgents with telling effect. They were in strong force and held their position until the Regiment was within three hundred yards of them, when a charge was ordered, resulting in their hasty retreat to the north and their vacating De la Loma church and a strongly fortified stone block-house, which were seized and held by this regiment. The command was halted at this place by the division commander who indicated a line to be occupied by the regiment, upon which line the Regiment built a strong line of entrenchments and occupied the same until March 25. On February 6, forty-two of the enemy's dead found along our line were buried by the men of the Tenth Regiment. During the occupation of this line by the Regiment there was constant daily fire kept up by the insurgent sharpshooters from their line about eighteen hundred yards in our front, and upon several occasions the insurgents made advances toward our lines, but were repulsed in each attempt with some loss to themselves.

MALOLOS CAMPAIGN.

On March 25, 1899, after the details of the campaign against Malolos had been perfected, the second division, under orders from the department commander, began its advance to the north, the Tenth Pennsylvania occupying a position on the extreme left of the second brigade.

On the morning of this day the advance line of the Regiment took its position in the line of skirmishers with the division, and after moving some four hundred yards were reinforced by four companies of the regiment, leaving two companies in support. Upon reaching the insurgent line of trenches through a heavy fire, the first attempt at a stand was made by them, but they were soon driven from their position, retreating in a disorganized manner into the woods, firing as they went. The day was very hot, but nothing seemed to daunt the sons of Father L'enn, and on they marched and fought capturing one position after another. The country was rough and rocky, in many places almost impassable, and it was difficult owing to the irregularity in the location of the woods and meadows for one part of a Regiment to keep in touch with another. Often-times part of the Regiment would become entirely lost in rocks and thickets. In this peculiar manner Companies E and K of the first battalion were engaged two successive times.

The first was about a mile from the Tuliahan river, when Company K, on the extreme left of the Regiment and Company E in support, were in an open glade while the rest of the command to the right was completely lost among immense boulders and dense thickets. It was impossible, on account of the same obstacles, to extend the line to the left with the supporting company, but Company K, by well directed firing, soon checked the attack. In the same manner Company E and a platoon of Company K were the only troops of the Regiment able to take any part in the engagement that afternoon at the Tuliabian river. With the assistance of part of the Utah Battery, a Colt's Automatic gun and a company of the First Montana Infantry, the enemy was compelled to vacate a strongly fortified position. In this engagement Private Newill of Company E was mortally wounded. The Regiment pursued the enemy until nearly dark when a halt was ordered at the Tuliabian river for rest and supper, having gone over ten miles of country, through dense jungles, fording rivers and marching across rocky hills and valleys. After supper the Regiment was marched two and a half miles over rough and rocky ground to its position in the line which had been established for the night.

On the morning of March 26, the Division advanced to a position on the Tuliabian-Melinta road, south of and nearly parallel to the Bemon and Novaliches road, with no resistance to the movement of the Tenth. After a delay of two hours at this road the Division was moved by flank along the road and formed a line facing to the west. Many men fell out of the ranks prostrated by the tropical heat. In front of the position of this Regiment on the new line the enemy had constructed strong entrenchments at fifteen hundred yards distance from which they opened a heavy fire which was answered by the division artillery followed by an advance of the infantry. In this advance the most brilliant charge in the history of the Regiment was made, it being compelled to march for several hundred yards in the enemy's fire before they could fire a shot. The village of Obando and town of South Meycauayan were captured by the Tenth Pennsylvania and held during the night. From this point the line of advance was along the railroad.

On the morning of the 27th the Regiment was placed in reserve, and after marching about one mile was halted. Company I was ordered to assist a detachment of the 3rd U. S. Artillery, which was engaged with a large body of insurgents and was in a dangerous position. After a spirited engagement this company succeeded in effecting the surrender of the entire force of the enemy with their arms. At dark the regiment was moved through the town of Marilao and across the river and placed on the firing line, its left resting on right of railroad. A halt was made at this place for the night. In this position the Regiment marched to Malolos.

The day following was employed in supplying subsistence and ammunition to the Division. After resting on their arms for a day the troops started onward again early the next morning, engaging almost at once. The insurgents were easily routed, and from early morning until nearly dark the Regiment met with no resistance. All day under a burning sun the soldiers jogged along, marking off mile after mile, and fording rivers where the insurgents had burned the bridges. About five o'clock that afternoon the advance line of skirmishers from the Tenth came upon an unfordable river near Guiguinto, about five miles south of Malolos. The Regiment was compelled to move by the left flank and cross the river over an iron railroad bridge. The column, marching by file, had passed over the bridge some considerable distance when the insurgents opened fire from in front and on both sides in a crescent-shaped line, with evident purpose of checking the advance. It took only a few minutes for the entire command to reach the advance line, and at the end of the hour's fighting by the Regiment, aided by artillery, the enemy's fire was checked and the Tenth boys were masters of the situation. It was a well laid trap for the American soldiers, but having fearlessly walked into it there was nothing to do but fight their way out, and this they did in a highly creditable manner. It was one of the fiercest and hardest fought engagements of the campaign.

MALOLAS FALLS.

At noon, March 30, in a blinding rain storm, the advance was again taken up meeting with resistance at once. After a brief engagement, not being able to hold their ground, the insurgents took up their old line of retreat. The last night prior to the final move on Malolos was spent in camp about two miles from that place. The enemy could be seen beyond a dense jungle growth in strong force. The last advance which was destined to terminate in the capture of Malolos was begun in the early morning of March 31 and after a few hours march, meeting resistance as we went, the coveted goal was reached and Malolos, the capitol of the assumed republic, was in the hands of the Americans.

This had cost a week of trying fighting, and it was decided to take a needed rest and to wait for supplies. Our supplies were brought up at night by the railroad, which was being daily repaired by the American engineers. The wagon train consisted of two four mule teams, eleven caribou carts and a few pony carts. Each company had two Chinamen, in charge of a soldier, who acted as litter bearers.

The Regiment rested at Malolos, although performing skirmish duty with the enemy almost daily, until April 14th, when it was relieved from front line duty and taken to the city of Cavite, where there was little prospect of further fighting. During the advance to Malolos the Regiment took part in the following battles: La Loma Church, Caloocan, San Francisco-del Monte, Tuliahan river, Meycaucayan, Marilao, Bocaue, Guiguinto and Malolos.

The campaign of Malolos was extremely difficult. Transportation facilities were greatly limited as is indicated in the description of the train. Roads were unimproved and there were few bridges and many streams to be forded. The men were heavily burdened with ammunition, as practically all were armed with the old forty-five caliber Springfield. The water supply was poor and frequently rations were short by reason of delay of the train. The field ration at best was poor in quality and small in quantity. The enemy had carefully fortified the territory from Manila to Malolos and his best trained troops occupied the strong positions. The Regiment started into this campaign with over eight hundred men, but when Malolos had been reached the organization had been depleted to two hundred and fifty-six men. When the Regiment was relieved it greatly resembled a Mexican outfit. No shoes, clothing or other quarter-master supplies had been received during the campaign, and the men were ragged, dirty and unshaven.

SAIL FOR HOME.

While in Cavite the Regiment took part in two engagements with the enemy, but without serious results, and on July 1, 1899, the officers and men went on board the S. S. "Senator"; July 16th, the Regiment left Japan after spending a pleasant week visiting the Island Empire. On the afternoon of August 1, the ship slowly steamed into San Francisco where the transport was met by relatives and friends of the Pennsylvania soldiers. On August 22nd, the Tenth Pennsylvania was mustered out of the service of the United States.

During its service it had lost as follows:

Killed in action, six; died of wounds, nine; died of disease, six; wounded, seventy and missing, one. It had traveled a longer distance than any other organization of troops in the history of the world. The troops, although mustered out of service, were carried across the continent in three special trains, furnished by the citizens of Western Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The trains were everywhere more warmly greeted on the trip eastward than when on the journey across to take part in the war.

The Regiment arrived in New Brighton, the home of Company B, on the morning of August 28th, where it was accorded a great reception and given breakfast, the first meal in Pennsylvania. The organization arrived in Pittsburgh about two o'clock in the afternoon and participated in a grand civic and military parade. The veterans received a most enthusiastic ovation all along the line of march, which ended in Schenley Park, where the Regiment was officially welcomed home by President McKinley, Governor William A. Stone, Major General Merritt and Brigadier General Greene. Both of the latter had the Regiment in their Commands during its tour of duty in the Philippines. The following day the different companies went to their respective home stations where special demonstrations were made in their honor.

After the men had gone to their homes many assembled at Washington, Pennsylvania, September 1899, the home of their lamented commander, and acted as an escort as the body of Colonel Hawkins was borne to its last resting place in the cemetery of his home town.

MAKE A TRIP TO NEW YORK.

Later, the Regiment was assembled and went to New York City to take part in the "Dewey Day Parade". The men were dressed in khaki breeches and blue shirts, the same uniform worn during campaigning, which was in great contrast to many outfits in full dress. It received a great reception along the entire route of the parade. During this trip the Regiment was entertained at the Third Regiment armory in Philadelphia by this celebrated Pennsylvania organization. This gathering started a friendship between the Regiments which increased in fondness until they were completely amalgamated into one splendid organization after the 110th's baptism of fire during the World War.

The "Fighting Tenth" has annually held a reunion since it was mustered out, but it will never again be brought together the same as during its sixteen months' volunteer service for the United States.

During its service the organizations of the Tenth were commanded as follows:

Regimental Commander, Col. Alexander Hawkins.

Second in Command, Lt. Col. James E. Barnett.

Adjutant, Capt. Harry B. Duncan.

FIRST BATTALION.

Company E, Mt. Pleasant, Capt. James A. Loar.

Company K, Waynesburg, Capt. Thomas S. Crago.

REORGANIZATION OF REGIMENT

The Regiment was re-organized in the early part of 1900 and Colonel James E. Barnett was elected Colonel and held the rank until May 22, 1907, when he resigned and was succeeded by Colonel Richard Coulter of Greensburg, Pennsylvania. Colonel Coulter was re-commissioned in 1912 and again in 1917. Colonel Barnett established Headquarters at Washington, Pennsylvania, and Colonel Coulter established them at Greensburg, Pennsylvania. In the long history of the Tenth Regiment, Headquarters have been in but two towns. Under the administration of Colonel Barnett the Companies of the Regiment remained in the same towns as preceding the war. Company "C" at Uniontown was not in good shape and in February 1911, Colonel Coulter was forced to move it elsewhere. Somerset was the strongest applicant and immediately organized an excellent Company. The reorganization of the guard of the State required each Regiment to have twelve companies. In order to accomplish this the Fifth Regiment, along with other organizations, was demobilized January 1, 1911 and four companies of the Fifth were transferred to the Tenth, which were lettered "F", "G", "L" and "M" and located respectively at Indlana, Hollidaysburg, Blairsville and Altoona. This change again brought Company F of Indiana back to the Tenth. Company M of Altoona was transferred to Latrobe in February, 1912.

After the Spanish-American War, the Regiment resumed its place in the National Guard of Pennsylvania and during the hard coal strike in 1902 was on duty for twenty-six days at Shamokin, Pennsylvania. It was also called for six days of service during the labor trouble in 1916, but never left the Company armories.

TENTH REGIMENT RIFLE TEAM

The history of the 10th Regiment Rifle Team may be said to date from 1910, although teams representing the Regiment had engaged from time to time in various matches since 1883, but without any noteworthy results. In 1910, however, the team succeeded in winning five second prizes, and this so stimulated interest in marksmanship among the officers and men, that since that year the teams of the 10th, have virtually made a clean sweep of the different trophies annually offered.

Much of the credit for the general excellence attained by the teams of the Regiment is due to the efforts of Wade T. Kline of Greensburg, for many years Captain of "I" Company. Himself, an expert rifleman, he combined an accurate knowledge with real interest in his task, and this enthusiasm was soon communicated to the men. The result was, that almost any day, when the weather was suitable, a number of men would be found on the rifle-range striving to qualify as experts.

Prominent among the many who have been on Regimental, Brigade and State teams are the following: Captain Kline, the late Alex Bomer, Robert Potts, Edward Lang, deceased, William Bellew, Webster Close and Lloyd Feightner all of "I" Company, and Fields of B, and Ebersole of G Companies. Beginning with 1911, and continuing until the Regiment was called into the service of the United States, the team won the following matches one or more times: "The Potter Match", "Bowman Match", "Kaul Rapid Fire Match", "Skirmish Match", "Hershman Match", "Kaul Surprise Fire Match", "Regimental Match", "Bradley Match", and in 1914 the first year it was established, the first four places in the "Junior Individual Match".

SERVED ON THE BORDER.

In June, 1918, a condition of affairs had developed on the Mexican Border that was regarded as acute and the relations between the government of the United States and the de facto Government of Mexico were severely strained. For more than three years the Mexican government had been torn by internal dissension and revolution and bandit raids were made upon the territory of the United States in which American lives were lost and property destroyed. On Sunday, June 18th, the Secretary of War, at the direction of the President, issued a call to the Governors of the various States in which the mobilization of the National Guard was ordered. The text of the call read: "Having in view the possibility of further aggression upon the territory of the United States from Mexico and the necessity of proper protection of that frontier", the President thought it proper to exercise his authority and call out the National Guard.

Subsequent orders directed that the National Guard of Pennsylvania be mobilized at Mount Gretna for the purpose of muster into the United States service.

The National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, which provided for the use of the National Guard by the Federal Government, had just been enacted into law and enlistment records to carry out the provisions of the same had not been accomplished. The men of the National Guard were under no legal obligation to serve the Federal Government, but with few exception they volunteered and accepted the provisions of the new law.

The quota of troops for Pennsylvania was designated as one division, consisting of three infantry brigades of three regiments each, one regiment of cavalry, one regiment of field artilley, two companies of engineers, one battalion of signal troops, two field hospitals and two ambulance companies. While preparations were in progress for mobilization on June 22nd, telegraphic dispatches reported the battle of Carizal, a skirmish, in which two companies of the 10th Cavalry, United States Army, under Captains Charles T. Boyd and Lewis S. Morey, were attacked. These companies formed a scouting party sent out from General Pershing's column in the punitive expedition which had invaded Mexico in pursuit of the bandit Villa after a raid on Columbus, New Mexico.

Telegraphic information reported that the Americans were led into ambush by de facto troops and raked by hidden machine gun fire. The casualties among the Americans were forty killed and seventeen captured. The Mexicans suffered heavy casualties, including one General

On Tuesday, June 27th, an accident occurred at Petersburg, Pa., in which three recruits were injured, one fatally. The three recruits, Privates Geptel, Cunningham and Tully, all of Mount Pleasant, were seated on the platform of cars with legs extended beyond the steps and as the train speeded past the station their legs came into violent contact with an iron fence which separates the railroad tracks at the station. Privates Tully and Cunningham were not severely injured, but Private Geptel's condition was found to be serious. He was removed to the hospital at Huntington, where he died.

The transfer of property from the National Guard of Pennsylvania to the United States Army was completed Sunday, July 2nd, the Regiment received its equipment, and travel rations were issued to the troops. Orders had been received for entrainment by Colonel Richard killed. This incident excited great alarm in the United States and mobilization was speeded up and patriotic demonstrations burst out in all parts of the country.

On Friday, June 23rd, the various units of the Tenth entrained at home stations for Mount Gretna. Three sections made up the transportation equipment, all of which arrived at Mount Gretna early the following morning and proceeded to erect canvas. By early afternoon the men were made comfortable and preparations were begun for muster. Physical examinations, inoculation with anti-typhoid prophylaxis and vaccination against small pox commenced almost immediately. Details had been left behind at home stations to enlist new recruits in order to bring the various companies up to war strength of one hundred and fifty men.

Coulter. The destination of the Division was El Paso, Texas. At ten o'clock Sunday evening our long journey to the Mexican Border began. The routing was known as Route No. 9 of the American Railway Association and was as follows: Cornwall and Lebanon R. R. to Conewago; Pennsylvania R. R. to Corry; Erte R. R. to Chicago; Chicago and Eastern Illinois R. R. to St. Louis; Frisco Line to Dallas; Texas and Pacific R. R. to El Paso.

The trip was a long and tiresome one, requiring nearly a full week in poor transportation equipment which many times broke down and caused long delays. The monotonous scenery of the prairies in the hot summer season added to the discomfort.

The Regiment arrived at El Paso on Saturday, July 8th, detraining at 11:40 A. M. at Fort Bliss, from which point the troops proceeded to the camp site located just outside the city limits of El Paso, at the intersection of Havana Street and Altura Boulevard, under the shadow of the Franklin Range of the Rocky Mountains. This camp was known as Camp Pershing and the Division was designated as the Seventh.

The soil of the camp was rocky covered with alkali dust and looked most unpromising until details of troops were put to work clearing away the growths of sage brush, cactus, prickly pear and mosquito. By nightfall the clearing had been made and tents were erected and the whole situation was most presentable. Brigadier General A. J. Logan arrived on the following day and took command of the troops in camp. On July 11th, Major General Charles M. Clement arrived and took command of the Division.

CAPT. GERARD S. BRYCE.

On July 12th orders were received to the effect that one Battalion of the Regiment should be selected for duty in what is known as the Big Bend Country. Major Henry W. Coulter was the ranking Battalion Commander and his command, the Third Battalion, was designated for this duty. This organization consisted of Companies I, K, L and M. An account of the tour of duty in the Big Bend has been prepared by Lieut. Barron of Company M, and makes interesting reading. It is as follows:

"Any record of the Tenth Regiment's experience on the Border in 1916, would be incomplete unless it included some account of the Third Battalion in the Big Bend Country of Texas. This sketch is respectfully submitted by one who was there.

"The Regiment had hardly arrived at El Paso until we were ordered to proceed to a point on the Rio Grande, near Boquillas, Texas. We left at once and detrained at Marathon. The natives there told strange and wonderful tales of the "Big Bend Country". A country inhabited only by outlaws and bandits. A desolate, waterless region infested with scorpions, vinegarones, rattlesnakes, tarantulas, coyotes and mountain lions. We learned that our station was to be at the farthest edge of this bare waste of mosquito, cactus, spanish bayonet plant and bare volcanic rocks.

Co. I, 10th N. G. P., starting from Marathon for Glenn Springs, Texas, July 1916.

"The journey down was made in Packard motor trucks. Our tentage, equipment and provisions were first loaded upon the trucks, then we perched on top. The distance was about 91 miles—Texas miles. The sun boiled down from a cloudless sky. The water in our canteens soon became too warm to be refreshing. Great clouds of thick white alkali dust rose around us. The trail wound in and out among the mountains and hills and through dry creek beds. On either side of the so called road were many bleaching skeletons, the bones of horses, mules and cattle that had died from lack of feed or water. Mexican burro teams made the trip in eight days. It took us almost twelve hours to do it in trucks.

"We reached Boquillas just as twilight came to give relief from the intense heat. Our first thought was for fresh water. We were directed to the spring which supplied the few Mexican families that made up the civilian population of Boquillas. The spring was found to be one of the hot variety, common to the Southwest. The water was about 100 degrees in temperature and full of minerals. Deemer's store was soon sold out of canvas water bags. These bags cooled the water by evaporation from the outer surface.

"A newspaper correspondent from the Pittsburgh Gazette Times made the trip with us. He planned to remain along the Rio Grande for a week to get material for a story. He spent the night with Company M, and took the first truck back to Marathon next morning.

"Companies I and K went on to Glenn Springs where they were stationed with some regular cavalry troops. Companies L and M remained at Boquillas, where they relieved Company A of the 4th Texas Infantry. The men of the 3rd Battalion had cause to remember these wild sons of the mosquito for many a day. When the Texans left, in a day or so, they took everything they could collect from the 10th men. Most of the plunder was recovered later.

"The scenery around Boquillas was beautiful—so long as you looked up at the sky, or at the mountains at sunrise or sunset. Sierra del Carmen, eighteen miles to the southeast in Mexico, was a majestic wall of rock. The setting sun painted it all the colors of the spectrum, and, at sunset, the great clouds became living paintings. Long after the red sun had sunk to rest behind the western hills, the higher arches of the heavens were alive with golden glows and tints. Again, after the frequent rains, the sun would shine and fill the sky with gorgeous rainbows. These sights were the sole beauty of the Big Bend.

Major Coulter had his headquarters at Boquillas. We used a large dobie building for a Battalion office and officers mess. This was called "Hotel Boco". Many rainy, anxious evenings were spent there—wondering when that meat truck would arrive. We were really more interested in the mail sacks than in the food.

"Not long after the Companies at Boquillas had settled down to a routine of guard duty, frequent rains and high winds came to add to the excitement. Our truck trail to the railhead at Marathon, followed creek beds through some of the ranges of hills. The rain converted these passes into raging torrents. It also turned some miles of alkali plain to a sea of almost bottomless mud. These conditions cut off our supply and mail trucks time after time. One noon meal served to Company M was composed of fried onions and plain hard tack biscuits. It was the last of our food store. Luckily, that same afternoon, a truck of meat and other provisions arrived in camp. Another time when food was scarce, we bought some Mexican goats. It was the only semblance of food that love or money could buy. Even after being thoroughly boiled and roasted, that goat gave off its aroma. The hungry men of Company M took one bite of goat dinner, and suddenly left the mess tent. They were still pale next morning.

"The actual duties performed were not hard. Some drill in the mornings and evenings, and short patrols around the valley. The extreme heat was our worst enemy. Companies L and M maintained two outposts along the fords of the Rio Grande, and several others among the hills about camp. The farthest one was at Dead Man's Gap, about four miles from camp. Dead Man's Gap was the main opening into the bowl formed by high, steep hills in which Boquillas was situated. The Gap was narrow. The road wound around sharp curves; on one side a deep ravine, on the other a steep wall of rock. The guard of eight men, at this point, could have held up an entire regiment.

"The trading post or general store at Boquillas, was owned and managed by J. Deemer. Deemer and "Nigger" Payne, his man, were carried into Mexico by bandits. In May, 1916, Glenn Springs was raided by Mexicans. A squat little dobie hut still shows bullet marks from the fight. A detachment of United States Cavalrymen were caught in this building and the straw thatched roof burned over their heads by the bandits. Several cavalrymen were killed at this time.

"Major Langhorne, with about 140 cavalrymen, crossed the Rio Grande near Boquillas, pursued the bandits and secured the release of Deemer and Payne. The Third Battalion was right where the action had taken place. Fortunately no trouble developed while we were on the river posts.

"The first few weeks in the Big Bend were full of hair raising experiences for many of the men. It was not unusual to hear a diamond back rattler sing his hymn of hate, as you stepped out of your tent at night. It was best to shake carefully any clothing which had been on the ground, for those little scorpions gave painful stings. There were some alarms of "Signal Lights" until it was fully proved that they were only the ultra brilliant stars of Texas. It was a strange land in which to soldier, after the green hills of Pennsylvania.

"We were encouraged at Boquillas, to swim in the Rio Grande at a point just below camp. A bend in the stream formed a wide, moderately deep pool. An armed guard kept watch on the banks while parties were bathing. The only death in the Battalion occurred at this pool the evening of August 17th. Private Thomas Haag of Company M, while swimming with 1st Sgt. Bailey, and others from Companies L and M, suddenly disappeared from view. The body was recovered the next afternoon, and buried near Boquillas. The remains were removed later to Latrobe, Pa. This accident ended all swimming in the river.

"Companies L and M later moved to La Noria, Texas, a few miles from Boquillas. The tents were pitched near a dry river. It was only after severe rains in the upper hills that water flowed in its channel. The supply trucks for the troops at Glenn Springs crossed the river bed near our camp. We were constantly pushing trucks out of chuck-holes. Captain Kline, of Company I, was marooned in mid stream with his little Ford one afternoon. The water was roaring all about him. "Eddie" Boyle, the Adjutant, in pajamas, riding boots and sun helmet, went to the rescue. "Eddie" received the "Order of the Tomato Can" after we reached El Paso.

"Major Coulter received orders to send one officer and sixteen men on a patrol to Stillwell's Crossing about thirty miles up the river. The object was to locate a route for a telephone line. The patrol, under Lieut. Barron of Company M, made a rapid trip. The sixty five miles were covered in four days. The only water supply was found in "pot holes" in the deeper ravines. The route lay over two divides. The patrol crossed one pass where the peaks around and below them were festooned with white clouds. A telephone line was later erected along their route.

"Life was dull at La Noria. "Birthdays" were frequent occurrences. Captain Woodend of Company L, developed a potent prune compound that should be of great value these days. "Marfa", Major Coulter's Ford roadster, was the only connecting link between the companies at Glenn Springs and those at La Noria.

"Some new stunts were originated in the Big Bend. It was decided to hold evening parade at La Noria. In the absence of any band, Company M's victrola was mounted upon a wheelbarrow. Companies L and M passed in review, in real military form, to its music. Actual pictures are submitted in evidence.

"Just before the Battalion was ordered to rejoin the Regiment, the camp at La Noria, was demolished by a tornado and flood. It was a clear day about 4:30 P. M. Sierra del Carmen darkened. Great sheets of rain were falling there. A few blasts of wind warned us of trouble. The evening meal was being served, but it never was eaten. For an hour the wind played havoc with our canvas. Only two small tents remained standing. Several feet of water flowed down the company streets. Much clothing and equipment was carried into the Dry River.

"During the height of the storm, Captain Anderson's presence of mind saved a number of men from serious injury. Twenty or more had taken shelter to the leeward side of a large adobe brick schoolhouse. The Captain noticed the roof being lifted by the wind. He drove the men away just as several tons of large dobie bricks fell where the men had stood, only a moment before.

"Orders to return to El Paso were received. The Companies from Glenn Springs were the first to reach Marathon. They were joined later by Company L and part of Company M. Lieut. Barron and forty men remained to settle up the Battalion's business at La Noria and turn the section over to the United States Cavalry.

"Then the last of the Third Battalion left: the Big Bend forever. No one objected to the heat and dust along the road. We cheerfully said goodbye to that desolate region. The Battalion arrived at El Paso, ragged, tattered and torn, but clean and happy. We stayed at Camp Stewart long enough to get acquainted with real dust storms, take part in the famous four day hike, and become known as "Major Coulter's River Rats". A name of which we are still proud, for down in lonely Big Bend, we got to know one another."

That part of the Regimental organization at El Paso improved the time in drills and maneuvers under the command of Colonel Richard Coulter and great progress in the general efficiency of the troops was noted.

On July 19th, orders were received changing the camp site to a new location on the Almagordo Road. On Saturday, July 22nd, the change to the new site was made. The new camp was known as Camp Thomas J. Stewart, in honor of Brigadier General Thomas J. Stewart, Adjutant General of Pennsylvania. The location was about two miles north of Fort Bliss Post Office on a flat stretch of prairie. The selection of the site proved to be a poor one, for the reason that the plains were not protected by surrounding hills, as was the case with the first site, and the numerous sand storms played havoc with equipment and comfort of the men.

The presence of troops on the Border had a quieting effect on the Mexicans and no trouble threatened after our arrival. The Rio Grande River, the dividing line between Mexico and Texas, flowed peacefully a short distance from the camp, but no hostile demonstrations, that invited the attention of the Americans, were made on the southern side of the river.

While no hostilities were engaged in, the officers and men were not idle. Schools were organized, lectures on various military problems were delivered, target practice was held nearly every day, maneuvers of the Regiment, the Brigade and the Division took place at stated intervals and training in trench digging made up the program which kept the Regiment busy while in camp.

On September 20th the Third Battalion rejoined the Regiment at Camp Stewart, after its tour of duty in the Big Bend, and the day was given over to jollification. The biggest maneuver of the tour of duty began on September 25th and continued for four days over the hot and dusty roads and through the mountain passes of New Mexico and Texas. The Regiment stood up under the fierce heat of the sun and the great clouds of alkali dust like seasoned veterans. The greatest discomfort of the march was the scarcity of drinking water for men and animals and the suffering from this cause was extremely painful.

On Friday, September 29th it was officially announced that the First, Third and Tenth Regiments had been designated to return to home stations. On Thursday, October 5th, the Regiment broke camp and entrained for its home-going. On October 11th the Tenth arrived in Pittsburgh where a great ovation of welcome was given the Regiment. Thousands of people lined the streets and all buildings were decorated. A parade was formed and marched through Smithfield Street from Lake Erie Depot to Fifth Avenue, thence west on Fifth Avenue to the Soldier's Memorial Hall, where speeches of welcome were made by Governor Brumbaugh, Hon. Thomas S. Crago, former lieutenant colonel of the 10th, Colonel James E. Barnett, former commander of the Regiment, Mayor Armstrong and Hon. James Francis Burke. Colonel Coulter, in behalf of the members of the Regiment, made a graceful response to the speeches of welcome and thanked the citizens of Pittsburgh for the hospitable reception. After luncheon, which had been provided by the Chamber of Commerce, each unit returned to its home station where it was mustered out of the Federal Service.

CALLED FOR WORLD WAR.

Sunday, July 15, 1917, the various Companies were directed to mobilize at the home stations for the war with Germany, and on August 5, 1917, the units were drafted into Federal service. September 7, 1917, the Regiment started to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Georgia, for further organization and training.

The new table of organization called for 3,750 officers and men. The experience of the war in Europe had taught experts that soldiers must receive a very high degree of training, both physically and intellectually. The Regiment when called, in July, had about 1,000 officers and men. The officers had been carefully selected and trained and the men were from the best stock of Southwestern Pennsylvania. In the selection of the enlisted personnel of the Tenth Regiment, hundreds of men had been rejected and none but the best were taken. The War Department directed a reorganization of the Pennsylvania Division in order to secure the larger Regiments and ordered the reduction of the infantry commands from nine to four. Much speculation followed as to which organizations would be the fortunate ones, and retained as a part of the new Division, but on October 11, General Orders No. 22 were issued retaining the Tenth Regiment, but changing the name to the 110th, the name being officially designated as 110th Infantry (10th Pennsylvania Infantry). The order transferred practically all of the junior officers and enlisted men of the Third Pennsylvania to the 110th.

Richard Coulter of Greensburg, commander of the old Tenth, was made a Brigadier General. While all rejoiced in his deserved promotion, yet officers and men alike regretted the losing of this superior soldier and man who had given years of work and thought to the organization of the Regiment. As the high place it had attained as a National Guard unit was largely due to his efforts, all naturally expected him to be assigned to the Pennsylvania Division, but much to our disappointment he was sent elsewhere.

The National Guard system seems to be the most nearly ideal army for a democratic form of government. Of course it has its defects and there is room for improvement, yet the National Guard has usually kept abreast of the times and when called upon has performed its work exceedingly well. In the Tenth Regiment such men as General Coulter, Colonel Barnett, Colonel Crago, Major Cuthbertson, Major McCormick, Chaplain Temple and many others have devoted years of time and energy in building up the National Guard. They put into the Guard a spirit of determination which has given it a morale unsurpassed, for it is well known that the strength of an army is its morale and esprit de corps. The spirit of the officers and men who have made the Tenth Regiment for more than forty years, lived in the organization when it was called in 1917.

When the Tenth went into Camp Hancock for training it was officered as follows: Regimental Commander, Lieutenant Colonel Henry W. Coulter, Greensburg; The Battalion Commanders were, First Battalion, Major Joseph H. Thompson, Beaver Falls; Second Battalion, Major Edward Martin, Waynesburg; Third Battalion, Major Thomas B. Anderson, Latrobe; The Company Commanders were Captain Edward Hartland, Monongahela City, Company "A"; Captain William Fish, New Brighton, Company "B"; Captain W. Pleasant, Headquarters' Company; Captain J. Edgar Boyle, Beaver Falls, Machine Gun Company; Major Robert S. McKee, Connellsville, Medical Detachment; Captain Charles Schall, Greensburg, Chaplain.

ORGANIZATION AFTER WORLD WAR

The Regiment is now being reorganized after its World War service. Brigadier General Richard Coulter, a former commander of the Tenth, is in command of the Brigade, composed of the Tenth and Eighteenth. October 16, 1919, Edward Martin was commissioned Colonel and assigned to command the Regiment. Headquarters have been established at Waynesburg, Pennsylvania. The officers are:

Third Pennsylvania Infantry

The Third Regiment was organized in 1879 by the consolidation of the Washington Grays Battalion and the Weccacoe Legion Battalion. Sylvester Bonnaffon, Jr., who commanded the Washington Grays, a Veteran of the Civil War, entering as a private in 1861 and mustered out as Brevet Lieutenant Colonel in 1865, was the first Colonel and John P. Denney of the Weccacoe Legion, Lieutenant Colonel. They held office ten years. Nearly all officers were veterans of the Civil War but the companies were scattered in halls in various parts of the city and shortly after organization the Washington Grays withdrew, so that much time was required to perfect the organization. The first armory, located at 12th and Reed Streets, was completed in 1882. This was found too small and the present armory on South Broad Street above Wharton Street was built and occupied in 1888.

William B. Smith was elected the second Colonel in 1890. He held office but a short time and was discharged in 1891.

In 1892 the Regiment took part in quelling the Homestead riots under the command of Lieut. Colonel Thomas H. Maginniss.

In 1893 Edward DeV. Morrell was elected the third Colonel. He was a man of unlimited means and keen business foresight and devoted almost his entire time to the Regiment. He called about him a staff of officers whose names have been prominent in the National Guard of Pennsylvania. Under his administration the Regiment made rapid progress.

In 1895 Colonel Morrell was Inspector General of the State and Robert Ralston was elected the fourth Colonel. Under his command it entered the Spanish-American War as the Third Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, stationed at Chicka-

It entered the service with eight companies of two battalions. Companies I and K were recruited in Philadelphia and joined the regiment at Fernandina, Florida, in August making ten companies. The roster of officers follows:—

In 1901 William G. Price, Jr., was elected fifth Colonel upon the resignation of Colonel Ralston, due to his appointment as Judge. Under Colonel Price the Regiment took part in quelling the industrial troubles in the coal fields in 1902, and in the maneuvers at Pine Camp, N. Y. In 1904 the armory was rebuilt and enlarged.

In 1910 Colonel Price was appointed Brigadier General and was succeeded by Benjamin C. Tilghman, Jr., as the sixth Colonel. He was an officer of unusual ability, but died within a year after taking command.

In 1911 Caldwell K. Biddle was elected as the seventh colonel. He died in office in 1915. Colonel Biddle was a courteous gentleman who devoted his entire time to the Regiment, specializing in rifle practice.

In 1915 Charles T. Creswell became the eighth Colonel. He was a progressive officer and inaugurated a series of tactical walks for officers during the summer months. He commanded the Regiment when it assembled at Mount Gretna for muster into United States service for duty on the Mexican Border, but having just recovered from a serious surgical operation, failed to meet the standard required.

In July 1916, George E. Kemp was appointed ninth Colonel, commanding the Regiment on the Mexican Border.

The Third Pennsylvania Infantry entered the United States service in the World War, March 28th, 1917, and was assigned the duty of safeguarding the bridges, tunnels and canal locks west of the Susquehanna River. When one considers the mountainous condition of this section of Pennsylvania, the large number of railroads supplying the entire country with coal and the great number of industries in this region supplying the basic material for all kinds of war supplies the magnitude and importance of this task becomes apparent.

The Regiment left Philadelphia on the night of April 2nd, and as prearranged distributed the companies upon arrival the next morning.

The city of Altoona was selected as the place to establish Regimental Headquarters, it being considered a central point from which the administration of the Regiment could best be handled. The Supply Company and Sanitary Detachment were also located in Altoona.

The First Battalion Headquarters was established at Johnstown, together with Headquarters of Co. A. Patrols and detachments covered bridges and tunnels on the Pennsylvania Line from South Fork inclusive to Greensburg exclusive and Hog Back Tunnel south of Johnstown on the Baltimore and Ohio. Headquarters of Co. B was located at Greensburg, covering bridges, tunnels and ducts of the Pennsylvania Railroad west to Jeannette and south to Connellsville, and all bridges and tunnels in the vicinity of Connellsville. Headquarters Co. C was established at Blairsville, covering Pennsylvania Lines to Butler Junction. Headquarters Co. D was at Rockwood, covering bridges, tunnels, etc., of the B. & O. R. R., south of Johnstown to the Maryland State Line and extending west from Hyndman.

The Second Battalion established Headquarters at Clearfield, which was also the Headquarters of Co. E. Headquarters Co. F was located at Emporium and Co. G at Spruce Creek and Co. H at Denholm. The 18th Infantry, N. G. P., took over the northern section of the State May 1st, 1917 and Battalion Headquarters and Headquarters of Co. E was moved to Huntingdon and Headquarters Co. F to Newport. This Battalion covered the Spruce Creek and Gallitzen tunnels; The Aetna Explosive Company at Mount Union and all the bridges on the Pennsylvania Main Line to the Susquehanna River.

The Machine Gun Company was assigned to the Third Battalion for duty and with the Third Battalion was assigned to the Pittsburgh district, with their Headquarters at 1155 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh. Headquarters of Co. K and Co. L were also established in Pittsburgh.

Co. I guarded the main line of the B. & O. R. R. north of Pittsburgh. It had detachments at the two tunnels near Aetna; a tunnel on the Butler Branch of the B. & O. and bridges near Ellwood City. Its headquarters was at Ellwood City.

Co. K had detachments as follows: Tunnel outside of Union Station in Pittsburgh; Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Bridge over Allegheny at 11th Street, Pittsburgh; Bridge at Silver Lake near East Liberty; Bridge over Allegheny at Aspinwall; B. & O. R. R. bridge over the Allegheny at 33rd Street Pittsburgh and P. & L. E. bridge at Beaver.

Co. L had detachments as follows: Viaducts near Hayes Run and Beck Run on Monongahela Branch of P. R. R.; Pan Handle Bridge over Monongahela in Pittsburgh; Glenside Bridge of the B. & O. R. R. over Monongahela River at Hayes and Schenley Tunnel of B. & O. in Pittsburgh.

Co. M had detachments on six tunnels on the Wheeling Branch of the B. & O. R. R. Its headquarters was at Washington, Pa.

The Machine Gun Co. had detachments at P. R. R. Bridge over Turtle Creek near East Pittsburgh; Port Perry Tunnel; P. R. R. bridge over Monongahela River at Port Perry and Miller's Grove tunnel on B. & O. R. R.

When the 18th Infantry, P. N. G., was ordered into service it relieved us of all territory north of Pittsburgh and made readjustments necessary. Co. I & Co. C were wholly relieved and the detachments of Co. K at Aspinwall and Beaver were also relieved. Co. C took over from the Machine Gun Co. the bridge at Turtle Creek, Port Perry Tunnel and the Thompson-Monongahela Bridge and also placed a guard on the coal wharves at Duquesne and P. & L. E. Bridge at Homestead.

Co. I placed detachments at Dunellen tunnel and bridge at Carnegie on the Pan Handle; Union R. R. Bridge at Clairton and P. & L. E. bridge at McKeesport.

The Machine Gun Co. then took over the Ohio Connecting Bridge and viaducts at Woods Run and Brunots Island and two tunnels to the west; also bridge at McKees Rocks.

During the stay in this section of the State the Regiment took part in local celebrations, assisted the Regular Army with recruiting and helped train students at various schools in military formations. The Regiment was relieved from duty August 14th, and gave parades in Altoona, Huntington and Newport. The citizens of these towns declared a holiday in order that they might take part in the farwell celebrations, and it will long be remembered the treatment received by the ladies of Huntington and the various towns throughout this section.

The Regiment arrived in Phila. on August 15th and went into camp near 60th & Market Streets, which site was called Camp A. Merritt Taylor, remaining there until September 12th, 1917.

This period was used for recruiting, training the men and finishing the day's work with a Regimental Parade which attracted thousands of spectators, the number on Sundays and Holidays numbering as high as fifty thousand. The Regiment arrived at Camp Hancock, near Augusta, Ga., on September 15th. In accordance with orders the Division was reorganized and the Regiment was consolidated with the 110th Infantry, N. G. P., forming the 110th U. S. Infantry.

The following is the roster of officers of the Regiment when drafted into Federal Service, August 5, 1917:

CHAPTER I.

REORGANIZATION

Few military organizations have enjoyed the distinguished career of the Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry. Located in the South Western part of the Keystone State, for almost half a century it has called to its ranks the best of all classes of the sturdy people of that celebrated section.

Organized shortly after the Civil War, it interested many brilliant veterans of that mighty conflict, and is in reality the combination and continuation of several historical organizations recruited from this district, and whose exploits fill many of the most glorious pages of the history of the terrible days of the Sixties. Many of the towns and counties from which the Tenth came have enjoyed the distinction of fine military organizations for more than a century, which organizations were the forerunners of the companies of the present time. For example Company I can trace its history without a break to participation in the War of 1812. Company K's predecessors from all available records seem to have missed the War of 1812, but did participate in the Indian Wars of 1795 under "Mad" Anthony Wayne. Other organizations have similar thrilling records which have deathlessly enrolled the Tenth regiment in the life and action of the locality from which it comes. When mustered for the Spanish-American War it had within its membership many men who had won their spurs in the Civil War; when called for the World War it still retained the services of many men who had served in the Philippines. With such traditions to uphold much was expected of the "Old Fighting Tenth".

It was called to the colors July 15, 1917, and drafted into the Federal Service August 5, 1917. September 7th, it started for Camp Hancock, Augusta, Georgia. Immediately upon its arrival rumors were heard concerning the reorganization of the Pennsylvania Division. The table of organization had been changed and the number of infantry regiments in a division had been decreased from nine to four. The gossip was current that five regiments of infantry would be disbanded and the personnel used to enlarge the four retained regiments in order to comply with the new table of organizations. This rumor was soon confirmed and speculation was rife as to which would be the fortunate organizations to retain their identity.

A part of General Orders No. 88, W. D., dated July 11, 1917, is quoted as follows:

"The designation of regiments of the National Guard will show in parenthesis their present State designations, as, for example, Infantry (1st Me), Field Artillery (2nd Pa.), etc. The designations of regiments of the National Army will show in parenthesis the State from which each organization, or the bulk of it, was drawn, as for example (Minn.). No parenthesis implies Regular Army, an ordinal number and State abbreviation implies National Guard, a simple State abbreviation implies National Army."

September 22, 1917, Division Orders No. 14, were issued reorganizing the Seventh Division into the Twenty-Eighth Division. This plan retained the Tenth as one of the base regiments and designated it as the 111th. The base regiments were, First as the 109th; Third as the 110th; 20th as the 111th; 16th as the 112th. The Eighteenth Infantry was greatly disappointed over this arrangement and there was much talk and many "grape vines" concerning political maneuvers and on October 11, 1917, Division Orders No. 22 were issued. The tenth was still retained as one of the base regiments but was designated as the 110th (10th Pa. Inf.). The complete Division Order is as follows:

Colonel George E. Kemp of Philadelphia, former commander of the Old Third Pennsylvania, was made commander of the 110th Infantry, but he was ordered to the school for field officers and the real work of training and reorganizing the new regiment fell to Lieutenant-Colonel Henry W. Coulter. Colonel Coulter had served in the Philippines with the 10th Regiment and had been a field officer for many years. The exceptional training and high discipline of the organization when it landed in France was largely due to the hard work of this efficient officer. His efforts rightly gave him the rank of Colonel and command of the 110th, but the unwritten ruling of the War Department at the beginning of the war against giving National Guardsmen such rank, robbed him of the deserved honor. Just preceding the baptism of fire of the 110th at Conde-en-Brie he was transferred to another outfit in order that his organization and training ability might strengthen it. Like the true soldier that he is, he entered the work enthusiastically and gave his best efforts to the government. He was soon in command of his new regiment and proved a brave and capable commander rendering distinguished services until he was wounded on the Vesle September 5, 1918, and forced to remain many weeks in the hospital.

handling of the National Guard was a disappointment to those who believed in its worth. The General Staff concluded that the table of organization should be changed. The old Division was composed of nine regiments of infantry and the new plan called for four. The War Department ordered the Pennsylvania Division to comply with this plan and in so doing destroyed five regiments of Infantry.

The 1917 table called for 3750 officers and men while the previous table called for 2058 officers and men.

All the Pennsylvania Infantry regiments were backed by years of honorable service. For one to lose its identity was a great hardship and disappointment. The government was organizing many new infantry outfits at this time and nothing has yet occurred showing why the surplus officers, but these could have been eliminated and the organizations preserved, and thus the country would have had the use of many more regiments with traditions to uphold, which makes for a higher morale. The criticism of incompetent officers could be applied with equal force to the regular army, but National Guardsmen were charitable enough not to condemn the whole organization. It seems unfortunate that the table of organizations was changed just as the country was starting in the most gigantic war in which it had ever participated. The change of plan was not only detrimental to the National Guard, but it was equally so to the regular establishment. It made it necessary to change methods, which created uncertainty and a lack of confidence.

For a time there was friction between members of the Old Tenth and Old Third, but love of the new organization gradually eliminated the feeling and this was completely blotted out after the first great battle.

CHAPTER II.

LIFE IN CAMP HANCOCK

The regiment worked hard while in Camp Hancock, but also had time for pleasure. Major Thompson had charge of the entertainments and Chaplain Schall had general supervision of the morale work. The Chaplain received contributions from the Old Tenth towns from which he built the "Hut". This proved the center of all entertainments and the place where Major Thompson held his weekly exhibitions. These shows were largely attended and programs of clean and attractive entertainment were rendered. The Old Third turned over a movie outfit, a library and much athletic paraphernalia. Field meets and athletic contests, dances and other sources of amusement were held during the winter. At Christmas time the ladies of the Regiment arranged a community tree, and other diversions, which tended to eliminate the home-sickness that would naturally prevail at this season.

The schedule of training was intensive and covered all branches of military work, including trench construction, rifle practice and maneuvers. The work started early in the morning, the band arousing all long before the break of day with the notes of "Kahki Bill", which was known as Number Nine, and was very unpopular during the winter months, but later became a wonderful favorite with the boys and the band was forced to render it at every concert.

The government had not provided a satisfactory drill-field and immediately a fifty acre plot was secured from a private concern for the use of the Regiment. This was accomplished by a committee of officers without cost to the government. On this field was erected a large bayonet course, which Major Ryan of the British Army pronounced the most complete he had ever seen; and a system of trenches with command-posts, dugouts, etc., was also constructed and used for practice purposes. Each Company had its place on the drill field and it was so arranged that with the use of the daily schedule any officer could tell where any element of the regiment was training. While the training, teaching the soldier how to fight as a team, was in progress, no time was lost in an effort to inspire him with the sacredness of the American cause. Frequent periods were given over for lectures, when the whole regiment would be assembled, and some officer or prominent civilian would speak to the entire organization. Community singing was engaged in frequently and Miss Helen Battle, recognized as the finest singer in Georgia, often appeared on the field and led the men.

The training schedules were prepared by Major Martin and approved by Colonel Coulter. The following is one of the schedules, and is a sample of the work performed each week by the regiment during its training period:

be used by the Company Commander as he may deem best.

Singing Instructors will be given P. T. period whenever they appear on the field. Tuesday will be regimental day and all schools and other details will be excused in order to take part in the work.

Each man must be taught so he is able to recognize the following officers: The Division Commander and his Chief of Staff. The Brigade Commander and his Adjutant; the Regimental Commander and the Regimental Adjutant, and the Regimental Supply Officer; The Battalion Commander and his Adjutant; and all of the officers of the company.

Signalling under Lieutenant Smith will still continue. Instruction will be given in both Wigwag and Semaphore. Test in Semaphore to be conducted at six hundred yards and Wigwag one mile. Company Commanders will direct one Lieutenant to make test of the signal men from his company and report the same to Major Thompson by noon Friday.

During the organization's stay at Camp Hancock, Georgia, Wagoner John B. Nace, member of Supply Company, died from an operation for appendicitis and was given a burial with full military honors at his home in Derry, Pennsylvania. Private W. Solly, Company D, whose home was in Philadelphia, died at the Base Hospital. With the exception of these cases there was very little sickness, and considering the extreme winter and the further fact that the Regiment trained in all kinds of inclement weather shows the remarkable sanitary conditions maintained and the careful medical attention the soldiers received.

CHAPTER III.

LEAVE CAMP HANCOCK

The men were anxious to go across, and were impatient that the order did not come. Packing of equipment, etc., early in April, however indicated that the moving time would soon arrive.

The Regiment left Camp Hancock, April 24, 1918, but before leaving the camp it had worked strenuously for seven months, receiving the new combat principles evolved by the European War, and assimilating them with the American ideas of fighting, which had been learned in wars gone by. The work of the Regiment in Europe demonstrates how fitting it was to have this thorough training in America, for time and again, sergeants, corporals, and privates, assumed positions of great responsibility and performed the work so skillfully as to receive the highest commendation of their superiors and in many cases were cited for promotion. The discipline instilled at Camp Hancock never left the men even under the most trying and difficult circumstances.

The Regiment traveled to Camp Merritt by special trains via: Richmond, Washington City, Philadelphia and New York. The demonstration after entering the Keystone State was tremendous and elated the boys greatly.

The time was spent at Camp Merritt in receiving over sea equipment, passing final physical examinations and bidding good-bye to friends.

On the afternoon of May first the final review of the Regiment in the United States was held.

CHAPTER IV.

EMBARKED FOR OVER SEAS

On May 2nd, the Regiment moved from Camp Merritt to Hoboken by rail where it embarked on four ships controlled by the British Government, namely the Corsican, Demosthenes, The City of Calcutta, and Ansonia. Considerable time was taken in placing the men and officers on board the ships as each man was checked from the passenger list furnished, and when an officer or man went aboard he was not permitted to go ashore without a special permit. This care was taken in order to prevent enemies coming into our ranks. The following day all were on the high seas. The convoy consisted of fifteen ships and an escort, the total carrying capacity of the convoy being about thirty thousand men, or a little more than a complete combat division. The voyage lasted for fourteen days and weather conditions generally were very favorable and no submarines were sighted. Fog was quite prevalent during the nights, and on the night of the 14th, about 7:00 o'clock something went wrong with the condenser of the City of Calcutta, which made it necessary to stop and the ship's engine had to be closed down. She drifted awhile and finally lost momentum. The balance of the convoy was notified, but continued on its way. In about an hour and thirty minutes the condenser was repaired and the ship resumed its journey, overtaking the convoy before noon the next day.

When well into the danger zone the convoy was met by a large number of destroyers and while all felt comparatively safe it was with a feeling of great relief, that we sailed into the harbor at Liverpool.

During the last two or three days of the voyage we were in the most dangerous part of the submarine zone and every precaution was taken. Garbage, cigarette butts, paper, etc., were not allowed to be thrown overboard during the daytime, but collected in cans and dumped into the sea at night. No one was permitted to smoke on deck after sundown, all port-holes were closed and every person slept with his clothes on, with life preservers close at hand.

The First Battalion which was carried by the S. S. City of Calcutta debarked at Liverpool at noon, May 16th. The Battalion marched from the docks to the Grand Central Terminal, Liverpool, and then entrained for Dover, England, arriving at its destination at 2:30 A. M. May 17th. The troops were billeted for the night and the following day at 12:30 P. M. the Battalion marched to the docks and boarded the S. S. Onward for Calais, France, arriving in Port at 3:30 P. M., May 18, from which place the troops marched to Rest Camp No. Six.

CAPT. J. A. GRIFFEN and LIEUT. JOHN DAY.
LIEUT. GEO. L. ROAT.

At Dover it was dark, no lights being permitted on the streets and all shades were drawn to protect the city from air raids, and the rumble of the guns in Flanders could plainly be heard, and before leaving, the stern reality of war was brought more forcibly to all, by the unloading of a Hospital Ship filled with wounded men from France.

The Second Battalion, which was carried by the Corsican, debarked on the morning of the 17th. The Battalion was sent by train via London to Folkstone where it was billeted for the night and on the following morning went to Dover. On the afternoon of May 19th, the organization left Dover and arrived in Calais, France, at 7:30 P. M. of the same date and was immediately taken to rest camp No. Six.

The Third Battalion, which was carried by the Ansonia, debarked May 16th and entrained for Dover, England, (via Northwestern R. R.) arriving there at 12:00 o'clock mid-night the same date. Loaded on the ship Princess Elizabeth, on the 17th, and arrived at Calais, France, same date and hiked to English rest camp No. Six.

The Headquarters of the Regiment and the auxiliary units, which were carried by the Demosthenes, debarked May 17, 1918. Journey was made by rail to Folkstone, where they remained over night, and proceeded to Dover next day where embarkation was made for Calais, France, landing on May 18th and marched to rest camp No. Six. The billets at Folkstone consisted of hotels used before the war as summer resorts and were owned by Germans.

The trip across England was most delightful, it being a beautiful season of the year and the English farms showed to wonderful advantage. All along the line the troops were loudly cheered by the British people and American flags were profusely used in decorating the buildings.

CHAPTER V.

LAND IN FRANCE

At Calais the Regiment was assembled in rest camp No. Six, and in it were representatives of all the Allied Powers. It was a very disagreeable and inconvenient camp, but the troops were only kept there long enough to discard their extra clothing and equipment which had been so carefully issued before leaving the United States. "Rest Camp" is a misnomer and almost any other name would be more appropriate. The British did not seem to have enough ground upon which to erect the camp and the tents were grouped close together with narrow streets. Dirty bell shaped tents were used and were fortified by being sunk into the sand about two feet below the level of the ground. Owing to the large number in the camp, as many as two squads were in a tent and in order to get sufficient room the men slept with their heads toward the tent wall and their feet pyramided in the middle. While in the camp British gas masks were issued and English sergeants lectured on the horrors of gas. In addition to the cramped condition of the camp the thousands of feet continually stirred up the sand which was blown in great clouds and settled in the water, on the food and in the bed clothing to the thorough disgust of everyone. In this camp we were introduced to the English tea and jam.

CAPT. JOHN M. ROSE.
CAPT. WALTER J. SCOTT.

At Camp Merritt the Supply Department worked night and day in order that each man might have an extra uniform, extra shoes, underwear, socks, etc. This extra equipment along with many treasured personal articles were packed in barrack bags. It was indeed a great disappointment to the men in being deprived of these extra articles. Many expensive presents had been given to the soldiers in order that they might enjoy some of the comforts of home. These personal articles could be placed in barrack bags, stored in government houses and later be called for. Few, however, availed themselves of this opportunity and they were lost. When the discarding was finished each man had an extra suit of underwear, two pairs of socks and toilet articles.

A couple of weeks later the officers were ordered to discard their extra equipment. An official bulletin was issued before the troops left Camp Hancock, directing that each officer possess certain equipment and clothing before he would be permitted to go overseas. In the American Army officers must purchase their own equipment. The equipment required, cost several hundred dollars and in many cases among the younger officers was a considerable burden. The list contained such things as white shirts, collars and cuffs, articles which no leader of "dough boys" would ever be called upon to use. All extra clothing, bedding, etc., were discarded when in the first billeting area.

The loading up of the officers and men with this equipment before leaving the United States was quite a hardship, and was probably the error of a desk soldier, and not that of a practical campaigner.

While at Calais the troops had their first bombing experience, although suffering no casualties. The hum of the German aeroplanes, the plying of search lights and the barking of the anti-air craft guns, was the signal for the American boys to come out and observe what to them at that time was only a picturesque display. A little later, however, the men appreciated the great danger of the bombing planes, and took shelter along with their comrades among the Allies. From this time on until the close of the war the Regiment was never out of hearing of heavy artillery or out of danger from bombing or shell-fire.

CHAPTER VI

BRIGADED WITH THE BRITISH

The British at this time were being hard pressed as the Germans had made a powerful attempt to sever the British and French lines and push the former into the channel. Several American Divisions, among this number the 28th, were brigaded with British troops. Americans were armed with the British Enfield rifles and the Lewis machine guns. Training with these weapons under the supervision of British instructors was started at once. The Regiment was moved from Calais by rail, and the different units of the organization were placed in small villages.

Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters Company and Supply Company left Calais at 1:30 in the afternoon of May 21st and traveled by rail to Desvres where they disembarked about nine o'clock in the evening and marched to LaCalique. At the Desvres station the troops were met by an Irish bag pipe band and escorted to the billeting area.

The First Battalion departed for Calais Station where it entrained and proceeded to Lumbres, France, May 21st, 1918, the Battalion marched to Blequin, France. Rations, consisting of rolls and coffee, were served by the English. It entrained in box cars, the first experienced with the 40 Hommes ou 8 Chevaux.

The French military train was a revelation to the American soldiers who had been accustomed to the luxurious trains of the United States. The train consisted of a number of box cars and old third-class passenger coaches. The box cars had the floor covered with straw and as the men could lie down were really much more comfortable than the crowded third-class passenger coaches.

On May 22, the Second Battalion left Calais and went by train to Lumbres, and marched about eight kilometers to Senlecques, arriving there about midnight, May 23rd.

On May 20th, the Third Battalion hiked to Fontainebleau station and entrained, arrived at Lumbres 8:00 P. M. and hiked six and one-half miles to an English camp where it remained until the following morning, (May 21, 1918), and arrived at Lottinghen (nine miles) at 11:30 A. M.

This was our first introduction to French billets which consist of stables and other out-buildings. The British transport or wagon trains were turned over at this time and also the British field kitchens. The troops were fed the British ration which was not large enough in quantity to satisfy the American appetite. The American army is the best fed army in the world.

The 110th was assigned to units of the 25th Northumberland Fusiliers for training purposes. This division had been badly cut up in the German drive, but had many high class officers and men left who were used as instructors. The senior British officer assigned to the regiment was Colonel Lincoln, a brave officer of excellent reputation. He and all of his comrades faithfully worked in assisting us in grasping the new methods of war. The Regiment was located as follows: Headquarters and Headquarters Company at La Calique; First Battalion at Blequin; Second Battalion at Senlecques; Third Battalion at Lottinghen; Machine Gun Company at Henneveux. Colonel Coulter was in command of the Regiment. Captain Fish commanded the First, Major Martin the Second, and Captain Kline the Third Battalions. Majors Thompson and Anderson left the Regiment at Camp Merritt and proceeded to France to attend the school of the line and did not return to the Regiment until July 12th.

The Machine Gun Company was taken from the Regiment for training purposes and moved as follows:

The Company left Calais rest camp May 20, and proceeded by rail to Desvres, France, and from thence to Henneveux, France, where it went into training with the 108th Machine Gun Battalion. At Henneveux the Company was issued the Vickers Machine Gun and carried out the training schedule until June 1, 1918, when all Vickers guns and equipment were turned in. The instructors were sergeants from the British army.

The 28th Division was in reserve for the British, and rations were drawn for the Regiment from the British ration dump at Senlecques. The work of the Supply Company in this area consisted of rationing and equipping the Regiment, and the Company was separated into different units as follows: First Battalion Detachment in command of Lieutenant John M. Dilworth, who was assigned to this work on S. D. from Company D; Second Battalion detachment commanded by Lieutenant H. C. Braddock; Third Battalion detachment under the command of Lieutenant V. E. Dubs. Captain Gerard S. Bryce, commanded the Company and was Supply Officer, for the 55th Brigade.

While the Regiment worked extremely hard with the British as tutors, yet there was some time for diversion. In addition to British infantrymen there was located at Senlecques the 13th kite balloon outfit. On Sunday May 26th this organization put on a show and field meet and invited the men of the 110th to take part.

Market Wagon—Chateau Thierry, France.

The 110th band and the Irish bag pipe band of the 25th Northumberland Fusiliers furnished the music.

While in this area the Regiment assembled for a parade and review on June 2, it being the last held by the organization until the close of the war. It was given in honor of Major General Nicholson, commander of the British Division to which we were assigned. It was a wonderful sight. Held on a beautiful French meadow, surrounded by the French natives and British Tommies and looked upon from above by the scouting planes and within hearing of the great guns booming at the front, the splendidly trained Regiment never marched to better advantage. All of the transport, including the kitchen, took part in the review, and wagons were cleaned and horses groomed especially for the occasion. As the band played the National Anthem, the natives reverently uncovered and the British came to the salute. No one realized that it was to be the last parade for hundreds of those young Americans. As they marched past the reviewing officer, with firm step, they could not be blamed for being proud of their own organization, and of the great army to which it belonged.

After the parade the Regiment was assembled in a beautiful clover field dotted with red poppies and Chaplain Schall held services the first time since arriving in France. When the men returned to their billets they found awaiting them the first mail they had received since leaving the United States.

CHAPTER VII

ORDERED TO JOIN THE FRENCH

The danger on the British front seemed to subside and as the French were standing with their backs against the walls north of Paris, the Regiment along with other American troops, June 9, started by marching in the direction of the railroad. Before starting the march, the British rifles were exchanged for the old American rifles, which had been turned in a few days before at Calais. The Lewis machine guns were also turned in to the British.

Regimental Headquarters and Headquarters Company left La Calique at one o'clock in the afternoon of June 9, marching to Ergny; June 10 the march was continued to Coupelle Vieille where the troops rested for the night, and on June 11th halted in a beautiful forest near the town of Hesdin.

June 9th, the First Battalion marched to Rumilly and billeted for the night. June 10th, the Battalion marched to Ergny and bivouaced for the night. June 11th, resumed march and proceeded to Hesdin (La Fone Forest) and bivouaced in the beautiful and historical forest of Hesdin, with the remainder of the Regiment. June 12th, marched from La Fone Forest to Blequin railway station. Distance covered from Blequin to Hesdin, twenty-one miles. June 12th, Battalion entrained at Hesdin and proceeded to Trilport and detrained June 13th and proceeded by lorries to Vinanates, arriving at 2:30 A. M. June 14th.

June 9th, the Second Battalion left Senlecques and proceeded by marching to Ergny, a distance of seven miles, where the Battalion was billeted for the night. On the morning of June 10th, march was continued to Rimboval and the following day (June 11,) to La Fone Forest, near Hesdin. On the morning of June 12, Battalion marched to Hesdin station, a distance of two kilometers, and entrained at 8:00 A. M. Detrained at Trilport at 2:00 A. M., June 14th and proceeded via trucks to Juilly, where it followed a training schedule till June 22, 1918.

The Third Battalion started hiking from Lottinghem June 9th, at 1:00 P. M. and arrived at Wicquinghem where it billeted for the night. Started hiking next morning (June 10th), 8:00 A. M. and arrived at Coupelle Vieille at 2:30 P. M. where it billeted. Left Coupelle Vieille at 8:00 A. M. and arrived at Grand Forest (near Hesdin) at 3:00 P. M. June 13th, entrained at Hesdin Station 4:30 P. M. Arrived at Febley June 14th, and was taken by trucks to Nantouillet, and hiked from Nantouillet to St. Mesmes, arriving there about 5:30 P. M.

On June 9, 1918, the Machine Gun Company left Henneveux, France, and proceeded by marching to Campagne where it billeted for the night. On June 10th, the march was continued, halting at night. On June 11th, the company marched to Hesdin woods. Two days later, the Machine Gun Company proceeded by marching to Hesdin where it entrained for Trilport.

At Nantouillet the Machine Gun Company was issued the Hotchkiss machine gun and underwent a course of training, given by French instructors. This was an entirely new gun to the company and was used throughout all the action in which the company participated. It was found to be very heavy and clumsy but proved at all times its dependability.

• Cheveaux ou 40 Hommes—used as hospital car.

June 11th, the Regiment was at Hesdin woods, encamped together for the first time since its arrival at Calais. The roads were good and the men were in perfect physical condition, and the march was rather pleasant. Although carrying heavy packs there was no straggling. The men made every effort to make the march as enjoyable as possible. As an example, Company B marched almost the whole distance to the music of "Skinny" McNease's violin and Cerasoli's guitar.

The two days spent in Hesdin forest were most delightful. It is one of the great timber preserves of France and it is looked after by the French people with the greatest of care. The underbrush had all been cleared away and it was a very comfortable camping place. Officers and men were sheltered by the little "pup" tents and it was a beautiful camp as it was staked off with considerable care as to alignments, etc. The whole Regiment stood retreat and the band gave several concerts.

It required eight trains to carry the Regiment. A French military train usually consists of old thirdclass passenger coaches, box cars, etc., but on this particular occasion each train also had several flat cars and horse cars as each organization carried its transport with it. Each car had printed on it "Hommes 40 Chevaux 8", but they were greatly crowded. The trains carrying the Regiment left at two hour intervals. The trip took about twenty-four hours, and the route passed through Paris.

The Regiment was stationed as follows: Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters Company and Machine Gun Company at Nantouillet; First Battalion Vivantes; Second Battalion Juilly; Third Battalion St. Mesmes. It was a beautiful country and the inhabitants were more intelligent than those of Northern France and were much more friendly toward the American troops. A large American hospital was located at Juilly and hundreds of wounded and gassed Marines were evacuated to this hospital. This and the little American graveyard, just inside the walls of the old French cemetery, brought home a stronger realization of war than the Regiment had yet felt. The 110th hospital corps assisted daily in the work and large details were frequently made from the men to assist in carrying the wounded and burying the dead. Many men volunteered to give blood to the wounded, who were in the hospital. The band gave many concerts for the patients and nurses.

The Regiment remained in this location, training under the supervision of the French until June 24th, when we again moved in the direction of the front. The men were moved by lorries belonging to the French government and driven by Chinese. The Regiment was placed at La Celle, Vendieres, L'Epine-Aux-Bois and Mont Dauphin. June 28th, the Regiment received its first pay in France. On June 30th, the Regiment moved by marching to Artonges and Bois Milan. We were now close to the front and within shell-fire and frequently saw fights between aeroplanes.

CHAPTER VIII

ORDERED INTO THE LINE

During all of this moving the Regiment never for a moment gave up its training, and was constantly assimilating things pertaining to the war, as actual fighting had taught it should be waged. Preparations were being made to celebrate the Fourth of July, the French consenting to join in the observance of the great American anniversary. During this time Colonel Kemp was in command of the Brigade and on July 3rd, Colonel Coulter went to the front lines for observation with the French, leaving the Regiment in command of Major Martin. At 1:50 o'clock on the morning of July 4th, orders were received by Major Martin to immediately place the Regiment in the trenches on the second line position. It was feared that the Hun would start a new drive for Paris, as it was his custom to initiate offensive operations on some great national holiday. Hurried orders were immediately issued and within a comparatively short time under total darkness the men were in line with heavy packs and ready to move to the front. Wagons were loaded, kitchens prepared, headquarters assembled, and all placed in readiness to move. The orders were to occupy the trenches south of Conde-en-Brie. The march was about seven kilometers and was made without a single rest. The officers urged the men forward faster and the men eagerly accepted the task without complaint and responded in the best spirit.

At about day-break the 110th men were seen to extend in long skirmish lines over the hills and across the broad valleys near Conde-en-Brie, and it was realized that if the Boche came he would encounter a new foe. About nine o'clock in the morning it was evident the emergency had passed and the men returned to their bivouac, but too tired and weary to enjoy any Fourth of July celebration and this feature of the proposed program for the day was abandoned.

It was now realized that it would be only a short time until the Regiment would occupy the position on this front. On July 6th a practice was taken over the same ground, but at 7:40 o'clock on the evening of July 8th, Colonel Kemp, who had returned to the Regiment, received an order to take up an active position. Brigadier General Darragh took command of the Brigade on the evening of July 3rd, but insisted on Colonel Kemp's retaining command until the emergency was over, and did not accept the responsibility until the troops were ordered back to their camp on the morning of the Fourth.

The Regimental Headquarters were established July 6th, at La Fosse Fme. The First Battalion was placed at Pargny as brigade reserve. The Second Battalion was placed in the trenches just south of Conde-en-Brie. The Third Battalion was placed in the trenches south of Conde-en-Brie and west of the Artonges-Conde road and known as the Confremaux sector. During this march shells passed over the troops but without serious results.

At this time the Marne River separated the French and German forces. The Third Battalion held the Confremaux Sector and had headquarters near le Hauche Fme. The Second Battalion held the Conde Sector and had headquarters at Maure-pas Fme. The special units were stationed along the hills at strategical positions. The Second Battalion was reinforced by two guns with personnel from the Stokes Mortar Platoon, together with two guns with personnel from the 37 m/m Platoon; the Third Battalion was reinforced by one gun with personnel from the 37 m/m Platoon, together with four guns and personnel from the Stokes Mortar Platoon. The Signal Platoon established telephone communications throughout the Regiment and with 55th Brigade Headquarters, and also with the 30th Infantry on our left and the 100th Infantry on our right. The men in the trenches were so placed that they had a diverging fire on the valleys which intersected at Conde-en-Brie. It was a superior tactical position, the original plan being that of the French engineers and completed by the Americans.

There was considerable shelling during this period but no casualties resulted until the 15th of July, with the exception of William Gray, an orderly to Major Martin, who was at that time observing with the French. He was the first casualty in the Regiment, and was officially presented with a wound chevron by the Brigade Commander.

CHAPTER IX

COMPANIES B AND C ON OUTPOST

On July 10th, Companies B and C under command of Captains Fish and Truxal were ordered to move to the outpost positions on the Marne River, with instructions to be under the command of the French Battalion Commanders of the 113th French Infantry.

These Companies arrived at their new positions during the evening and were assigned sectors the following day. Other American troops were also assigned to French regiments. The American platoons were sandwiched between French troops, along the south bank of the Marne River near a railroad track. This made a natural defensive position. During the day all men were withdrawn to the railroad but at night outposts were established on the bank of the river and frequent patrols were sent out in order to prevent surprise attacks.

The American officers could never understand the character of this order, which divided our troops into such small elements. They realized at once the seriousness of the situation. Our methods of fighting differ from those of the French and the difficulties of language made intelligent liaison impossible.

CHAPTER X

GREAT ATTACK OF JULY 15TH

On July 14th, an order was issued transferring Colonel Henry Coulter to the 109th Infantry, which he later commanded. This was a great disappointment to the officers and men of the Regiment, as all had great confidence in his ability and keenly felt the need of his services just as the Regiment was about to enter combat. Colonel Wallace Fetzter was assigned to the 110th Infantry. Major Thompson was located at La-Grange-Aux-Bois as an observer with the 113th French. Companies A and D were located near La Fosse Fme, the 110th headquarters. The Second and Third Battalions and special units still retained their original positions. This was the general situation of the Regiment on the evening of July 14th just preceding the last great attack ever made by the German forces. The Fourteenth is the patriotic French holiday, and the Huns evidently expected the Allies to be celebrating. The first guns of that great attack sounded a few moments before midnight and were soon answered by the Allied Arms. For hours the terrible artillery contest thundered along the sixty-nine mile front. At the time Companies B and C were receiving their only meal of the day. They were fed by bringing the rations up at night, Lieutenant Urban having charge of this work.

The cannonading kept up for several hours. The enemy sent over many gas shells which required the wearing of masks for a long period. The Americans and French had an excellent defensive position but the French troops dropped back, which left the flanks of our detachments completely uncovered. Our men, however, stood their ground with great bravery although the greater number were either killed, wounded or captured. The fury of the German barrage had never been equalled, but regardless of it and of the terrific onslaught of the infantry, official records disclose that not a German was permitted to cross the Marne in front of the American positions. It would be folly of course to say that the American troops checked and defeated the German Army, but it held it until the hard pressed French could reorganize. It also demonstrated to the French that the famous Prussian Guards could be defeated by the American Infantry. Many of the Americans were so confident of victory that they were greatly surprised when they found that they were completely surrounded by the Boche. They did not realize that their French comrades had retreated. One American Platoon had prevented the Germans from crossing the Marne by throwing hand grenades into the German boats. The artillery fire continued with unabated fury until almost daylight when the barrage lifted to permit the Infantry and machine gun men to advance. The Hun moved in his much-heralded mass formation and with a demonic yell pounced down upon his American enemy expecting to rush it from the field in mad disorder, but he was doomed to disappointment. Naturally there was more or less confusion owing to failure to comprehend the French language and the further disappointment that their Allies did not stand fast and fight. A further confusion resulted from the Boche appearing in French overcoats.

Officers and men alike acted nobly and an examination of the woods after the battle displayed the furious defense they had waged. Records later captured, showed the great confidence the Germans had in this advance, and the American units which stood like their own Rocky Mountains, completely destroyed these plans.

CHAPTER XI

MANY HEROIC DEEDS

Many skillful and heroic deeds were accomplished.

Captain Fish, Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Jones remained with their command and fought their way back. Captain McLain, an observer with the French, took over some American troops and gallantly assisted in holding one position after another until he was completely exhausted by reason of being severely gassed. Captain Truxal and Lieutenant Schell were both captured along with many of their men. Lieutenant Guy in a hand-to-hand skirmish was wounded and later treated in a German hospital where he died. Lieutenant Crouse, while coming to the rescue of some of his men, was killed. Lieutenant Graham, while observing, was severely wounded and taken prisoner. Capt. Linn of the medical staff attended to the wounded and finally got back to the American lines. He received the highest praise for his coolness during the engagement. Many individual feats of bravery were told by survivors of the fight. Sergeant Schiavo took possession of a deserted French Hotchkiss machine gun and used it with deadly effect on the massed Huns on the north bank of the Marne and only abandoned the post when it was no longer possible to fire. Vernon McKee continually reconnoitered the front after the Germans had crossed the river. Corporal Boyd S. Blinn took command of the automatic rifle squads and refused to surrender even when his crew had been practically wiped out. The last man to see Blinn was Robert McKinnis, who was himself wounded in the face, and evaded capture twice by shamming death. Later, wearing a German overcoat and helmet, he attempted to work his way through the enemy but two days later was made a prisoner. The Fourth Platoon of Company B went into the line on July 9th, and was to have been relieved the evening of the 14th. The barrage came down before the relief was completed. The plan called for five squads to be entrenched along the north bank of the railroad track. It was long after daybreak before the first Germans were discovered along the left flank of Company B. The automatic riflemen played havoc with the advancing Germans. Corporal Engle, having exhausted his ammunition, leaped from his pit and made for two Boche creeping upon him. He killed one with his pistol, but he was killed by the other. The balance of the automatic rifle teams fought till killed or captured.

About eight o'clock in the forenoon the position along the railroad track became untenable, and orders were given to withdraw. Lieutenant Jones, who was in command of the platoon, to make the relief, succeeded in retiring with his platoon. Sergeant John Snedeger took charge of twenty men and retired to a small wheat field, where they found cover and remained for orders from the rear. Lieutenant Graham, who was in charge of the platoon to be relieved, was wounded and captured before he could retire.

Lieutenant Guy, although wounded in the morning continued to fight along with Corporal Glaab, and Privates Anderson, D'Archangelo, Henry and Callahan. At five o'clock in the afternoon they found themselves entirely hemmed in by the Boche Artillery, which had been brought across the Marne River on a pontoon bridge. Their retreat being cut off all were taken prisoners. This is illustrative of the stubbornness of the American fighting.

Company C had its third platoon under Lieutenant Robert J. Bonner on the front line. Five automatic rifle squads were stationed in the line of outposts along the Marne with the main body behind the railroad embankment. The first and second platoons were in support in the woods north of the National Highway which parallels the railroad. Late, on the night of July 14th, Captain Truxal went to the front to make his regular inspection of the outposts, being accompanied by First Sergeant Martin L. Markel and Renato Geruto, an interpreter. On his way back the barrage came down, which was perfectly placed, but in spite of the terrific hail of steel, the platoon held its position until daylight when it was found that the French on either flank had retreated. Captain Truxal was confident that the enemy had not only been prevented from crossing at the particular point, but had been checked along the whole line. A runner, however, sent to the support platoons came back with the report that Boche were then passing through the woods on the right flank. Preparing to meet this emergency, Captain Truxal was surprised to find that the enemy had filtered through under the cover of darkness and was then in his rear with numerous machine guns. The platoons faced the rear and fired into the ranks of the enemy, but was forced to surrender to superior numbers. Two men, however, Corporal Herbert P. Jones and Lawrence Hartle, who had been buried when a shell filled their trench forced their way out of the debris and opened fire. For ten minutes they continued the unequal battle, the Germans repeatedly charging the stronghold with flame throwers in the van. Both men were captured after being wounded and knocked unconscious with rifle butts. Captain Truxal had been having another battle on the extreme right. Cut off by the barrage he rallied what men he could find, including the ration party, which had just gone up with a hot meal. Sergeants McIntyre and Markel were with him.

As early as eight o'clock the Germans were bringing light artillery across on a pontoon bridge near Courthiezy and Boche telephone men were laying field wires.

Much has been written in magazines concerning the work of certain American soldiers, but none is superior to that of Sergeant Martz of Company C. The cool and deliberate manner of this young soldier is remarkable. The report of his work was verified by Major Thompson.

CHAPTER XII FROM OFFICIAL HISTORY OF COMPANY B

On July 14th, Bastille Day, a great celebration was held by the French, individually and otherwise. That night at sometime between 11:00 and 12:00 (there are a great many differences concerning the time, the balance of the Regiment, which was in reserve, states that twelve o'clock was the time, while the men in the front line state positively the time was eleven o'clock) the Germans started a terrific barrage using large caliber guns and also gas and shrapnel. The Third Platoon had been sent to the line of observation to relieve the Fourth Platoon, taking with them their own meal, and also the meal of the Fourth Platoon. They had just arrived on the line, removed their equipment and begun to eat, when the offensive commenced. Considerable machine gun fire was concentrated on the line of observation while the artillery barrage gradually lifted, crept up the hill and over the line of resistance. By that time the two platoons were in position awaiting the attack which usually followed the barrage. Sometime before daylight the Germans threw pontoon screens across the Marne under a heavy smoke screen which resembled a dense fog. The German troops proceeded to cross the river and our men drove back repeated efforts of the Huns to force their way up the bank of the Marne. The French, however, retreated, not as a body, but in small groups and failed to notify the Americans on either side of this movement. Consequently the Germans, following along the line of least resistance, gave up their efforts to cross the positions where the Americans were stationed and crossed the point whence the French had fled. In a short time the Company found Germans on all sides. Some were fighting on the flank, some with their backs to the Marne, but the front line held fast as Gibraltar.

FOURTH PLATOON

Expecting to be relieved by the Third Platoon about 10:30 P. M. the Fourth Platoon had started eating their evening meal, when the barrage opened. We immediately took our position with the Third Platoon, and received orders from Lieutenant Graham to fall back. At 1:30 we fell back across the railroad, and formed a new line with automatic rifles on either flank. Later we discovered the enemy had almost completely surrounded us. We immediately proceeded to make our way to the rest of the company, but soon found that it was a matter of outwitting the enemy and getting through the trap in which we were caught. We formed a circle in a wheat field, but our position was discovered almost immediately. Then we made our way by crawling from the wheat field to the woods and luckily found a weak point in the enemy line and pushed through it.

THIRD PLATOON

We had just taken over the position of the Fourth Platoon and the automatic rifle teams had been located on the bank of the Marne, when the Germans opened. The men immediately assumed their places and awaited the advance of the enemy which in a short time was observed advancing along the railroad tracks in our rear.

Evidently the troops on our flank had left the way open without any warning. The machine gun barrage was lifted and we were ordered to fall back to the road, about one hundred and fifty yards to the rear. Some of the men fell back to the road, others taking position on top of the bank stopped the enemy, but on account of the flanks being open with insufficient force to guard them, we were again compelled to retire, only to meet the enemy in the rear and thus we were completely surrounded. We then split up into small groups, and covered by the fire of some, we managed by alternately firing and retiring to fight our way through the lines.

SECOND PLATOON

About twelve o'clock the barrage covered the line of resistance. We took shelter in dugouts. At 4:30 A. M. the enemy was observed advancing on our position in the firing trenches and the battle began, which lasted about one hour when the French were observed retiring. About that time we received orders from Captain Fish to hold the line, which we did, nearly all our ammunition being exhausted. Having received orders to retire, we joined Headquarters platoon and the Captain. It was then found that we were flanked by the enemy. We took position with headquarters platoon and commenced firing; this fire lasted about fifteen minutes. Then we retired to a stronger position which had been prepared in the rear. We formed at right angles thus deflecting the enemy's maneuver to again flank us. This fighting lasted about forty-five minutes which sufficed to show the enemy that the position could not be flanked. Captain Fish asked the French Captain if he intended to hold. The French Captain said he would hold, but evidently he did not have full control of his men. The French fell back in small groups, and we were compelled to retire in order to keep our flanks from being exposed. An order was issued by the Colonel of the French Infantry to retire a short distance and there hold the line with the French, which was accomplished. The French officers evidently had control over their men by that time for they held until relieved by another Regiment of French Infantry.

FIRST PLATOON

We had just changed relief on guard about 11:45 P. M., and shortly after this, shelling commenced. All except the guards took shelter in dugouts and remained there until shortly before daylight. Sounds of fighting could be heard, but the firing of our artillery and the noise of bursting shells were so great that the exact direction from which the sounds came could not be determined. A skirmish line at right angles was formed and the machine guns were in position commanding the roads and the paths leading to the river. Lieutenant Guy had taken command of the platoon. A runner came down with an order from Lieutenant Hayman for the men to retire. A patrol was sent forward to ascertain the conditions. The patrol returned with the information that the Germans were advancing in the rear of our forward lines in great numbers. In the meantime, Sergeant Walter Roth had gone back to the P. C. for verification on the order to retire, and was not seen afterwards. Our position was covered by a severe harrassing fire. We then proceeded toward the Marne, it being impossible to retire as ordered. We took an easterly direction and ran into a large force of the enemy which assumed an attitude of surrender. Lieutenant Guy, carrying a rifle, advanced toward them, and one of the Germans, who had a pistol concealed in his hand, shot the ahead of us for about one-fourth of a kilometer where they joined a larger force. The fighting continued at this place until two P. M., when the enemy retired. We then endeavored to join the balance of the company. Those who were able to walk proceeded up the banks of the river until we came to a battery of German light artillery, where we changed our direction moving closer to the stream, hoping to be able to move in a circle and rejoin the company. About 3:30 we decided to rest the wounded until darkness fell, but got a surprise from the enemy—we discovered we were completely surrounded and were prisoners of the Germans. The majority of the wounded men were carried to the rear by French prisoners.

COMPANY HEADQUARTERS

On the 14th, after the evening mess had been distributed, Captain Linn (of the Medical Corps on duty with the two companies) and Lieutenant Gee (of Company A on duty for observation and instruction) went down to the advanced position and returned about midnight when the barrage reached that position. The continual firing of the French guns located immediately to the rear rendered it impossible to hear sounds of fighting on the banks of the river. For some reason no word was sent back from the advanced positions. The officers and men took cover in the dugouts. Later Lieutenant Guy was sent to the first platoon to assist Lieutenant Hayman and ascertain just what the conditions were. Ammunition was started forward. Lieutenant Gee started back to Battalion Headquarters to report conditions and secure reinforcements.

KITCHEN AND COMBAT

The kitchen and combat limbers were located at St. Agnan. A small detachment of men was at Pargny with the rest of the battalion under command of Captain Hartland. At 6:00 A. M. the barrage was steadily creeping over the hill, preceded by many French soldiers. Major Thompson ordered the kitchen and limbers moved back, and at 7:30 the movement was started. The barrage, by that time, was in the town, and upon the road over which the transport had to travel and was there held for quite a while in an endeavor, on the part of the enemy, to retard the advance of the reserve in the second line. The kitchens and combat limbers were sent out one by one. Lieutenant Urban, after everything was out, mounted his horse and followed. He had gone about two hundred yards when a shell passed immediately in front of him and struck a building, exploding and enveloping him in smoke and debris. After the smoke and dust had subsided it was found that he had been wounded by a large shell fragment.

CHAPTER XIII

FROM OFFICIAL HISTORY OF COMPANY C

On the night of July 8th, Lieutenant Bonner with the Third Platoon was moved down to the river bank and took over about five hundred yards of the front line. The men were placed in small groups about twenty-five yards apart and maintained liaison on both flanks with the French by a patrol. The second line was in a similar location from fifty to one hundred yards in the rear behind the railroad track. These men took their positions at night and withdrew before daybreak to eat and sleep. The left of the platoon was at Savigny and extended eastward. About five hundred yards in the rear the remainder of the company was in position. The First Platoon under the command of Lieutenant Crouse on the right, the Second Platoon under the command of Lieutenant Schell on the left. The Fourth Platoon under Sergeant Robert A. Floto in rear of the First about two hundred yards.

Food was brought up in the rolling kitchens at night and distributed to the different platoons. Lights were not allowed nor fires of any kind during the day. Men were not permitted to show themselves. Our artillery was exceedingly active every night throwing over many shells, but the enemy contented himself with five or six each evening.

At about midnight of July 14th, the enemy opened up his barrage, which continued approximately six hours. Again and again he attempted to cross the river in front of the third platoon but as fast as he launched his boats they were sunk by the outpost, using hand grenades. The occupants were either killed or drowned. Finally the automatic-rifle squads received orders to open fire on the enemy, which in darkness had gathered on the opposite side of the river. The effect of this fire was not known until daybreak, when large numbers of the enemy were found dead along the bank of the stream. The enemy then retired from this front and made no further attempt to cross the sector occupied by this platoon. All was quiet until the break of day, when suddenly a heavy fire was opened in the rear. Astonished, the platoon turned, and found that the enemy had crossed on the flank in large numbers. With their backs to the Marne they opened fire on the enemy, fighting in this manner for some time, when suddenly the enemy began pouring over the railroad. A hand-to-hand conflict took place but was of short duration, as out numbered five to one, and with reserves pouring in, the entire platoon was wiped out. All were either killed or taken prisoners.

Captain Truxal, who had been visiting the outpost on the river, was caught in the barrage near the Headquarters of the French Company, at the edge of Courthiezy. These headquarters were in communication by telephone and runners with the French battalion to which the Company was attached. Here Captain Truxal would get the news first handed from the Third Platoon, and take the necessary action should the enemy succeed in penetrating the lines of the Third Platoon.

The kitchen force and carrying party of the Third Platoon located in the vicinity were gathered together and put in position along the road from Dormans to Paris, using the bank of the road for cover. Five hundred yards of the front were patrolled all night to see that the enemy did not get through. To the right rear, company after company of the enemy could be seen going up the valley towards St. Agnan, while wave after wave of Infantry were attacking the platoons in the rear.

The execution of the auto-rifles and the machine guns was terrific and the enemy in front of the Company in the woods was literally mowed down and cut to pieces.

It was about this time that a German came too close and was taken prisoner. From him we learned that the enemy had crossed in large numbers at Dormans at 2:00 A. M., and by this time (8:00 A. M.) was about four kilometers in the rear. Suddenly machine guns opened up on both flanks of the small party at Courthiezy and the next moment a battalion of the enemy appeared out of a street of Courthiezy, and was within twenty five feet of us before it was discovered. At this time in the direction of Dormans, the light artillery of the enemy had crossed and was already in the rear of the Company.

The experience of the three platoons in the woods was not unlike that of the platoon on the river. They took care of the enemy in front, as stated above, when finally in the dense woods they were fired upon from the rear. Lieut. Crouse, hearing the shots, with Private William

Zimmerman ran down the road, rifles in hand, where they were both shot, at close range, and instantly killed. The platoon immediately turned and those not killed or wounded fought their way back to the Fourth Platoon's position. Here Lieut. Schell, assisted by Captain McLain of Company F, 110th Infantry, who was on an observation tour, gathered together the remnants of the Company, and, learning that the enemy was in the rear turned and went back. They advanced to a wheat field without serious opposition, when without warning, machine guns opened up on both sides, cutting them up very badly. Lieut. Schell was wounded and put out of action, while the men continued fighting their way out. The fight was short but bloody. Corporal Alvey Martz with a pistol killed seventeen of the enemy and wounded others. Twenty-five fought their way out and back to the regiment, and the rest were wounded and taken prisoners.

The cause of the heavy barrage was indeed manifest when the men who were taken prisoners and could walk, crossed the Marne and saw hundreds of trench mortars, machine guns, and ene-

-pounders, placed in echelon along the Marne, some within fifteen yards of the river bank, while every depression further back concealed the heavy artillery. The barrage of the machine guns was direct on the Paris road, and the roar of the exploding shells was so intense that the report of the machine guns could not be heard.

There were two hundred and ten men present at the opening of the battle, eleven of whom with Lieut. Urban were at St. Agnan with the kitchen, and thirty-six returned to the organization; forty-eight were killed or died of wounds, sixty-eight men were wounded, and a total of one hundred and twenty-six taken prisoners. The prisoners include practically all of the wounded men. Lts. Schell, Urban and Bonner were wounded, Lieut. Crouse killed and Captain Truxal, Lts. Schell and Bonner taken prisoners.

CHAPTER XIV

REGIMENT HOLDS

While the terrific fighting was taking place in the woods to the south of the Marne the companies of the Second and Third Battalions were eagerly waiting an order to go forward where they could have a more intimate part in the great battle. The orders, however, were to hold, and at frequent intervals patrols were sent out to ascertain the exact movement of the enemy. Sergeant Lightner passed through the French and was within the German lines and brought back to the Regiment authentic information as to the position of the enemy, and also our ally, the French.

On the morning of July 15th, a constant stream of panic-stricken French were rushing to the rear and for a time it looked as if the whole line would give away. Major Martin directed Lieut. Kennedy to take charge of a guard and to inform the French that they must return to the front. Over 1300 were sent back into action. Along the American line were numerous batteries of French 75s and 155s, which, hour after hour, bombarded the German lines. The enemy replied with battery work, but our losses were very small. It has since been learned from the Americans taken prisoners by the Boche that the French artillery played havoc with the German ammunition dumps and trains.

One shell hit a dugout in which a squad of machine gun men were quartered and all were killed. In this number was First Sergeant Frank M. Downer, who served with the 10th Regiment in the Philippines. His long military experience made him an exceptional man for this important organization.

A shell also hit in Company A, as the Company was marching into position, instantly killing four men and two more died enroute to the hospital, and wounded fourteen, among the killed being Sergeant John W. Carrick.

LIEUT. COL. JOHN W. WOODEND.
CHAPLAIN CHARLES SCHALL.

For five days the Regiment remained in this position and the shattered remnants of B and C came back and were assembled at Artonges. They had met the bitterest attack ever attempted by the Germans and they assisted in repulsing it with great credit to American arms. At the end of the first week of fighting the Regiment found it had lost fifty-five killed, seventy wounded, and two hundred and twenty-seven missing. Of the latter it was soon found that many had made the supreme sacrifice.

The counter attack had been made and the Boche were defeated. The morale of the French instantly increased. The American loss had been frightfully heavy but it had set a new example to the French. The Boche were now all north of the Marne River and were slowly retiring in the direction of the Vesle.

On the night of July 16-17, 1918, the 110th Band went to the aid of the 109th Infantry as stretcher bearers. The 109th Infantry was being hard pressed at this time and was engaged in a strenuous battle near St. Agnan. The Regiment was having more casualties than its own organization could take care of.

Lieutenant Gee of Company A and Lieutenant Edward Taylor of Company K were in the front line, as observers, and both were captured but performed fine service before they were surrounded by the Boche.

CHAPTER XV

MOVE FROM CONDE

Patrols under Major Thompson, Chaplain Schall and Captain Zundell went into the woods South of the Marne to assemble our dead and bury them on the field. The work was not entirely completed when an order was received for the 110th to move elsewhere. On the evening of July 23, the 55th Brigade was directed to reach Essises, a distance of approximately eight miles. It was a great relief to the men to get away from the locality of Conde. Military men detest a holding position unless properly sheltered by dugouts and a trench system.

On the morning of July 24th, the Regiment moved to La Canairderie Fme, which is three miles North of Charly and about twelve kilometers west of Chateau Thierry. At this camp four hundred replacements were received and they were assigned to Companies B and C. Much maneuvering was being done at this time for position and at day break, July 26th, after a one days rest orders came for the Regiment to move by the way of Chateau Thierry to St. Eugene. St. Eugene is only two miles North of Conde, the place the Regiment was located the week preceding, and was reached early in the evening.

With only a few hours rest the foot-sore soldiers were again in motion and while there had been many grumbles during the former marches yet on this occasion both officers and men moved forward with great glee for they were now headed northward in the direction of the enemy and all hoped that they would have an opportunity to repay him for the damage he had done in the unequal fight of a few days before.

The orders came at two o'clock in the morning and in a short time the column was moving. The Marne was crossed at Mezy three hours later.

The weather was rainy and the roads in an almost impassable condition, but regardless of these dire difficulties the Regiment made a splendid march and was at its position several hours ahead of schedule. The troops bivouaced in the Foret de Fere and received a hot meal, the last which could be furnished for several days. It was difficult for the men to rest as they were surrounded by heavy calibre guns, which were constantly bombarding the enemy lines along the Ourcq River.

CHAPTER XVI.

PREPARE FOR ANOTHER BATTLE.

On the afternoon of July 27th, Colonel Kemp, Majors Martin and Anderson and Captain Boyle were directed to make a reconnaissance of the position held by the 156th Regiment of French and to make plans for the relief of this organization during the night. It was almost midnight before the troops started the march to make the relief and those taking part will never forget that night. It had been raining for two days and the roads were not only congested, but they were also a sea of mud. Heavy artillery and transports sunk in the mud up to the hubs and disputed the right-of-way with the Infantry. The French, who had been relieved, were hurrying to the rear and the American dough-boy, heavily laden with ammunition and food, was straining every nerve to get forward. Intermittent shelling by the enemy increased the confusion of the hour. It was pitch dark and occasional flashes of lightning was the only illumination and the foot-sore and weary soldiers, forced to the trails through the woods, were exerting every effort to keep in touch with the men in front of them. Finally, the relief was completed about daylight with the Third Battalion in a position just north and west of Courmont; the Second Battalion was in the edge of the village of Courmont; the First Battalion was in reserve in the woods two kilometers west of Courmont, and Regimental headquarters were placed at Fresnes.

The Germans had skillfully prepared a position along the hills north of the Ourcq River. In this terrain there rises a slope of twelve hundred yards in the direction of Cierges Hill and marked on the military map 212. The crest of this hill was covered by a dense woods known as Grimpettes Woods. Along the edge of the woods on the hill the enemy had cleverly concealed innumerable machine guns and a trench system had also been constructed, and every approach from the river had been skillfully covered by light artillery. The position had been prepared so carefully in order to delay the approach of the American troops until the German army could retire with all its equipment to the Vesle river, fifteen kilometers further north. The Regiment made six attacks on this hill before it was finally successful and these attacks cost in casualties more than eleven hundred men.

The hill side south of Grimpettes Woods was clear of all protection, except some clusters of trees and a sunken road about five hundred yards up the slope which later was utilized to great advantage by the advancing American troops.

Deadly fighting occurred during every attack. The men responded wonderfully, but team work was lacking, and the artillery support insufficient. The Regiment on our right would move and receive an enfilading fire from our front. The same would result from their front when we were directed forward.

The French had given little information concerning the terrain, position of the enemy, or anything else which would be of advantage to the American troops. They informed us that it would be impossible to ford the Ourcq River and that it was fifteen or twenty meters wide and four or five meters in depth. It was later found to be nothing more than a small rivulet which could be stepped across at most places. Sergeant

Lightner, in charge of the Intelligence section of the Second Battalion, was directed to make a reconnaissance of this river and report the kind of a bridge required. After being gone for two hours, he reported to Major Martin, tired, perspiring, and his uniform torn, and stated that he could not reach the river owing to the severe fire from the enemy. The Sergeant did not have a map in his possession and had stepped across the stream and, not recognizing it as sufficient in size to be dignified with the name of a river, had almost entered the German lines in carrying out his search.

On Sunday morning July 28th Major Anderson's Companies established a line across the Ourcq river, but were forced to retire early on account of heavy fire from enemy machine guns.

At 1:00 P. M. the Second Battalion, moved from the town and down the slopes towards the Ourcq River in small combat groups. The crossing of the river was made without trouble and, after effecting the crossing, the Battalion formed for attack. The attack commenced immediately without artillery preparation.

The lines advanced until about three hundred yards from the enemy, when fire was first opened by the Germans. With his infantry and machine guns he put down an almost impregnable wall of fire. The advancing lines halted and endeavored by crawling on the ground to work under this deadly resistance, but most of the men were at all times exposed. The lines, finally, were forced to retire.

During the morning of July 28th Regimental Headquarters at Fresnes were blown up and Lieut. Colonel Fetzer and several orderlies were killed.

Colonel Fetzer had only been with the Regiment a short time, but he had impressed all with his high ideals and was greatly admired by both the rank and file. He was originally second in command of the First Cavalry, one of Pennsylvania's finest organizations, which was destroyed by War Department directions. Few officers have ever so favorably impressed the Regiment in so short a time as Colonel Fetzer.

On Monday morning, July 29th, the Third Battalion attempted to take Hill 230, but advanced a short distance when it was held up by intensive machine gun fire along with artillery fire, which forced a retreat to the old positions.

At daylight of the same morning the Second Battalion moved toward Grimpettes Woods. Company G and Company E were the leading companies.

It was necessary to go down into the valley, cross the Ourcq River and advance up the face of the long sloping hill. The whole movement was under the observation of the enemy, who pounded our lines with shell fire and raked the fields with their machine guns in our front and on our flanks. Company G was under the command of Captain John R. Dunkel, while Lt. Charles R. Rowan and Lt. Harry Traphoner, Jr., commanded the first and second platoons respectively, and led the advance. Lt. Thomas Massey and Lt. Robert S. Krause commanded the third and fourth platoons respectively in the support line. Company G got to a point within one hundred yards of the edge of the woods, but had suffered heavy casualties, and, due to the general situation, it was impossible to advance further, and they were ordered to retire. The following men were killed in this action: Pvt. 1st Class Bernard E. Faneau, Pvt. 1st Class Riley A. Walker, Pvt. 1st Class George H. Briggs, Pvt. 1st Class Harry D. Chilcote, Pvt. Clark Stewart, Pvt. Raymond F. Jacobs and Pvt. Jose L. Madrid.

Company E in command of Captain Zundell had the east of the line. The platoons were commanded as follows: second platoon in command of Lt. Cort; third platoon in command of Lt. Kennedy and fourth platoon in command of Lt. Stevenson, forming the assault, while the first platoon in command of Lt. Lynch was in support. In the face of heavy fire the company worked its way to a position where hand-to-hand combat took place. Lieut. Stevenson was here instantly killed by a Boche "potato masher" and the following enlisted men were killed by machine gun and rifle fire: Corporal Herbert Stuck, Corporal Thomas P. Grinnan, Private Thomas Walsh, Private William Fous, Private Floyd Brookman, Private John Hesgoda, and Private Fred Cree, and Corporal Michael Cohen.

The manner of the death of Lieutenant Stevenson is in dispute, the official history of Company E states he was killed by a hand grenade, while others state he was killed by a bullet. All agree, however, that the Lieutenant was in the thick of the fight and gallantly leading his men.

Company E penetrated the wood farther than any other company of the Regiment until the successful attack was made and the ridge carried. The company retired to a position north of the Ourcq River at 9 A. M.

The work of Lieuts. Cort and Kennedy received the highest praise from the men they led.

At five o'clock on the evening of July 29th Major Martin was handed a brief note directing him to take command of the Regiment. He took with him Adjutant Pierce and several of the trained orderlies. Regimental Headquarters were immediately moved to Courmont. Captain Aiken was placed in command of the Second Battalion. The Regiment had been given inadequate artillery preparation and support and in addition the infantry commands had not been moving in unison. Major Martin, the new Regimental commander, demanded proper artillery preparation and that all lines move at the same time. Through the efforts of General Muir, the commander of the 28th Division, this was accomplished.

CHAPTER XVII.

TAKE CIERGES.

At 2:30 P. M., July 30th, the sixth and final attack on the hill was started. After a sweeping artillery fire had almost completely demolished the woods, the long line of infantry moved slowly forward closely following the barrage.

Regimental headquarters had but little time to prepare for the final attack. The Regiment was between the 42nd and 32nd Divisions, and the plan called for all to move together. The attack order arrived at 1:50 P. M. Major Martin immediately dispatched officers to inform the different units of the part they would take in the attack. These verbal instructions were later confirmed by written orders. The standing barrage had already started when the battalion commanders had received complete instructions.

The following order was issued:

Headquarters 110th Infantry,
American Expeditionary Forces.

FIELD ORDER NO.

COURMONT.

Map: SOISSONS, S. E.-33

1. The position of the enemy remains unchanged. Our patrols have established that he has added many more machine guns and artillery in Grimpettes Woods. The 127th Infantry of the 32nd Division is on our right. The 168th Infantry of the 42nd Division is on our left.

2. This Regiment will attack at 2:30 P. M., its objective being Hill 212 south of CIERGES. The general direction will be north. The eastern boundary of the sector will be a line practic-and roll, advancing one hundred meters each four minutes.

5. Evacuations remain the same.
6. Trains will remain the same.
7. Regimental P. C. the same.

Edward Martin,

Major, 110th Infantry, AEF.

In many of the preceding attacks the orders were not received at Regimental headquarters until after zero hour had passed, so the organization was accustomed to work rapidly and not to get excited over orders which were impossible to obey.

As an example of impossible orders the following are cited: Orders were received before the Regiment left its bivouac to relieve the French, to attack the enemy with bayonets, and the time set had already passed, and the organization was several kilometers from its position. The Regiment had scarcely reached its place in line along the Ourcq when an order was received to attack. The time named was 3 A. M., and the order was received at exactly that hour.

On the morning of the 29th an attack order was delivered at 3 o'clock and the advance to ally north and south from point where RONCHERS-CIERGES Road intersects with the Ourcq River and Hill 230. The western boundary, is a line where the COURMONT-CIERGES Road intersects with the Ourcq River and the MAISON Fme.

3. (a) The 3rd Battalion, Major Anderson, will attack on the left of our sector, extending to the western edge of Grimpettes Woods, the general direction being east of north and flanking the woods.

(b) The 1st battalion, Major Thompson, will direct one company to attack the front of Grimpettes Woods, direction being due north.

(c) The 2nd Battalion, Captain Aiken, will act as "clean up" battalion and look after the flank and liaison.

(d) The balance of the 1st Battalion will be in reserve.

(e) Machine Gun Company, thirty-seven m/m's and Trench Mortars, will report to Major Anderson.

4. At 2:10 P. M. there will be an artillery preparation of twenty minutes and at 2:30 P. M. when the attack is to begin the barrage will lift start at 3:40. On the morning of July 30th an attack order was received at 2:50 with directions to jump off at 3:40.

The last attack was well planned, although there was scarcely any time after the order was received, and the plans were marveously executed. The plan of battle was for one company to advance in a frontal attack, and for a battalion to hit the woods by a turning movement on the flank. The latter work was left to Major Anderson. Major Anderson used the trench mortars under Lieut. Hoard to great advantage in assisting the artillery barrage. Captain Boyle so skillfully and courageously placed his machine son's Battalion, and he was also assigned the special units. The whole movement was to be covered by an artillery and machine gun barrage. The plan met the enthusiastic approval of Gen. Muir, who came to Major Martin's headquarters to talk over the situation.

In the previous attacks some paralyzing losses had been sustained. Company K. of Waynesburg, Pennsylvania, on the afternoon of July 29th had forty-one men killed.

guns that the German prisoners pronounced it the most deadly barrage they had experienced during the War. The signal platoon functioned so well that Regimental Headquarters were in perfect communication with Battalion Headquarters during the greater part of the battle, although the shelling by the enemy was so terrific that scarcely a whole building was left in the village of Courmont. Lieut. Foss, although badly wounded, received a message by ground

LIEUT. WM. J. HOUSTON.

When the order for the final attack came, the men were so thoroughly exasperated that many wounded who were ordered to the rear took off their diagnosis tags and returned to the line. In this final attack the Third Battalion and Company D of the First Battalion were in the front line with the Second Battalion in support and doing the mopping up work.

telegraphy giving report from the Third Battalion at a very critical point in the battle. Major McKee, Captain Sylvis and Captain McCutcheon, all performed valiant service in taking care of the wounded. Captain Sylvis and his detachment of the Second Battalion remained on duty late in the night of July 30th, until all of the wounded were evacuated, although relief had been ordered.

In the final assault, and the resisting of the German counter attack, the Regiment was nobly assisted by the 109th Infantry, and the 108th Machine Gun Battalion. During this battle the Commander of the 109th had also been relieved and Colonel Henry Coulter, formerly of the 110th, was placed in command. All elements of the brigade were now co-operating perfectly, and functioned as an intelligent piece of machinery. Colonel Coulter and Major Martin, the respective Regimental Commanders, had utmost confidence in each other and the results show the superiority of an army where the feelings of the individuals thereof are considered. In the last attack the men moved with such precision that it looked more like a drill than a great battle and a field officer of the 32nd Division, viewing the battle from the heights, exclaimed in great admiration "that is the finest example of American heroism, discipline and bravery that I have ever seen".

PVT. FLOYD T. HICKMAN, Co. K.
Killed July 29, 1918.

The attack was preceded by a wonderful artillery preparation and the men followed the creeping barrage almost perfectly. The Commander of the 110th was directed by the Brigade Commander, who was at his headquarters some five kilometers south of this place, to take charge of all reserves and to draw on the elements of the brigade as his judgment deemed best. Just as plans were completed as to how the reserves and supports were to be utilized the Regimental Headquarters were struck by an eight-inch shell and completely wrecked. Seventeen officers and men were killed and many others were wounded. The headquarters section was quickly reorganized and the reserves were thrown into position as previously decided upon. The victory was decisive. Four hundred Germans were killed and large numbers were brought into our lines as prisoners.

Harry Riser, First Sgt. Smith and Sgt. Bridges to keep the men together, and their manner of handling the men deserves great credit.

The earnest work of Lieutenant William E. Pierce in this battle deserves the highest mention. He served conspicuously in every engagement in which the Regiment took part.

The work of First Lieutenant John L. Robison at Courmont was particularly noteworthy.

He was not only brave and an inspiration to the men, but also used excellent judgment in his work of maintaining liaison with the troops on our right. The same comment is due Lt.

the front line, as well as hundreds of men from other companies who would otherwise have been entirely without rations. During the time the battalions were fighting their way across the Ourcq River, the 37 M/M Platoon put a harrassing fire into the woods north of Cierges Hill. The Stokes Mortar Platoon advanced within fifty yards of the line of outposts located halfway up Cierges Hill, and immediately at the conclusion of the main artillery barrage, threw a Stokes Mortar barrage on the enemy positions located on top of the hill, under which the Infantry advanced, capturing the hill. ## CHAPTER XIX.

THE REGIMENT RELIEVED.

During the night the Regiment marched to the woods southwest of Le Charnel where it was to be reorganized to get ready for the next engagement. The Regiment had been greatly battered by these four days of fiendish fighting and the men were worn out by reason of insufficient sleep and food. When it is considered that Regimental Headquarters did not have a hot meal during all this time the great difficulty in feeding the troops is understood.

The great number of valuable men and officers who had been lost during the fighting made the reorganization of the Regiment very difficult.

Three field officers had been lost or transferred. Of the original company commanders, Hartland of A was taken to the hospital for an operation; Truxal of C had been captured; Zundell of E had been killed; McLain of F had been badly gassed but was later returned to the Regiment;

LIEUT. HENRY M. KING.
CAPT. ULLMAN C. HENDLER.

Kline of I had been shell shocked; Montgomery of K had been detailed permanently to Corps Headquarters; Bryce of Supply Company had been detailed permanently to Division Headquarters. The following officers who had acted as company commanders were lost to the Regiment: Gee of A had been captured; Guy of B had been captured and later died of wounds;

CORP. FLOYD MILLER, Co. I.
Killed July 28, 1918.

Schell of C had been wounded and captured; Stevenson of E had been killed; Dinsmore of H contracted trench fever while observing in the front lines; Herbert of I had been wounded; Waite of I and Hendler of K had been wounded but later were returned; Garrison of K had been gassed; Boyes of L had been wounded and Barron of M had been wounded. The work of reorganization, however, was started at once. In some companies it was necessary to make many changes among officers and N. C. O.'s, but all orders making changes were cheerfully obeyed.

During the night of August 1-2, at 12:01 o'clock, while sleeping in the woods, an enemy aeroplane passed over, dropping six monster bombs in the camp, killing twenty-two and wounding eighty. The men had been directed to dig holes in the ground, or doubtless the casualty list would have been much larger.

The discipline displayed was remarkable. It was pitch dark, raining, and the Regiment was encamped in a dense woods, yet, in a few moments everything was quiet and the hospital detachments proceeded with their work. Ambulances were brought to the camp over extremely bad roads and the hospital men and ambulance drivers were forced to work without light. How the work was accomplished no one knows.

During the afternoon of August 2nd, the Regiment was again ordered forward and at 8:15 in the evening the movement started by the way of the Courmont-Rocheres road. At 1:30 in the morning we had reached the village of Courmont where we had seen such frightful fighting and there the Regiment bivouaced for the remainder of the night. We remained in this position for a day and the debris of the old Regimental Headquarters was excavated and the body of William Tosh, who operated the telephone, was found with his hand still claspng the receiver. The valuable Regimental records, however, could not be recovered as the papers were blown to bits, absolutely ruined and covered with tons of debris.

At six o'clock in the evening of August 3rd the Regiment was again moved northward by the way of Roncheres-Cierges-Coulouges road to the hillside northwest of Cohan and there bivouaced for the night. This was by far the worst march the Regiment ever undertook. It passed over its battlefield of the week before. It seemed in fact to be a veritable slaughter house. Unburied dead, both American and German, as well as horses and mules, grimly testified to the horrible fighting around Cierges and Grimpettes Woods. As the curtains of night were drawn rain began to fall, and to add to the great discomfort, a northwest wind started to blow, which chilled the thoroughly soaked men. The roads for several miles were completely jammed with ambulances, wagons, guns, horses, and dough-boys. At 1:30 o'clock in the morning of August 4th, the movement was completed and all organizations were in their proper positions. The Germans started to shell the village of Cohan, which added to the woes of the tired, wet and burdened soldiers.

There was in this valley at this time, not only the entire 53th Brigade, but also a number of Engineer troops, a regiment of the 32nd Division, ambulance companies, etc. About the time the disposition of the various elements of the Regiment had been determined the rain started to fall harder and continued all night, which not only soaked clothing but the blankets of the men. It was necessary to leave the roads and trails to take positions in the fields and, as the country had all been fought over during the preceding days, an attempt to move across the land during the darkness meant running into obstructions of telephone and telegraph wires and barb-wire entanglements. Exhausted from the long march, the men dropped to the ground and, huddled together in the mud and water,—waited for daylight. During all this time the men in charge of the transport were forced to remain with their horses and mules as these could not be taken from the road.

The Supply Company moved to Courmont August 4th, establishing the Regimental dump, while the Battalion detachments, together with Headquarters Company and Machine Gun Company Transports, moved ahead with their units. On August 5th the Company moved to Coulouges arriving there about 2 P. M. when the dump was established in the center of the town. The enemy shelled the town several times but fell short of the dump location about one hundred yards. The Regimental Supply was stationed in this town until August 13th.

While the Regimental Supply was established at Colonges the entire transport, viz: First Battalion, Second Battalion, Third Battalion, Machine Gun Company and Headquarters Company, located themselves in and around Dravegny, where they experienced heavy shelling.

On August 10th, Colonel Frank Tompkins was placed in command of the Regiment and his first order was to designate Major Martin second in command.

GO INTO LINE AGAIN.

In compliance with an order from General Darragh, the 110th on the night of August 12th, relieved a Regiment of the 164th French Division. This sector was on the right of Fismes and north of Courville and the relief was completed at 4:30 o'clock in the morning with the mental Headquarters were established at La-Bonne Maison Fine.

This was a beautiful farm and the buildings occupied an eminence overlooking the attractive valleys below. The Chauteau had been elaborately furnished and was surrounded by beautiful gardens. The Boche had occupied these buildings and completely destroyed the furniture in the house and cut down the trees and shrubbery in the gardens. Evidence of ruthless destruction was found everywhere.

The positions as here occupied were probably nearer the old trench warfare system than any used by the Regiment thus far. The front line was about two hundred metres south of the Vesle River. The Battalion Headquarters of the front line was in an immense cave. The Second and Third Battalions were placed in ravines in the rear of Regimental Headquarters. The machine gun and special units of Headquarters Company reinforced the front line at strategic points as directed. Headquarters Company, the Medical Detachment and the Ambulance Company were established at Courville. Advance dressing stations were maintained at the front line.

The Battalions took turns on the front line, and raiding parties were sent out practically every night. The food was taken up at night to the front lines by carrying parties detailed from the reserve battalions. Ammunition was also taken up in the same way, wagons being brought as far front as Regimental Headquarters at night time. At night the Regiment also assisted the 103rd Engineers in the construction of wire ention balloons, and the ration carts could not start until dusk. Each evening about the time for the delivery of the rations at Regimental Headquarters the shelling would start. Every day the enemy shelled us heavily, mixing gas shells with high explosives. A day's rations was hauled up at one time. The plan was to give the men one hot meal per day, but usually the meal was cold before it reached them as it was cooked at the kitchens and carried in marmite cans. The enemy would throw up flares and then shell the carrying parties and it was sometimes almost morning before the rations could be delivered. Cans were also frequently hit by pieces of shrapnel and the contents lost. None but the best men were selected to lead the carrying parties. Particularly noteworthy work was that of Sergeant Coatesworth of A Company.

A railroad paralleled the river on the south bank. Frequent efforts were made to drive the enemy beyond the railroad and on several occasions the railroad was reached, but by reason of its position could not be held. Patrols also reached the river. On the morning of August 15th a raid of considerable magnitude was carried out in which our First Battalion suffered thirty-two casualties but inflicted heavy damage upon the enemy. We, however, returned without prisoners.

The First Battalion remained in the front line until August 18th when it was relieved by the Third Battalion. The relief was started at 10 P. M. and completed at 4 A. M. August 19th. At 10:30 P. M. August 26, Companies E and F started to relieve Companies L and M. The relief was accomplished at 3:40 the next morning. August 27th G and H at 9:30 P. M. started the relief of I and K and the relief was completed at 1:35 the morning of August 28th.

On the night of August 22-23 a raid was put on under the direction of Major Thompson. This raid was carefully planned and was com-made by our troops, and during the preceding raid his company had ten men killed.

On August 25th it was decided to drive the Germans to the north of the Vesle. The attack was preceded by a forty minute artillery preparation and the Infantry moved in three waves reaching its objective but was unable to hold it. It was the intention to put combat groups between the railroad and the river. One patrol of M company reached the river. Final objective was reached at 3:50 A. M. Company I, by reason of enfilade fire from machine guns, withdrew to its original position at 7:35 A. M. At 8:15 A. M. for the same reason Company I withdrew. Company M remained until 9:30 P. M. Captain Stackpole, although severely wounded, remained with his company. It cost the Regiment more than one hundred casualties, among the killed being Lieut. Leonard Jackson, a fine young officer, and a student at Harvard University, who came to the Regiment as a replacement, and impressed all with his wonderful devotion to duty.

During the entire time the Regiment occupied this position the Machine Gun Company, the signal platoon, one pounders and trench mortars, were on duty without relief. The pioneer platoon worked every night in carrying parties.

On the 13th of August, Regimental Supply moved to Abbaye d'Igny, the 3rd Battalion Transport going to the church-yard at Courville, with the balance of the Company's Transports in the woods just south of Arcis le Ponsart. Shortly after the arrival of Regimental Supply at the same time the 3rd Battalion transport in command of Captain William Cummings, had nineteen animals killed. Due to this heavy shelling the 3rd Battalion Transport was ordered back to the balance of the transports, where the entire company remained until September 6th. During this period the various supply units were continually supplying the front line units with rations and equipment.

On leaving the woods south of Arcis le Ponsart, until reaching the town of Arcis le Ponsart, the enemy had clear observation and when our transports would leave this woods, which was necessary in order to send forward supplies, the enemy would immediately commence shelling the road. It was decided after a few days of such experiences to deliver the rations under cover of darkness, which was adhered to until the Regiment was relieved. Seventy animals were killed and four vehicles destroyed while in this position, and several men were wounded.

During the time this sector was occupied, considerable criticism was made by the higher command because the Regiment was not more active. The report was often made by Corps Headquarters that the enemy had retired north of the river. There was no particular advantage to the American troops to hold the railroad. In fact, it was to our advantage for the enemy to occupy the low ground, as he could not then use his gas attack. The hill south of the Vesle was a splendid observation point, and as we were not expected to make a general movement forward, there was no reason to engage the enemy in any extensive fighting. The criticism of inactivity was therefore without foundation. The enemy line was heavily held as was determined, by all our battalion commanders and patrols, after the most careful investigation.

The duty of the Regiment during this period was of the most irksome nature. No sleep could be obtained at night and the hot sun made it extremely difficult to secure refreshing sleep in the day time. Enemy aeroplanes were constantly hovering over our positions, making it impossible to perform any kind of work during the day.

CAPT. EDWARD J. STACKPOLE.

CAPT. JOSEPH R. CHAMBERS.

On the night of September 2nd, the First and Third Battalions of the Regiment were relieved by the 109th Infantry. The Regiment had been in the front line continually for twenty-one days. The following night the Second Battalion and the Headquarters Company were relieved. The Regiment went into the woods near Abbaye d'Igny where the units, with the exception of the Second Battalion, were consolidated. The Second Battalion was on the barrier line between Courville and Arcis le Pontart.

ORDERED TO CROSS THE VESLE.

The rest for the Regiment was very brief as shortly after midnight on September 4th, Colonel Tompkins received a warning order to be ready to advance. The Second Battalion was ordered to march to Villette and there leap-frog the 100th Infantry and cross the Vesle by fording. The First and Third Battalions left their position in the woods about noon and arrived at Villette in the evening. The second Battalion, by a skillful maneuver, had crossed the Vesle and advanced and taken Baslieux and attained the hill beyond. The First Battalion later in the day took a position to the left of the Second Battalion. The third Battalion remained in Villette during the night and on the morning of September 5th, moved across the river and attacked the enemy.

The Third Battalion crossed the Vesle at six o'clock accompanied by the one pounder section and advancing through Baslieux, passed through the First and Second Battalion taking up a position 1200 meters north of the town in an old trench system evacuated by the enemy. During the attack Major Thomas B. Anderson, a veteran of the old 10th Regiment, who had served in the Philippines, an efficient officer, and a man who had proven his great bravery during all of the preceding battles was killed almost instantly, while leading his men against a machine gun nest. His death was keenly felt by both officers and men, and the efficiency of the Regiment was greatly decreased by the loss of his skill and tactical judgment. His body was taken to Reddy Fme, which lies between Coulonges and Cierges, and buried. After the death of Major Anderson, Lieut. Harris had command of the Battalion and later Lieut. Hendler, but Captain King during the day was assigned by Colonel Tompkins to take the command. Captain Stackpole and Lieut. Robinson, both extremely brave and efficient officers, were severely wounded in this battle and the Regiment lost their services for the balance of the war. Captain Stackpole had been highly complimented for his work in assisting in the consolidation of the line at Courmont.

The Machine Gun Company took up a position at five o'clock in the morning with the Third Battalion under a heavy enemy barrage as well as fire from aeroplanes. Six guns, commanded by Lieutenant Horner, were placed in the lines. At this time Sergeant Stephen W. Vondersmith, Gunner Carl Young, Marcus Hobach and Runner Victor Beighley were killed while trying to bring in wounded. The enemy planes were flying so low that our men fired at them with their pistols.

On September 6th at 8:00 A. M. the First Battalion advanced, Company D, reaching the railroad. The Company was forced to retire by reason of a flanking fire, and formed a line with the other companies on the left of the Third Battalion. Lieut. Jacob Feldman, Commanding Co. D, an old member of the Third Regiment, who had performed brilliant work at Grimpettes Woods was killed while leading his company.

Company D, was without officers and Sergeant Fuller performed the duties of Company commander and handled the men well. At 1 o'clock the Second Battalion sent two companies forward and joined the line.

On September 6th the Third Battalion advanced to the railroad 800 meters in front of our advance post and patrols penetrated the German lines at the town of Glenes. During the afternoon of September 6th, Major Martin was ordered to take command of the 109th Infantry, which was in severe fighting on our immediate right. Two days earlier Colonel Coulter had been severely wounded and evacuated to the hospital and on the sixth Colonel Ham was wounded. On the morning of Sept. 7th, Colonel Tompkins was temporarily blinded by gas and was evacuated to the hospital. Colonel Tompkins was much respected and admired by the officers and men of the Regiment. He had had a long and able career in the army and he soon seemed to

was a brilliant achievement and much of the success of this advance was due to the coolness and good judgment of Captain Aiken. Capt. Woodend now had the First Battalion, Capt. Dunkle the Second and Capt. King the Third.

During this time the enemy laid down the heaviest concentration of gas ever experienced by the Regiment. Many fine soldiers were lost because they refused to be evacuated after being gassed. Lieut. Lami, a French officer, who was attached to the Regiment and had been in the war since its beginning was severely gassed and died from its effects. Sergeant Daniel L. Jones in charge of the Signal Section of the Third Battalion refused to go to the hospital until important messages were transmitted and died from the effects of poison gas.

Delousing plant at Abby d'Igny, France.

Twelve hundred yards north of Baslieux, Sergeant Chauncey Young of the one-pounder section of Headquarters Company, took personal charge of one of the guns and completely destroyed two machine gun nests which were holding up the Infantry advance. He was severely gassed while performing this duty and died as a result. Corporal Kramer, of Company K, insisted on carrying a message to Regimental Headquarters after he had been gassed and died a few days later. Major Robert S. McKee, Captain Linn, Captain Shidler and Lieutenant Parsons and many of the men of the hospital corps were forced to abandon their masks in order to properly take care of the wounded and were severely gassed as a result. Practically every officer and man of the Regiment was more or less affected by the gas.

REGIMENT RELIEVED.

On the night of September 7-8, the Regiment was relieved by the 338th French Infantry after a month's continuous service in the front line, with the exception of one day spent at Abbaye d'Igny, and where the men did not have even time for a bath. It had lost in casualties twenty-eight per cent. during the campaigning in the Vesle river valley.

o'clock midnight; Second 12:15 and Third 12:30. The march was to Arcis le Ponsart, the first element to reach the village being Company H at 3 A. M. The last unit to arrive was the Machine Gun Company at 11:30 A. M. The Regiment left in the afternoon for Abbaye d'Igny, where all passed through the delousing plant and went into camp.

On September 9th, Lieutenant Colonel Martin again returned to the Regiment, after assisting in the reorganization of the 109th, and took command of the outfit.

The Regiment left Abbaye d'Igny on the morning of September 10th for the return to the Marne River Valley from which the fighting had started two months before, the march being about thirty kilometers. The roads were badly congested and the heavy rains added greatly to the discomfort of the men. During the afternoon shelter halves were pitched on the hillside near Oueilly. The Regiment remained here during the following day and at six o'clock in the evening marched to the embussing point which was near Bourslieux and left at nine o'clock for its new area. All expected a long rest as the Regiment had been in almost constant contact with the enemy since it went into the second line trenches south of the Marne on the morning of July 4th. After an all night ride in trucks the Regiment was stationed in its new billeting area near Bar-Le-Duc as follows:

Regimental Headquarters and First Battalion Bussy-la-Cote; Second Battalion at Mussey; Third Battalion at Contrisson and Machine Gun Company at Vassincort. The billets were fairly comfortable, but owing to the fact that the wagon train was forced to make its way over land at night from the Vesle valley, a distance of approximately one hundred and sixty kilometers, the men were forced to live on cold rations.

The wagon train, which included the kitchens, did not arrive until the Regiment had again started northward, where it was later found it was to take part in the great Argonne-Meuse offensive. During the few days spent in this peaceful area the Regiment lost no time in preparing for the next ordeal. It was the first time for weeks that the Regiment was not under shell fire, and on the evening of September 14th, the First Battalion and Headquarters Company, under Major Thompson, gave a dress parade and it was the first occasion in three months in which the colors had been uncased for a ceremony. Chaplain Schall on Sunday, September 15th, held church services in the beautiful Chateau grounds adjacent to the village occupied by Regimental Headquarters. The grounds were offered for this purpose and an urgent and courteous request was made by the French Madame in charge, that they be used for the services. All of the men of her family were in the French Army.

During the afternoon four hundred and sixteen replacements were received which brought the Regiment's strength to two thousand and seventy-five enlisted men.

CHAPTER XXIII

AGAIN ORDERED TO THE FRONT.

The drill continued September 16th, as usual and the Regimental Commander and Battalion Commanders, at the direction of the Brigade Commander, were studying a system of evacuated trenches some miles distant, and upon their return to billets, orders were waiting for the Regiment to move during the evening and after an all night march of fifteen kilometers, the different organizations went into camp in the forest northwest of Burgoyne. The next night the march was resumed and fifteen kilometers was again traveled and at 3:30 in the morning the men went into Camp in the forest De Lavore. The third night's march brought the Regiment close to the line of resistance upon the Verdun front north of Neuville. The First Battalion under command of Major Thompson relieved the 367th French Infantry at 3:30 o'clock in the morning of September 19th. The remainder of the Regiment bivouaced in the woods northwest of les Isettes the same morning, where it remained until night and then moved to the woods southwest of Locheres. It rained every day during these marches which made it extremely difficult for many of the men to keep up, as they had for so long been continuously fighting along the Vesle, that many were very low in vitality. The straggling, however, was trivial considering the length of the marches, the physical condition of the men and the terrible roads.

Practically all had been gassed, and by reason of insufficient rations and irregular sleep during the campaign on the Vesle, the men were in poor physical condition. None but an organization composed of seasoned veterans would have stood up under the ordeal.

Since we had one battalion in the prepared position it was definitely known that the Regiment and the Twenty-eighth Division was again to be thrown into the battle. The extent and the magnitude of the struggle at first was not known, but the moving of a great amount of heavy artillery soon convinced all that a battle of great magnitude was soon to take place, and while the officers and men were weary, yet they eagerly desired to take part in the impending contest. The First Battalion was in trenches and the other troops under shelter-halves in the great forest of the Argonne. Many replacements had been received which made it absolutely necessary that training be continued and while this was done under great difficulties, yet for six hours every day the work progressed.

The schedule of drills called for hand grenade work, physical training, training of specialists, extended order, etc. The roads every night were filled with trucks, guns, wagons, and all kinds of transportation, moving munitions, food stuffs, etc., as close to the front as good judgment would permit, in order that the great army might be properly supported. The Supply Company had great difficulty in getting supplies and rations to the First Battalion, as it was necessary to do all of the work at night and the road was always filled with all sorts of vehicles moving to the front. This work, however, did not keep the men of this Company from cleaning harness, wagons and horses. Equipment of all kinds was put in perfect condition.

On the morning of September 24, the Regiment was honored by a visit from Gen. John J. Pershing, who spent almost an hour looking over the position to be occupied by the 110th Infantry, and engaged in pleasant conversation with many of the men. Major Thompson was in command of the Battalion at this place and the General extended to him many words of praise for the Twenty-eighth Division and the great part it had taken in the war thus far.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THE GREAT HOUR ARRIVES.

On September 24th, Regimental Headquarters received word that the attack would be started at 5:30 o'clock in the morning of September 26th, and the men were ordered to their respective positions on the night of September 25th. They realized that the great anticipated battle would soon be on and all were in position several hours before the time for the jump off, and while it was well known that it was the most momentous attack in the world's history, yet the greater number of men slept soundly on the ground waiting for the word to move forward. These were true and tried veterans. The plan of battle called for the 110th Infantry to be on the West bank of the Aire River. The Regiment was echeloned in depth with the First Battalion in the advance with Major Thompson in command, Second Battalion in support with Captain Dunkle in command, and the Third Battalion in reserve with Captain Woodend in command. The trench mortars, one pounders and machine gun units were to be used by the front line Battalion. The general plan of attack called for the taking of three objectives during the day. The First Battalion to take the first objective, the Second Battalion the second, and the Third the third. The 110th was also to furnish a liaison Company to keep in touch with the 35th Division, the 35th Division being on the immediate right of the 110th and on the east side of the Aire River. The 109th was on our left. The work of liaison was assigned to Company I, with Captain Cummings in command, and a part of the time his Company was east of the river. Twenty tanks were turned over to the Regiment for its use. The Regimental Headquarters were established in the ruins of Abancourt Fine.

1. The enemy holds the front line from the MEUSE to the AISNE.

The 28th Division attacks on the front BOUREUILLES (inclusive) to Point PIERRE CROISSE (inclusive). This regiment is the right of the 28th Division sector; the 138th Infantry of the 35th Division is on our right; the 109th Infantry is on our left.

2. (a) TIME OF ATTACK: This regiment will attack on D day, H hour. D day is September 26th and H hour is 5:30 A. M.

(b) BOUNDARIES: Right (east) boundary AIRE RIVER to bend in river south of ST. JUVIN.

Left (west) boundary point on parallel of departure 100 meters west of main road through letter "O" in PTE. BOUREUILLES—ROYAL DES FILS DE FER (exclusive)—point 02.35—73.25 on 2nd maneuver line—battery 2151 (inclusive) through letter "E" in MONTBLAINVILLE—through letter "R" in APERMONT—through letter "A" in CHATEL CHEHERY—through letter "A" in CORNAY.

3. PARALLEL OF DEPARTURE: A line approximately 500 meters from the enemy's front

4. OBJECTIVES AND TIME OF ADVANCE FROM SAME.

(a) 1st MANEUVER LINE through points 03.9-71.7-03.5-71.6-02.0-70.7-00.7-60.9. Troops will leave this line at H plus one hour and fifteen minutes.

2nd MANEUVER LINE through points 03.5-73.8-01.7-73.0-00.7-72.1-00.4-71.7. Troops will leave this line at H plus 3 hours.

CORPS OBJECTIVE: A line through point 02.5-75.5-02.0-75.0-00.8-74.2-00.2-73.1.

(b) (1) Upon arrival at Corps Objective prompt reports to that effect will be sent back by battalion and regimental commanders by every means of liaison, and will be repeated until acknowledged.

(2) Organizations will be prepared to advance beyond Corps Objective at H plus 4.30.

(3) Orders to advance will be signalled from Division P. C. by three red rockets, repeated from Headquarters 55th Brigade and in turn repeated by Regimental headquarters to battalions.

5. (a) ARTILLERY. The rolling barrage will connect with the barrage of the 35th Division on our right at the initial point and will be advanced at the rate of 100 meters per (4) four minutes, to include the hostile intermediate position.

ARTILLERY BARRAGE TIME TABLE

(b) ARTILLERY BARRAGE time table will conform to the above time of leaving objective lines. Upon arriving in front of the objective lines, the creeping barrage will settle into a standing barrage, covering the reorganization of the Infantry until the time for resuming the advance.

(c) The FOREST d'ARGONNE will be reduced by artillery fire of destruction and by mopping up its eastern edge as the advance progresses. It will be attacked from the south and from the east by Infantry, assisted by Gas and Flame troops. (NOTE) The FOREST d'ARGONNE is not in the 55th Brigade sector.

(d) The BARRAGE will settle 100 meters south of the enemy line at H hour and stand until H plus 25 minutes and then begin to roll at the prescribed rate. This will give the advanced troops 25 minutes to approach the barrage as close as possible.

(e) The BARRAGE around hill 263 in the sector of the 56th Brigade will stand until the 55th Brigade has passed that point. WARN OUR TROOPS SO THEY WILL CONTINUE THE ADVANCE.

6. ORGANIZATION OF THE GROUND: Upon reaching the combined Army first objective, the line will be promptly organized in depth for defense, and exploitation detachments will be pushed vigorously forward under instructions to be issued later.

LIEUT. COL. JOHN W. WOODEND.
CAPT. HOMER M. WELLMAN.

7. THE OBJECTIVES TO BE REACHED by this regiment are the portions of those described in preceding paragraphs and within the regimental sector.

8. THE REGIMENT WILL ADVANCE ECHELONED IN DEPTH; the 1st battalion, Major Thompson, on the firing line; the 2nd battalion, Capt. Dunkle, in support; the 3rd battalion, Capt. Woodend, in reserve. The battalion on the firing line will be echeloned in depth, two (2) companies on the line and two (2) in support.

The battalions will march approximately a distance of one thousand (1000) meters from each other, depending upon the terrain.

9. CAPTAIN WOODEND will detail one Company from his battalion which will be in position on the PARALLEL OF DEPARTURE from the east boundary of the regiment to the AIRE RIVER, and will attack BOUREUILLES at H hour from the south and southwest. This Company will be supported by one Company from the 108th Machine Gun Battalion, and three 37m/m guns under command of Lieut. Jacobs. This Company after thoroughly mopping up BOUREUILLES will continue as liaison Company.

10. THE MACHINE GUN COMPANY of the regiment is assigned to the leading Battalion and will be under the orders and disposition of the Battalion commander.

11. THE REMAINDER OF THE 37m/m GUNS will be under orders and disposition of the front line Battalion commander.

12. THE TRENCH MORTARS will report to Maj. Thompson prepared to assist in the preparation and remain with him until the advance has started when they will report to Regimental P. C.

13. BALANCE OF HEADQUARTERS COMPANY will report to Regimental P. C.

14. THERE WILL BE A PASSING OF LINES at the first maneuver line, that is—the 1st battalion will maintain first maneuver line, 2nd battalion the second maneuver line, 3rd battalion Corps Objective, 1st battalion American Army Objective, 2nd battalion Combined Army First Phase Lines.

15. CAPTAIN WOODEND will direct the Company which is to attack and mop up BOUREUILLES, and will be supported by the machine guns of one Company of the 108th Machine Gun Battalion, to march on the east side of the AIRE to protect the flanks of the regiment and to maintain liaison with the 138th Infantry of the 35th Division.

16. COMBAT GROUPS will be in position on D day at H minus 4 hours. The Artillery preparation for the attack will begin at H minus X hours. The Infantry will advance from the parallel of departure at H hour under cover of the rolling barrage. Gaps will be cut in the wire, and all available means of overcoming it will be used. viz; 75's, tanks, bangalore, torpedoes, heavy wire cutters and trench mortars. Penetration will be effected by utilizing lines of the least resistance to advance and cause the fall of strong points by out flanking them. The attack must be pushed with the greatest vigor; defensive positions, when occupied will be strongly organized in depth and the terrain in front boldly exploited.

COMBAT LIAISON GROUPS on the right and left of the regimental sector will advance alternately, closing gaps and covering exposed flanks where possible. These groups will not be thrown into the front line in extension thereof, but will remain in rear on the flank and protect any threatened counter attack or cover any gap by means of fire.

10-11 War Diary.

Three hours before the jump off the allied artillery started its bombardment. The heavens were illuminated by the flash of the guns, and the air filled with the crash and whistle of the shells as they passed over into the land of Fritz. Promptly at 5:30 o'clock the men moved forward, the First Battalion leading and the others following it at a distance of 1000 meters. The ground over which the men advanced was most difficult. The Germans had held this position for four years and had fortified it as well as their military genius could make it. Great strips of ground for two and three hundred meters in width would be interlaced with wire entanglements, which it was necessary for the American soldiers to cut or cross. Trench after trench carefully manned by machine guns was encountered. The left of the sector occupied by the 28th Division was a dense forest which was an excellent place for the enemy to conceal both machine guns and artillery. The high ground also gave the enemy a great advantage in ob-ervation. The roads and fields were dotted with shell holes, the result of the cannonading of four years, which made advancing extremely difficult and at times impossible for the tanks. As the troops advanced the condition of the roads made the bringing up of supplies and ammunition not only difficult, but extremely hazardous. The morning was foggy and at times the men could scarcely see fifty feet in front of them. This added to the difficulty of handling the tanks.

CHAPTER XXV.

HARD FIGHTING AT VARENNES

The first position of great importance to the Germans was at Varennes, which was not only a headquarters, but a rail head and on the hill north of Varennes mines had been prepared until there was shelter for several thousand troops. This town, in addition to its great dugouts as an accommodation for troops from shell fire, was also a huge store house where a large amount of supplies was kept, together with locomotives and rolling stock for the railroad, which all fell into the hands of the Americans.

Very little opposition was encountered in the taking of Petite Boureuilles which fell into our hands at 10 o'clock. The same time Boureuilles was reported to be occupied by our liaison company.

The troops approached to within a short distance of Varennes through a connecting trench. The enemy resisted until the last with the use of two seventy seven's, several machine guns and anti-tank guns. We have been reliably informed that the first anti-tank guns captured by the American army were taken at this place. These guns played havoc with the American tanks, several of the operators being killed and many of the tanks put out of commission for the balance of the fight. After the first line had passed entirely through the town Lieutenant Ferguson of Company H, captured more than one hundred and fifty prisoners. The town of Varennes was completely in our hands at 11:30 and shortly after noon the Regiment advanced to the Corps objective, reaching it at 2 o'clock. This was the last work for the day. Regimental Headquarters were established in Varennes although the enemy was laying down a severe retaliation fire. Telephone communication was immediately installed and a report of the operation sent back to Brigade and Division Headquarters. The Corps objective, which was about one thousand meters north of the town, was taken and the tired men attempted to get some sleep. It was cold and extremely uncomfortable as blankets had been dropped before the advance was started and it began to rain about midnight.

The taking of the Corps objective by Captain Woodend in command of the Third Battalion was one of the brilliant exploits of the Regiment. The Regiment was occupying Varennes, and the town at the time was being heavily shelled. Colonel Martin and Captain Woodend were in observation and could see the enemy rapidly running across the hill beyond, which was the next objective. Captain Woodend was asked the number of men of his organization, which was at that time in the vicinity of the village, and he replied that he only had his scout section of twenty-one men. Colonel Martin asked him if he could take the objective and he replied in the affirmative. Upon orders he immediately proceeded with his adjutant and twenty-one scouts. The Germans of course did not know the strength of the pursuing force and continued the retreat. The little group dug in and were soon reinforced by elements from the other Battalions and Headquarters Company and the position was consolidated without the loss of a man.

At Varennes, an incident occurred, which later culminated in the removal of the Brigade Commander. The 110th Infantry had reached its objective much sooner than the elements on its right and left. The 35th Division on its right was a new division, this being its first time in

on its flank which had retarded its progress. The 109th was at least two kilometers in the rear of the 110th, although this was not derogatory to that daring outfit. General Darragh reported to the Division Commander over the phone that the 110th had reached its objective and that the 109th would also soon complete its work, and at that time, was only two hundred meters in the rear of the 110th. He was corrected but persisted in the report which was entirely misleading to the Division Commander. The Brigade Commander had frequently, since assuming command, spoken in uncomplimentary terms of National Guard organizations in general, and the 55th Brigade in particular. These remarks had gone unnoticed by the officers of the organization, but since his taking command none of his work had indicated that he was a particularly brilliant field soldier. He was great in finding fault but had few suggestions to make which would better conditions. On the evening of September 24th he assembled all the field officers of the brigade and explained to them the plan of action for the morning of September 26th. At that time he had in his possession the Division Order directing the attack, and promised the Regimental Commanders that he would have his order in their possession early the following morning. The delivery of this order, however, was not made until six o'clock in the evening of September 25th, and it was necessary to prepare the regimental order and move a distance of seven kilometers in order to get in position. Colonel Martin, having had much experience with delayed orders, had issued a preliminary order, which gave the battalion commanders sufficient time to get to their locations and give the men some opportunity for rest. As previously stated, three objectives were to be taken during the first day, which required an extensive and involved order, showing in detail the duties of each element of the regiment. The artillery preparation had already started before the final order was delivered to the different unit commanders.

CHAPTER XXVI.

HEAVY LOSSES AT MONTBLAINVILLE.

The morning of September 27th the Division resumed its advance at 6 o'clock with orders to take Montblainville and to establish a line in advance of the town, pending the approach of the 35th Division on our right and the 77th Division on our left, which had both been delayed. In the first days fighting the losses had been light, the most severe being the wounding of Captain Boyle of the Machine Gun Company, a high class, intelligent and brave officer. Between Varennes and Montblainville there is a deep gully and as it was again raining it was difficult to cross. After reaching the top of the plateau there was very little cover, but observation was not easy for the enemy by reason of the fog and rain. Wave after wave pushed on toward Montblainville. The tanks also attempted to get into position, but were unable to do so by reason of the difficult crossing of the gully. The enemy was now fighting desperately and resisting to the utmost every inch of ground. During the morning the casualties were heavy, but this did not lessen the enthusiasm of the advancing line. E Company lost Corporal Ramsay, who had gallantly come to the assistance of Lieut. Cort, who had been severely wounded. C Company lost two efficient young officers in Lieut. William S. Bonsal and Lieut. Stephen W. Dickey. The latter officers were mopping up the town and Lieut. Dickey was killed by a sniper. Both were excellent leaders and men of the highest type.

Both the Second and First Battalions were used on the front line. Captain Dunkle had directed F Company to occupy a sector about two hundred yards west of the Varennes-Montblainville road and the Company was subjected to a heavy cross fire by reason of the tooth's not arriving on the line. The Company advanced in small groups led by N. C. O.'s. The work of Sergeant John L. Korns and Corporal Lawrence Little was particularly noteworthy. Both were killed. Sergeant Norman Duncan was wounded in going to the rescue of Corporal Little. Private George A. Warring, who was Captain McLain's personal runner deserves particular praise for his work at this place.

When the Regiment passed through the village it was far in advance of the elements on either its right or left. The 109th Infantry was being held up by reason of machine gun fire from its left. The Germans soon appreciated the situation and immediately attacked from both flanks. The Regiment had taken Montblainville at 10:30. The first effort of the enemy was repulsed with heavy loss. This was about 11:30 o'clock. The second counter attack was even more severe than the first, and took place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Companies G and H were now in the center of the American line and the second counter attack was only repulsed by the furious use of captured German machine guns. Many of the American non-commissioned officers had been taught the use of these weapons. Captain John R. Dunkle rendered particularly efficient service at this point co-ordinating the work of the rifles, machine guns and one pounders, the latter doing deadly work. Sergeant Dean and Corporal Fields, although severely wounded, refused to go to the rear and through their example did much to encourage the men to hold on regardless of the great odds. During the day the Regiment had casualties of three officers and forty men killed and five officers and two hundred and sixty-five men wounded. Among the killed was Lieut. Ferguson, who performed valiant service in every engagement in which he took part. It was long in the night before all the wounded were evacuated and it was probably the most treacherous position the Regiment occupied during its service. Regimental Headquarters were established at Montblainville. The First Battalion and Second Battalion were in the front line and the Third in reserve.

The Brigade Commander desired to advance toward Apremont shortly after midnight, which was not only impractical but almost physically impossible, as the night was extremely dark and it was raining a greater part of the time. The 109th Infantry was still some distance in the rear for reasons previously referred to. Major Thompson was again to have charge of the front line and Colonel Martin had directed him to wait until the 109th could arrive abreast of him, as we did not desire an enfilading fire on our flank. Major Thompson fully complied with this order and General Darragh removed him because he considered that he had been dilatory in his actions. It was a critical situation, Major Thompson being entirely familiar with the Regimental Commander's wishes. It was dangerous to protest against the Brigade Commander and Colonel Martin immediately directed Captain Pierce, the Regimental Adjutant, an officer who had served brilliantly in every engagement, to take charge of headquarters and issue orders in his name, and he proceeded to the front in charge of the first line. The flanks were soon exposed and repeated requests were made to the Brigade Commander to furnish assistance, but nothing was done and it was almost nightfall before he arrived in close enough proximity of the first line to have any idea of the situation. By that time elements of the 109th Infantry reported to Colonel Martin upon their own responsibility and tendered their services, which made it possible to retain the position. The feeling between the 109th Infantry and the 110th was always the most cordial. The 109th was a wonderful organization and always performed most willingly and in a skillful manner every duty assigned to it. The same comment applies equally to the 108th Machine Gun Battalion under the command of the fearless and skillful Major Vail. At Montblainville the liaison platoon of the 35th Division, attached to the 110th Infantry, went into the line and performed fine work. During the morning Captain King of Headquarters Company was wounded. The loss of Captain King at this critical point in the battle was keenly felt by the Regiment. He was succeeded by Lieutenant Hoard, a very capable officer, who effectively handled Headquarters Company.

On the morning of September 28th, the Regiment was again ordered to move forward at six o'clock. The Third Battalion, which had not taken part in the preceding day's fighting, was ordered to lead the attack. The 109th and 110th Infantry were on the same line.

The front line battalion moved to the ravine south of Apremont where it was held up by heavy artillery fire. The Second Battalion was then ordered along the river in order to attack by a turning movement, but the plan failed as the cliff above the river had been manned with many machine guns. At four o'clock in the afternoon the First and Second Battalions were consolidated under command of Major Thompson, who had been returned to the Regiment, and moved across the plateau in a direct assault upon the town. The tanks had been brought up and assisted in this attack. The line moved 500 meters North of Apremont where it dug in.

The attack on Apremont was carefully planned. Colonel Martin, Major Thompson, Captain Woodend, Capt. McLain, Capt. Pierce and Capt. Dunkle all gave the matter close personal attention. Just as the advance was about to start, shells from artillery in the rear began to strike among our men. It was naturally supposed that the Division Artillery was firing short, but this was investigated and found to be incorrect. It was then presumed that the 35th Division Artillery on our right had gotten into the wrong sector. This supposition was found to be without foundation. It was later discovered that the 77th Division was so much in the rear of the general alignment that the Boche, instead of firing at them, reversed their guns and fired into the backs of the Americans. It cost us several casualties and was extremely discomfiting at this critical moment of the battle.

CHAPTER XXVII.

GENERAL DARRAGH RELIEVED.

The next morning, September 29th, Brigadier General Thomas H. Darragh was relieved and General Dennis Nolan of the General Staff assumed command of the 55th Brigade. General Nolan called the Regimental Commanders about four o'clock in the morning and after hearing their reports immediately called off the attack planned, and, when day light came, personally made a reconnaissance of all positions held by the Brigade. In his operations report he made the following comment in reference to this meeting: "I then sent for the Regimental Commanders to learn from them the general condition of their Regiments and to find out what orders they had given to continue the attack. Lieutenant Colonel Martin, commanding the 110th Regiment, reported promptly and gave me a clear statement as to the strength and situation of his Regiment, and the orders he had given in compliance with the orders of the Brigade Commander." General Nolan, after his personal reconnaissance, ordered the withdrawal of the troops occupying the position north of Apremont. Apremont was a position of great importance to both the American and German forces as it was the key to the American advance and without it the Germans could not expect to be successful in their counter attacks against the allied position. Shortly after dusk, about 7:30 o'clock, the Germans launched a counter-attack, which from statement of prisoners was made by three battalions accompanied by heavy machine guns. The attack was preceded by a heavy machine gun and artillery barrage and was pushed with great resolution, captured officers stating that they had been ordered to take and hold Apremont at all costs. The attack was with such surprise and fury that our men were driven back into the northern edge of the village, but the enemy was in turn driven back by a well executed counter-attack by Major Thompson in command of about 100 men. To add to the confusion, the Third Battalion was making a relief of the First Battalion, but fortunately had not reached the front line. Captain Woodend in command of the Third Battalion, which was making the relief placed his men in the shelter of the road leading to Apremont.

Lieut. Jacobs of the one pounder platoon was captured while directing the withdrawal of his guns, but Sergeant Lynch and Corporal Jeffries promptly gathered a few men and went to their Lieutenant's rescue and he was released.

The night of September 29-30, was utilized in making four strong points and the placing of machine guns to be used as a barrage to cover the advance of the Infantry and to resist enemy counter-attacks. Four guns of the 109th Field Artillery were also brought to the town of Apremont. Both the 109th Infantry and 110th were greatly reduced in numbers, the Battalions being but little larger than war strength companies, and General Nolan was therefore in as close touch with his Brigade as a Regimental Commander is ordinarily with his Regiment. The strong points worked to great advantage in resisting the final counter-attack of the Germans, and were entirely due to this fine officer and gentleman.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

ENEMY MAKES FINAL COUNTER ATTACK

On the morning of October 1, at 5:45 o'clock the enemy attacked. General Nolan, Colonel Shannon, Colonel Martin and Major Vail had planned an attack for six o'clock. The enemy had probably learned of this movement and started his heavy barrage from both artillery and machine guns at 5:30 o'clock, which lasted for twenty minutes, and it is to be presumed that the enemy expected the Americans to be moving into position about this time. In fact the Regiment went into position at 5 o'clock in the morning. The whole force was awakened at four o'clock and the men were given breakfast. The original plan was to have hot coffee, but regardless of the strenuous effort made by Lieut. Kennedy this was impossible. The barrage of the enemy inflicted but little loss, as the men during the preceding twenty-four hours had dug themselves in, and wave after wave of the Boche advance approached the American strong points, but were mowed down, yet with such persistence would they come that many of them were killed within fifty meters of our machine gun positions. Statements from prisoners showed that the enemy had two regiments on the front line. The attack was entirely repulsed by eight o'clock. The German troops in the attack were found, by a singular coincidence, to be the celebrated 28th Division, one of the Kaiser's favorite organizations.

It would be difficult to make an estimate of the Germans killed, as the ground between our line and the enemy was constantly covered by machine gun and artillery fire, which made patroling impossible and it was not until the hills above Chatel-Chehery were taken that it was possible to bury the enemy dead. The enemy's loss in dead alone was generally estimated to be nearly four hundred.

In going over the field after the battle, it was found that Red Cross men were among the German dead and that each carried two machine gun ammunition boxes.

During the battle the Germans were so desperately in earnest for success that they engaged Companies I and K in a hand-to-hand encounter, a cemetery wall separating the Americans and the Huns. Sergeants Dillie and Patton took charge of the position and handled it so skillfully that the enemy was driven off with heavy loss.

The counter attack at Apremont showed the great worth of the highest grade American soldiers. The Germans had made a furious attack and in the 110th Infantry were a number of Mexican half-breeds, who had been received as replacements. Upon the first onslaught of the Huns, they threw their rifles and started on a mad stampede to the rear. The orderly section stopped these men and forced them to return to the front. If the comrades of these men had not been of real American material, the whole line would doubtless have given away.

At dark the Regiment was relieved by the 109th Infantry and placed in brigade reserve, the only time it had performed this kind of work during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. The units of the Regiment had become much mixed and October 2nd was used in reorganizing the different elements.

SGT. JOHN M. PADEN, Co. K.
Killed July 29, 1918.

During this fighting the Regiment lost Lieut. Rowan, a true and tried young officer. His death was a shock to the entire regiment, as he had performed brilliant work during the entire Argonne campaign. The day before he had led his company two thousand meters north of Apremont. For this reason he was considered the best man in the Regiment to guide the attack on the morning of October first. His Company, however, was not to take part in this attack and when told the situation he immediately volunteered his services.

Lieut. Ornstein, who had also volunteered his services was killed from the shock of a shell while seated by the side of Major Thompson. Captain Chambers, another volunteer and in command of the First Battalion, was badly wounded.

Little was done on October 3rd, except in patrolling and in preparing for the advance on the following day. The Regiment, however, was under heavy artillery fire a great part of the time.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE REGIMENT CROSSES THE AIRE.

On October 4th, another advance was ordered. The Regiment was directed to cross the Aire River and advance in a sector lying between the river and the Bauhy-Grande Pre road. About noon the attack was checked by machine gun fire. The Second Battalion was at this time leading the advance. The Third Battalion was thrown in on the left to clean out the machine gun nests and advance to La Forge. During the afternoon the Second Battalion advanced through the center and reached a point half way between Pleinchamp Fme and Fleville and dug in.

On the night of October 3rd, we received information that the bridge across the Aire River at Fleville was intact and it was the plan to have tanks cross at this place.

October 5th, was spent in consolidating our position. The 77th Division on our left had been held up. It was found that the town of Chatel Chehery and Hills 244 and 223 were held in force by the Germans. The 77th Division had lost one battalion which, through magazine publicity, became very famous. During the day of October 6th a careful study of the enemy position had been made preliminary to an attack on the morning of October 7th, which was later changed by higher command from a small attack, which had as its objective the seizing of Aire to the left bank immediately south of La Forge. The Regiment was assigned the Sector to attack between Hills 244 and 223, and that portion of the town of Chatel-Chehery included within these limits.

The 110th and 112th Regiments launched an attack at five thirty o'clock in the morning. They encountered heavy machine gun fire from prepared positions on Hills 244 and 223, but the Germans made no attempt to hold the village itself. The attack was led by the Third Battalion followed by the Second and First Battalions. Captain Waite was in command of the Third Battalion and charged the German position. While the taking of the German position was sharply resisted, yet it was accomplished without very many losses. Among the killed was Lieut. Simpson, who had been commissioned for gallantry in action.

CHAPTER XXX.

REGIMENT RELIEVED.

On the night of October 8-9, the Regiment was relieved and the various units moved by the way of Montblainville to Camp d'Bouzon where the Division was a part of Corps reserve. The fourteen days of fighting had cost the Regiment nine officers and one hundred and four men killed; twenty officers and seven hundred and forty men wounded and one officer and two hundred and thirty men missing in action. Of the latter many, it was learned later, were killed.

It is extremely difficult to make an estimate of the number of prisoners captured by the Regiment, but three hundred and fifty were secured the first day. Twelve hundred for the campaign would probably be a very conservative estimate. As to losses inflicted upon the enemy it is also difficult to estimate, but from the number of prisoners captured and the number of German dead found in front of our positions, a conservative estimate is that the Regiment inflicted three casualties upon the enemy to one received by our troops. Considering the fact that the Germans were on the defensive, this is remarkable and shows the perfect organization and surpassing skill of the American soldiers.

LIEUT. FRANK S. LONG.
Killed October 5, 1918.

The work of the Regiment in the Argonne and its achievements are well described by the following from the official diary of the Regiment:

"During the advance along the Aire river from September 26th to October 9th, 1918, inclusive, this Regiment captured the objectives of Grande Boureuilles, Petite Boureuilles, Varennes, Montblainville, Apremont, Pleinchamp Farm, La Forge, and assisted in the capture of Châtel Chehery and Hills 223 and 244, captured about ten heavy and fifty light machine guns, seven pieces of artillery, two minnieverfers, five anti-tank guns, three gasoline narrow gauge locomotives and a large number of railroad cars, fifteen German wagons, one thousand German rifles, two hundred German pistols, great quantities of artillery ammunition, rifle and machine gun ammunition, hand grenades, pyrotechnics, clothing, food and forage, wiring and engineering material. In addition to the arms and materials reported above there were undoubtedly many guns of various kinds captured by the Regiment in this fight which have not been reported. The advance through Boureuilles, Varennes, Montblainville and Apremont was so rapid and the fighting so sharp that there was no opportunity for checking up captures. A great many enemy prisoners were taken but an estimate of the number cannot be fairly made. The casual-the whole fight without injury or sickness. Lieutenant Colonel Edward Martin commanded the Regiment throughout this period. During the first few days of the fight the roads in the rear were impassable but those north of Varennes were in fair condition. The conditions in the rear were rapidly corrected. The weather was cool and there was considerable rain throughout the campaign. Water was abundant but not good."

commanding during the last days of its participation in the battle now in progress, I deem it my duty to make of record an appreciation of its distinguished service in the General Orders of the Brigade.

2. "When the simple facts are recorded that at the end of fourteen days of constant combat with the enemy the Brigade was withdrawn, one battalion of the 110th Infantry Regiment when relieved from the firing line was commanded by a second Lieutenant, the only remaining officer on duty with the battalion, and that one battalion of the 100th Infantry Regiment when withdrawn from the firing line was commanded by one of its Sergeants, the high devotion to duty of the officers and men of the Brigade is made manifest and any words of praise for such devotion could only prove inadequate."

The following letter was received from the Chief of Staff of the 28th Division by direction of the Division Commander:

Headquarters Twenty-Eighth Division,
U. S. Army,
American Expeditionary Forces,
October 20th, 1918.

FROM:—Chief of Staff,

TO:—110th Regiment Infantry,

SUBJECT:—Commendation.

1. "The Division Commander desires me to express his appreciation of the work done by the officers and soldiers of the 110th Regiment Infantry, who during the recent offensive in the Valley of the Aire and the Argonne Forest, with true devotion to duty, gave the best that was in them to further the success of the Division.

2. During this advance many hardships had to be endured and the fact that the Regiment willingly responded at all times to any calls made upon it is especially noteworthy. Also, the advance down the Valley under strong artillery and machine gun fire which culminated in the taking of Pleinchamp Fme. deserved the highest commendation."

By command of Major General Muir:

W. C. Sweeney,
Chief of Staff.

Under date of October 21st the Division issued an order which is as follows:

Headquarters 28th Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, October 21st, 1918.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 19

1. "The Division Commander desires to express his appreciation to all officers and soldiers of the 28th Division and of attached units, who, at all times during the advance in the Valley of the Aire and in the Argonne Forest, in spite of many hardships and constant personal danger, gave their best efforts to further the success of the Division.

2. "As a result of this operation, which extended from 5:30 on the morning of September 26th until the night 8-9 October, with almost continuous fighting, the enemy's line was forced back more than ten kilometers. In spite of most stubborn and at all times desperate resistance the enemy was driven out of Grand Boureuilles, Petite Boureuilles, Varennes, Montblainville, Apremont, Pleinchamp Farm, La Forge and Chatel Chehery, and the strongholds on hills 223, 244 and La Chene Tendu were captured in the face of strong machine gun and artillery fire.

3. The following letter regarding this achievement is of interest to all:

Advance Headquarters First Army Corps,
October 8th, 1918.

FROM:—Commanding General, First Army Corps, U. S.

TO:—Commanding General, 28th Division.

SUBJECT:—Commendation.

1. "I desire to express to the 28th Division and its Commander my appreciation of the splendid work done by the Division on October 7th, 1918.

2. "The capture of Hill 244 and the combined advance of the right and left brigades bringing about the fall of the very strong positions of the enemy on the La Chene Tondeu and the Taille l'Abbe demonstrate excellent leadership and first-class fighting ability.

3. "The advance in exploitation in front of your right brigades resulting from the foregoing actions was a very bold procedure which will undoubtedly lead to even greater results.

4. "As a 'new' Division on the Vesle the 28th was cited in Orders from General Headquarters for its excellent service and the splendid work just completed assures it a place in the very front ranks of the fighting "Red" Divisions. With such a position to maintain it is expected that every man will devote his best effort to the work at hand to hasten that final victory which is now so near."

the 110th Infantry except Chatel-Chehery, Hills 223, 244 and La Chene Tondeu. Of these the 110th assisted in all except La Chene Tondeu.

After the Argonne-Meuse offensive had been completed General Nolan made the following recommendations:

As Brigade Commander, I wish to make of record an appreciation of the work of officers whose duties were such as to bring them under my personal observation.

Lieut.-Colonel Martin, commanding the 110th Regiment, though too ill to command the regiment tactically in the battle after September 30th, MAJ. GEN. CHAS. H. MUIR and aides—Capt. Theodore Boal, Capt. Benj. Tilghman.

1918, nevertheless remained on duty with it in charge of its administration. His attention to the administrative details, in addition to the splendid example he set by remaining on duty though ill, did much to contribute to the efficiency of the Regiment in the battle. He is entitled to promotion to the grade of Colonel, and has demonstrated that he will make an excellent Regimental Commander.

COLONEL JOS. H. THOMPSON and his orderly Private Jerry O'Sullivan.

The second in command of the 110th Regiment, Major Thompson, commanded the Regiment tactically in the battle until the Regiment was relieved for rest on night of October 1st. He continued in command on the afternoon of the 1st, though wounded. In leading the Regiment both in attack and in defense in the Apremont sector he displayed unusual efficiency and the highest qualities of leadership. He was promoted to the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel for his conduct in action, and is entitled to promotion to the grade of Colonel as he has demonstrated his capacity as a Regimental Commander.

Captain Woodend succeeded to the tactical command of the 110th Regiment in its operations in the advance on October 4th and 5th. As Regimental Commander he displayed energy and ability and proved himself an excellent officer in battle. He should be promoted to the next higher grade.

Captain Woodend being ill on October 6th and 7th, the command of the Regiment fell to Captain Dunkle for the operations of October 7th and 8th. Captain Dunkle showed himself to be an officer of exceptional coolness and judgment in battle and merits promotion to the next higher grade.

CHAPTER XXXII.

SPECIAL WORK IN ARGONNE.

The Transport during September 26th remained in the camp occupied by the Regiment for a week, but moved to Varennes on the night of September 27th, arriving there in the early morning of September 28th. The entire Company with its various transports were located to the left of the Montblainville road, where it remained until the Division relief on October 10th.

LIEUT. WM. H. HUMES.
MAJOR ALBERT O. KING.

After the enemy's first shelling on October 1st, he continued to make this the target for artillery fire each day at various intervals up until October 8th. Rations, ammunition and other supplies were sent forward every night. The kitchen and water carts of the various Battalions were sent to the front where hot coffee and warm meals were supplied to the troops. The kitchens were destroyed, as well as several other vehicles and many animals killed. The drivers encountered heavy machine gun and one pounder fire, which originated from enemy snipers, who were reported to have been within our lines.

LIEUT. ARTHUR J. SCHRATWEISER.

The Machine Gun Company took part in every engagement. First Sergeant Womer of this company was commissioned for gallantry in action.

There was very little opportunity for the trench mortars. After the loss of Captain King, Lieutenant Hoard took command of Headquarters Company and handled it with good judgment and skill. The pioneer platoon as usual performed efficiently and with enthusiasm in carrying parties. It also greatly helped in opening wire entanglements.

South of Montblainville, the 37 m/m Platoon did excellent work with its guns, the pioneers doing very satisfactory duty, forming a protective platoon of Infantry for the 37 m/m Platoon in close range fighting. It was at this place that the Headquarters Company Commander, Captain Albert O. King, was wounded, having advanced well ahead of the front line to observe the fire of the 37 m/m guns.

After the capture of Montblainville, the 37 m/m Platoon continued on with the first line of Infantry, performing excellent service in the capture of Apremont, and acted in co-operation with the Machine Gun Company by firing into machine gun nests with their one-pound cannon and drove the enemy out of his shelter, and by so doing making excellent targets for the machine guns. While commanding the 37 m/m Platoon, just prior to the capture of Apremont, Lieut. Arthur J. Schratwiesser was wounded by a machine gun bullet. This platoon took part in some of the most severe fighting in which the Regiment participated, when on the night of October 1st the enemy made a powerful counter attack at Apremont without success. Sergeant Andrew D. Lynch and Sergeant Robert F. Jeffrey won the Distinguished Service Cross at this time, and the former was commissioned as Second Lieutenant for gallantry in action.

During the latter part of this fighting the Regiment had become greatly depleted. A part of the time the First Battalion was under the command of Lieutenant Kennedy. The tactical control of the Regiment was a part of the time under Major Thompson and a part of the time under Captain Woodend and Captain Dunkle. Companies were frequently under non-commissioned officers, and often consolidated.

CAPT. CHARLES L. McLAIN.
CAPT. FREDERICK B. SHAFFER.

It was with the greatest difficulty that the administrative commander, Col. Martin, was able to keep the Regiment organized and officered for tactical purposes, as few replacements were received.

Too much praise cannot be given to the work of Lieutenant Culpepper. When the 35th Division had been hard hit by the enemy and forced back, thereby exposing the right flank of the 110th Infantry, Lieutenant Culpepper volunteered to ascertain the condition in the 35th Division. To do this it was necessary for him to pass over a valley which was being heavily shelled by the enemy and exposed to machine gun fire. He performed his duty and returned with such a clear and accurate report of the situation and location of the 35th Division that General Nolan, commander of the 55th Brigade, could make an intelligent disposition of his troops. While the Regiment was fighting around Apremont, Lieutenant Lutz, of the Signal Platoon, suggested to Sergeant A. T. Holm and Corporal "Butch" Heffner, the advisability of preparing doughnuts for the men on the front line. These men, with the assistance of some others, in the open field and in territory which was being shelled, baked 1800 doughnuts per day, partly from material captured from the Germans and these were taken to the men on the front line and it was kept up for five or six days. General Nolan, the Brigade commander, considered that it had assisted wonderfully in keeping up the morale of the men.

Captain Shaffer had charge of the Medical Detachment and was located with the advance dressing station during the greater part of the campaign. His conscientious devotion to duty was characteristic of his work during the entire war and received the highest commendation of his superiors. He was directed by the Regimental Commander on several occasions during this campaign to go to the rear for rest, but he persisted in remaining on duty.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

WITHDRAW FROM THE ARGONNE.

On October 10th, the Regiment withdrew from the Argonne sector and marched from Camp d' Buzon to Neuville where it embussed late in the afternoon and arrived in its new area the following day. The Supply Company and transports travelled overland and arrived two days later at Menil-le-Tour. During this march Captain Howard C. Braddock, who had been severely gassed, and Lieutenant Valentine E. Dubs contracted pneumonia and died. They were experienced officers, who performed excellent services in charge of the Supply Company. Their organization was considered the most efficient of its kind in the 28th Division. Their deaths resulted from their tireless efforts to perform their full military duty.

LIEUT. VALENTINE E. DUBBS.
Died October 23, 1918.

Colonel Blanton Winship was assigned to the Regiment and took command October 14th. Colonel Winship was an officer of the army of the highest qualifications. He was originally in the Judge Advocate's Department, and was a peerless leader of men, admired by the Regiment.

Regimental Headquarters were established at Avrainville. The First Battalion was located at Sanzey, Second Battalion at de St. Charles Farm, Third Battalion at Avrainville and Machine Gun and Headquarters Companies at Menil-la-Tour. The Regiment received sixteen hundred and fifty replacements, the greater number being from veteran Divisions.

On October 17th the Regiment left its billeting area and proceeded to march to its new sector and occupied ground made memorable as the field where the Hun and Americans first grappled for supremacy.

Regimental Headquarters, Third Battalion and Supply Company were located at Mandres. First Battalion at Beaumont, Second Battalion at Ramboucourt and Headquarters and Machine Gun Companies at Seicheprey. Several American Divisions, which later became famous, had their preliminary training on this ground. The whole country was traversed by old trench systems and the land covered with barb-wire entanglements.

For nine days the Regiment occupied this position and again took up intensive training. The Regiment also had target practice and maneuvers.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

OCCUPY THIAICOURT SECTOR.

On October 27th, the Regiment started the relief of the 153rd and 146th French Infantry in what is known as the Thiaccourt sector, which is immediately south of Metz. To reach this point it marched through what was formerly the St. Mihiel salient, passed the famous Mont Sec, where the French and Germans had lost thousands of men in the earlier days of the war.

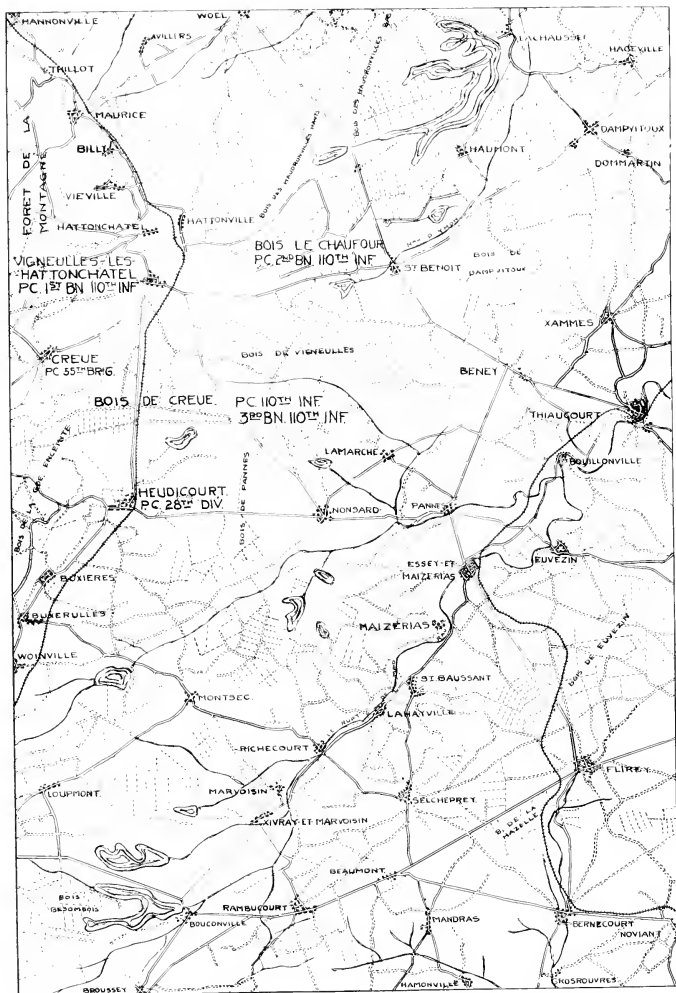

On November 2nd the following appears in the official history of the Regiment:

On this day the Regiment, with the deepest feeling of regret said farewell to its former commander, Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Martin, who had been ordered home for promotion and assignment to duty. No words could adequately express the appreciation and devotion of the Regiment for Colonel Martin or his love for it. ment until it was incorporated in the 110th Infantry with him as one of the Battalion Commanders. As he could not personally say farewell to each individual man, Colonel Martin left the following letter:

"By Division Order I have been directed to return to the United States for duty and I take this as my only opportunity of expressing to all the officers and men of this Regiment my appreciation of the splendid and loyal support given to me at all times. I have been continuously connected with this Regiment in various capacities for more than twenty years, and severing relations with the organization is with the keenest regret. My association with the officers and men of the 110th Infantry will be one of my fondest recollections.

"It is of my relations of the past few months of which I particularly desire to speak. I do not think a more courageous or conscientious organization of men ever assembled. Your work under the most trying circumstances has been performed with a cheerfulness and spirit unsurpassed, which have always crowned your efforts with victory. The old 10th Pennsylvania Infantry, the father of the organization, never knew a retreat. The 110th Infantry has never given up one foot of ground unless ordered to do so by a higher command. You have been making history. The Marne, Conde-en-Brie, Grimettes Woods, the Vesle, Argonne Forest, all will have a glorious place on the most brilliant pages of American History.

"I hope for your continued success and bespeak for the Regimental Commanders of the future the same loyalty and same effort you have made for me.

"That the War may end soon and that you may be safely returned to your home is my prayer."

FINAL ACTION.

Regimental Headquarters were moved to P. C. Chauffour in the Bois-de-Creue. The Regiment at this place occupied a sector seven kilometers in width and was echeloned in depth to almost ten kilometers. The Regiment was actively engaged in patrolling, and while one hundred casualties were suffered the sector was considered inactive. Preparations, however, were being made for a general advance.

November 10th at 4:30 in the morning, the entire Regiment was alerted and moved to the vicinity of Haumont. Major Aiken was sent to Regimental Headquarters as second in command and Captain A. O. King was sent to St. Benoit to take command of the Second Battalion, and later in the day the whole Regiment was concentrated near Haumont preparatory to an attack. At 4:00 A. M. on the morning of November 11th, a Brigade field order was issued directing that an attack be made through Haumont. The Second Battalion and one Battalion of the 100th Infantry captured the enemy positions east of Haumont. The First Battalion was preparing for a similar attack in the sector north of Haumont.

The attack had progressed to the east of Haumont with almost one hundred casualties, a large number of which were from the leading Battalion of the 100th. When Major King received a field message from Major Woodend informing him that he had received information that hostilities were to cease at 11:00 A. M. This message received at 9:20 A. M. ended the war as far as the 110th Infantry is concerned. The message directed that the advance stop and that the organizations take up a defensive position. The Battalion was halted and took cover in some old trenches in the woods.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

PEACE COMES.

On November 11th, 1918, the Regiment had its task and throughout the morning was maneuvering for position. The first official news reached Colonel Winship at 8:18 and later an order was directed to cease all activities except the placing of small outposts, and Battalion Commanders were to submit an accurate sketch showing their more advanced elements. Two minutes before the hour for the ceasing of hostilities, gunners frantically shoved shell after shell over to Fritz, but promptly on the hour silence reigned.

The artillery fire of both sides was kept up until the very last minute and the town of

COL. JOS. H. THOMPSON.

Hammont was almost completely destroyed in the last two hours of the war. When the hour of 11:00 A. M. arrived, the Infantrymen, huddled in the mud, realized that the rumors of an armistice were true and that the war was at an end.

The sudden ceasing of hostilities was almost unbelievable. There was very little cheering. The band which was stationed in the Bois de Creue, played the "Star Spangled Banner". The biggest celebration was at night when the men illuminated their quarters brilliantly, the first time they had been permitted to do such a thing since coming to France.

The armistice order directed that there was to be no fraternization with the enemy. The Germans exhibited a strong desire to fraternize, but the Americans remained indifferent and complied strictly with orders. A line of sentinels or outposts was established and the main body of the troops withdrawn.

The returning of escaped prisoners from the German lines and the extreme desire of the Germans to fraternize, made it absolutely necessary to increase the guards and this condition remained until the German army started its retirement to the Rhine on November 16th.

Colonel Winship was succeeded by Colonel Samuel V. Ham, November 26, 1918. Colonel Ham was followed by Colonel Henry L. Kinnisson, January 22, 1919. These were both regular army men. Major King was in command March 16th to March 21st. March 21st Lieutenant Colonel Aiken was placed in charge of the Regiment, which position he held until Colonel Joseph H. Thompson returned to the organization April 12th, 1919, and assumed command and brought the Regiment back to the United States. Colonel Thompson, immediately after the signing of the armistice, was placed in charge of general athletic work for the Second Army.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

BECOME PART OF ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

From November 16th to December 10th, the time was spent in policing, inspections, and maneuvers, when the Regiment started to move northward to take over a large area in the vicinity of Briey. This area was filled with abandoned supplies, ammunition dumps, pioneer parks, camps, etc., of the German army in its operation on the Verdun front. The making of inventories of all this material and the guarding of the same was not only an important duty, but was very interesting work. The men were quartered in the best abandoned German billets and were soon comfortably located.

Early in December it was announced that the Division was to become a part of the Army of Occupation. December 10th Regimental Headquarters and the Second Battalion moved to Briey. Outposts were established covering a territory including part of Lorraine on the east and Fort Douaumont near Verdun on the west, and between Puxieux on the south and Audun-C-Roman on the north. The remainder of the Regiment arrived December 18, 19 and 20.

December 19th the area of the Regiment was increased. Immense ammunition dumps and supplies of the Germans were found in this area, and were guarded by the Regiment.

January 17, 1919, after the Regiment was relieved by the 24th Infantry of the 7th Division, it started to move to the Colombey-Les-Belle area. Fifty car loads of lumber, wire, stores, etc., were taken from the German dump to the new area to assist in making comfortable quarters for the men.

March 17, 1919, the Regiment started to leave the Colombey-Les-Belle area for the Le-Mans area and left that point for St. Nazaire April 17, 1919, and sailed for the United States from that place April 29.

Following are the movements of each battalion after the Armistice: 1st Battalion, less A Company, moved to Creue, Company A moving to Hattonchatel. From November 27 to November 30, the Battalion was engaged in training, salvaging and policing the area in which it was located. December 9, Company A moved from Hattonchatel to Creue and joined the Battalion. December 19, Battalion Headquarters, Companies A and B under command of Major King, left Creue at 8:30 A. M. and proceeded via St. Benoit, Mars-la-Tour, Conflans, Etain, Eton and Baroncourt to Boulogny arriving at Boulogny Kol at 1:30 P. M. December 20th, Companies C and D proceeded from Creue at 8:30 A. M. and located in near-by towns. Company C arrived at Spincourt at 2:00 P. M. and D Company arrived at Boulogny at 1:30 P. M. same date.

While in this advanced area the Battalion guarded stations, mines and large German ammunition dumps at Gondrecourt, Spincourt, Baroncourt, Boulogny Kol and Piennes. January 7th, 1919, Company D left Boulogny at 8:30 A. M. and marched to Jeandelize, Company B going to Puxe. Company C departed from Spincourt at 7:15 A. M. January 8th and marched to Jeandelize arriving at 3:15 P. M. same date. The Battalion was relieved of the advanced area by the 34th U. S. Infantry. Training duties were performed until January 17th, 1919. The Battalion entrained at Jeandelize at 10:26 A. M., January 19th, and detrained at Barizey-la-Cote at 6:30 A. M., January 20th and marched to Crepey arriving at 11:30 A. M. same date. March 17th, the Battalion left Crepey and marched to Barizey-la-Cote, arriving at 11:30 P. M. same date. Entrained and departed from said station at 5:16 A. M. March 18th. March 20th, Battalion arrived at Forwarding camp at Le Mans at 2:00 A. M. and immediately detrained upon arrival. The Battalion was billeted in barracks.

On the afternoon of November 11th, Second Battalion Headquarters moved to the Chateau in St. Benoit, where it remained until the following day when it moved to Haumont. After policing and salvaging the area the Battalion December 10th under command of Captain Warren A. Seavey moved to Briey. Here Battalion and Regimental Headquarters were established and attached to the Army of Occupation. The Battalion was split into small detachments and stationed in near-by towns, guarding property, left and turned over by the Germans under the terms of the armistice. On January 8th, the Battalion was relieved by a Battalion of the 34th Infantry and moved by rail to Jarny. After a rest of twelve days in Jarny, the Battalion entrained at Conflans and proceeded to Barisey-la-Cote where it detrained and marched fourteen kilometers to Germigny where training was taken up. Major Aiken was detailed to Division Headquarters as Athletic Officer and Major Dunkle took command.

Shortly after the signing of the armistice the majority of the animals of the Supply Company were turned in for the use of the Occupation Army, but before leaving the area we received

On March 18th the Battalion entrained at Barisey-la-Cote and after three days arrived in the forwarding camp at Le Mans, where the final preparations for the journey were made.

Training and salvaging was carried on by the Third Battalion until November 31st, when it moved to Hattonville, and the same routine was carried on here. On December 18th the Battalion under Major Woodend, moved forward to guard salvage dumps. Battalion Headquarters were at Conflans, Company I at Labry, Company K at Mars-la-Tour, Companies L and M at Conflans. The first step of the homeward journey was made January 19, 1919, when we entrained for Allain. While here a drill schedule was carried out. On March 14th Major John W. Woodend was transferred from the regiment and Major Albert O. King assumed command. On the night of March 18th, we hiked to Braizey-la-Cote where the Battalion entrained for the second movement homeward. March 21st at 1:00 A. M. it arrived at American Embarkation Center, Le Mans, France.

January 19th moved to Colombey-les-Belles area, the Headquarters Supply arriving at Allain the same day, where a dump was established; the First, Second and Third Battalions, Machine Gun Company and Headquarters Transports arrived at their respective destinations viz: Crepey—Allain—Saulxures—and Thuilly two days later. On the 28th of December the Machine Gun Company Transport was moved with that organization to Mont l'Etroit.

It was here that the Regiment took great interest in the several horse shows held within the Division and every man of the Supply Company was constantly kept busy in putting his animals, harness and vehicles in shape for the shows. Several prizes were awarded to the Regiment for the good condition of its transport, advancing from last place to first in the Division Horse Show standing.

All animals, as well as surplus equipment, were turned in here and on March 19th the Company entrained for the new area, arriving at the Le Mans Embarkation Camp on March 21st.

The following is characteristic of the American soldiers, and is accredited to Company I:

December 25th, while in the Conflans area, the Company had a special dinner. In the evening a Christmas tree was decorated and the men of the company donated the candy that had been given to them to the children of Labry. The children were assembled in a large hall where the tree was lighted up and then each child was presented with two bars of chocolate and a package of cakes. The children were much pleased, as it was the first real Christmas they had enjoyed for four years. They sang Christmas Carols in their native tongue and several members of the Company rendered American Christmas Carols. The services ended by the French singing their National Anthem and the men of the Company replied with the American National Anthem.

Football teams were organized and other entertainments arranged for the men. The Germans had theaters which were utilized by our troops.

The 28th Division Football Team was organized January 15, 1919. Major John Aiken of the 110th was in full charge of the teams as coach, instructor and director.

The team was quartered near Columbeley-Les-Belle, at that time the headquarters of the 28th Division. So great was the interest in the team that one hundred twenty-five men reported for the first practice. After two weeks of earnest work the team had its first game and won from the 6th Division by the score of 6-0.

The second game was with the 79th Division, which had among its players a number of college stars and many of the experts picked it to win the Second Army championship. This game was played on the home grounds and resulted in a 0-0 score. The following Saturday the 28th Division team played the 79th on its own ground and won by the decisive score of 9-0.

The 5th Division had been unbeaten and probably contained more college stars than any other aggregation in the A. E. F. It included such players as Pete Russell, an all-American player. The game was played at Columbeley-Les-Belle and resulted in another 0-0 score. The following Saturday the 28th Division team traveled to Luxemburg with "Buc Franks" and many rooters. After sixty minutes of the finest example of football the score again remained 0-0. The next week the teams again met at Second Army Headquarters before a crowd of more than twenty thousand soldiers. The Keystone Division team won by the close score of 3-0.

In the meantime the 7th Division, which was to play the winner, had been patiently waiting, as it had easily defeated all comers. The tie games played between the 5th and 28th had resulted in holding up the game in Paris for the A. E. F. championship. An order was issued from G. H. Q. to play the 7th Division on the Tuesday following the Saturday when the 28th had wrested the victory from the 5th. General Headquarters also directed that there should be no tie game and that in case of an even score that the team gaining the greatest number of yards should be awarded the victory. The game resulted in a 0-0 score, but in footing up the number of yards gained by each aggregation it was found that the 7th Division had gained a total of twenty yards more than the 28th. It was therefore awarded the Second Army championship. Among the stars on the 28th Division team were Wickerham, Amos, Verderber, Taylor and Yeager, all of the 110th.

SOME PRAISE.

The following statements will probably be of interest to the friends of the Regiment:

The work of the Headquarters Organization is deserving of special commendation. Comment has already been made concerning the superior service of Captain Hitchman who organized this feature of the work. Captain William E. Pierce, who succeeded Captain Hitchman, was an officer of the highest value. He was brave to a fault, and had a keen conception of everything pertaining to the Regiment, both administrative and in combat. Being possessed of a fine physique, a clear head and a willingness to work, coupled with a military knowledge, made him of inestimable value to the Regiment and he always gave his best. He was capably assisted by Captain Alexander, Captain Quarles, Sergeant Majors King and Moorehead and the various other men connected with Headquarters.

CAPT. CYRUS L. HORNER.
LIEUT. COL. JOHN AIKEN.

The career of the field officers of the regiment, as called into service, is noteworthy.

General Coulter was sent to the 41st Division and was later transferred to base section No. 4, with headquarters at La Havre, where he administered the work of that place in a manner to receive the highest commendation of his superiors. He should, however, have been assigned to the 28th Division.

General Price, while never a part of the 110th, was formerly commander of the Old Third, and the able manner in which he handled the Artillery

CAPT. JOHN J. KENNEDY.

Brigade of the Division is a great honor to the Commonwealth.

Colonel Kemp was detached from the Regiment July 29th and sent to the S. O. S. where he performed remarkable service for the government as commander of St. Nazaire. He was a conscientious, painstaking officer, whose devotion to duty was of the best.

Considerable comment has already been made concerning the work of Lieutenant Colonel

SGT. ARTHUR BUCHANAN, Hdq. Co.
SGT. SILVA E. HARTLEY, Co. K.

Henry W. Coulter, who commanded the 110th and 109th Infantry with rare skill and good judgment.

Much comment has also been made concerning the services of Major Martin, who was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel for gallantry in action and ordered to the United States for advancement to the rank of Colonel, but was deprived of this honor by reason of the signing of the armistice.

Much comment has also been made concerning the work of Major Thompson who, for skill and bravery in the Argonne, was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel and later received the rank of Colonel. He had the honor of bringing the Regiment back to the United States.

Major Anderson, who was killed September 5th, was one of the bravest soldiers of the 110th. He never directed his men to go any place but always acted as their leader. At Courmont he was severely burned by mustard gas and badly hurt by a piece of shrapnel, yet he refused to leave the Regiment. His devotion to duty was so sincere and he is of that class of men who make the American army unbeatable.

Captain Aiken so skillfully handled his old Company and performed such meritorious work south of Conde-en-Brie that he was made a Major, and later given the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel by reason of faithful service.

Major Bryce, who organized the Supply Company, which with such remarkable success handled the supplies of the Regiment, was advanced and made assistant to the Division Supply Officer.

Captain King, whose military skill so perfectly organized the complex units of the Headquarters Company, had his worth recognized and he was advanced to the rank of Major.

Captain Fish was one of the best drill-masters in the Regiment, a careful organizer and capable in combat, and in recognition of these qualities was advanced to Major.

Captain Dunkle was a splendid soldier, brave in action and a fearless leader and was promoted to the rank of Major.

Captain Boyle who rendered such conspicuous service during many occasions was deprived the promotion which his service warranted by reason of being severely wounded. He had already been recommended for promotion and directed to take his physical examination for the same, but postponed it in order to give attention to the Company.

Captain Stackpole also lost a promotion to a Majority, which his services entirely warranted, by being severely wounded on the Vesle River.

Captain Schall, by reason of his remarkable services as morale officer, was placed in charge of the Chaplains of the Corps.

Major McKee, Captains Schaffer, Sylvis, Linn and McCutcheon, all performed services fully warranting promotion to an advanced rank, but owing to the fact that there were no vacancies in the front line at this time, they were deprived of the honor, none of them desiring to perform hospital work. Captain Schaffer's work in the Argonne was worthy of the highest praise.

The 110th Band was one of the most enthusiastic organizations of the Regiment and was at all times willing and anxious to perform its full duty. In addition to its regular field and military formations, it participated in more than 250 concerts, church services, Red Cross benefits, Liberty Loan drives, and entertainments, despite the fact that there was a period of eighteen weeks in France where war conditions made it impossible for the Band to play, as the Regiment was either actively engaged in battle or traveling from one sector to another. The Band was designated to furnish the music at the 28th Division Memorial Services in memory of Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart at Camp Hancock. It led the Second Army when Lieut. General Bullard was decorated by the Belgian Government and also furnished the music for the French and Belgian ceremony conferring decorations at Toul and Le Mans. It played for the 28th Division when the Division was being reviewed by General Bullard and also accompanied the 28th Division football team upon its tour through Luxembourg. The great success of the 110th Band was due to the loyalty of the members but too much credit cannot be given to its leader, Don M. Kimmel. At the close of the war the members of the Band gave to this sterling soldier a testimonial of their appreciation of his sincere work and square dealing, which was signed by every member of the Band. He was named by G. H. Q. as the examiner to select five men from the 28th Division bands to be transferred to General Pershing's Band, and he was also put in charge of the musical part of the Division when reviewed by General Pershing, March 10, 1919.

REGIMENT ARRIVES IN AMERICA.

Regimental Headquarters, First Battalion, Machine Gun and Supply Companies, and a part of

The Regiment, being a Pennsylvania National Guard outfit, was at first composed almost entirely of officers and men from the Keystone State, but after the first great battle, the Regiment received replacements from all parts of the Company E arrived in Philadelphia at 8 o'clock on the evening of May 11th, and immediately debarked and entrained for Camp Dix. The balance of the Regiment, less a part of Company M, arrived the following day. The ships were met by tugs carrying the friends of the Regiment. All along the Delaware River, factory whistles shrilled a welcome to the returning Keystone soldiers.

The Regiment left Camp Dix May 14th to take part in the great Welcome Home Parade in Philadelphia. The Regiment while in Philadelphia was quartered in the Old Third Regiment Armory.

The parade, which was the last appearance of the 28th Division, took place in the City of Brotherly Love, May 15, 1919. It was the most pretentious Home Coming Celebration ever accorded to Pennsylvania soldiers. It is estimated that two million people viewed the parade as it passed over the streets of Philadelphia. The spontaneous cheers which greeted the boys as they marched along the street was a welcome which will never be forgotten. In the afternoon the Regiment returned to Camp Dix, where it was met with an order detaching it from the 28th Division and the process of mustering out had started. The officers and men were transferred to various units for muster out purposes, and soon all were on their way to their respective homes to again take up their place in civilian life.

The casualties of the 110th Regiment during the war were 4183, or one hundred and twelve percent.

This is a large number but it is such devotion to duty which has permitted free government to live. Traditions and associations are the ground work of great military organizations and an appreciation of those who made the history of the 110th possible has already been written. At the beginning we acknowledged the wonderful service and effort of the men of the early organizations of the Regiment. Space does not permit an acknowledgment, or comment upon individual bravery, heroism or loyalty, for brave deeds and remarkable things were being accomplished at all times. The proud record of the Regiment is due more to the high and efficient standard attained than individual effort. The officers, the non-commissioned officers and the privates worked together as a well-trained and perfect team. All worked together in a spirit of harmony which crowned our efforts with success. A spirit of good cheer prevailed under the most adverse circumstances, and criticism and complaints were seldom heard.

The greatest consolation to the comrades of a soldier who has made the supreme sacrifice, is that he fell facing the enemy. Our boys fell with their faces to the front and were soldiers of the highest type. They lived in a manner to reflect the greatest credit upon American arms and their memories will always be kept green by proud comrades.

More than six hundred of the 110th Regiment, who made the supreme sacrifice, and whose bodies now sleep in the little American cemeties in France, the living of the Regiment hail with the greatest reverence and respect, and we call upon our friends and the friends of all soldiers to make a new resolve that the principles for which these men and other men who have gone before us fought, may not be lost, but that the fires of patriotism and love of America be replenished and that this country continue to enjoy the greatest growth and happiness in its history. Thus we will erect the most enduring monument, which can be constructed to the brave boys of all our wars, who have given all in order that the principles of civil and religious liberty might live eternally!

Prison Experience

By CAPT. WILLIAM C. TRUXAL

We had been fighting with our backs to the Marne for approximately four hours. We knew that we were surrounded and that only good luck would get us out of our predicament. There were about ten Americans left, approximately fifty Frenchmen. Our formation was somewhat in a V shape, Americans back to back with the French. The French were protecting our rear, facing the village of Courthiezy. We were facing the opposite direction. We were standing behind trees and stumps and using whatever cover was available along the road leading from Dormans through Chateau Thierry to Paris. Suddenly the German machine guns and automatic rifles ceased firing. I was standing behind a tree on one side of the road. One of my sergeants was on the other side of the road behind a tree. When the firing ceased I turned quickly to the left and saw a German officer tapping the sergeant on the shoulder just as he was in the act of firing at some Germans and heard him say, "Finish." I turned a little further and saw within five paces the head of a German column marching on the road in close order with rifles slung across their backs. The French had surrendered without notice to me. I turned a little further and saw proceeding up the hill a thousand yards to my rear and to the right, the German artillery. We were then behind the German artillery. The column proceeded along the road, separating the remaining Americans standing on both sides of the road. I had my automatic pistol in hand, turned and walked through the advancing column without having a word spoken to me. I went down over the side of the road into the culvert to French Headquarters and there saw that the French officer had surrendered in writing to a German officer. They both walked out leaving me behind in the culvert under the road. I took my pistol, unloaded it, broke it and threw it in the mud and water underneath a plank. I took my orders and tore them up, throwing the fragments also under the plank. My compass, map, money, a large pen-knife with a saw on it, and a few other small trinkets I hid in my leggings and trouser legs. I had scarcely finished this when a German appeared at the mouth of the Culvert and ordered me out. I walked out on top of the road, and under a guard together with the other prisoners was made to cross the Marne river. Our Artillery was pounding away heavily. The Allied airplanes were busy ground-"strafing" and attempting to hinder the advance of the Germans. It was impossible for them to distinguish prisoners from the enemy, and we were therefore subjected to our own fire. They led us back about three kilometers, marching along side their advancing troops, to their heavy artillery. We remained there approximately an hour when we were again taken out and led by the side of their advancing transport back toward the Marne to the village of Treloup, which was then being shelled by our artillery and bombed by our aeroplanes. They kept us there probably an hour and then, with a large number of French prisoners, we were moved back again to the heavy artillery, marching as before, along side their advancing transport.

During this time I was able to see the frightful execution of our automatic rifles and machine guns on the river front, as well as the execution of our artillery and aviators during the German advance. Luck seems to have been with the Allied prisoners during this forenoon, as, while the enemy fell by the dozen all around us and close by our side, none of them were killed.

When I crossed the Marne I saw in echelon, beginning within fifteen yards of the river bank, machine gun after machine gun, trench mortar battery after trench mortar battery wheel to wheel, graduated back to the light artillery, and then to the heavy artillery. The entire ground on the north side of the Marne was completely covered with German light and heavy artillery.

I saw piled up on the river bank hundreds of Germans killed by our automatic rifles from the other side of the river. I saw the bodies of Germans floating in the Marne, and as I went back through our barrage three times I saw hundreds upon hundreds of Germans killed, and as many wagons and horses of their transport blown up by artillery and bombs. I well remember a German officer riding within fifty yards of our column. He wore large tortoise shell glasses and sat a horse only as a trained German officer knows how. A shell struck directly underneath horse and rider, and the picture came to my mind of a boy making mud balls and throwing them into the air. As the mud ball gains in momentum a piece flies off here and there until there is practically nothing left of the ball. That is what the shell did to the German officer and horse. Again, a Company or two of Germans were hiding in a small French graveyard near Courcells. The graveyard was surrounded by a stone wall. One of our aviators saw them, gave the target to a battery of 75's, and they dropped sixty to seventy-five shells in the graveyard in as many seconds. Boche heads, arms and legs and tombstones came out together. A number of us laughed at this, which almost proved our undoing, as the Germans marching by our side began to mutter and curse and act in a very threatening manner. Again, we were marching along side the transport going toward Treloup, when a German driving two horses with a heavily loaded wagon, without warning, with a fiendish grin on his face, pulled his team sharply to the right for no other purpose than to run us down or see us jump. In order to save ourselves from being run over three of us who were at the head of the column had to throw ourselves forward, while the men behind us were compelled to throw themselves back on the ground. At this identical moment an Allied aviator dived and dropped a bomb, which was unquestionably aimed at us, thinking we were Germans. The bomb landed between the two horses, and as I slid forward rolling over on my back, (it all happened in a second), the horses had reared above me, completely disembowelled, and the German, with part of his head blown off was falling between the horses. And not an Allied prisoner of war was scratched! I saw eight Germans at almost equal intervals around a shell hole, just as if they had been placed there, each one with his head at the edge of the hole as if taking a drink of water, and all of them dead. We saw transport after transport to pieces lying along the side of the road; hundreds of horses killed, and a frequent sight was a German still astride his horse, both horse and man killed. I saw lying along the edge of the road German after German who had been almost blown to pieces. Part of the body still remained on the road. Evidently as their men were killed they pulled them to the side of the road, and if the leg or part of the body remained on the road afterwards, they did not take the time or trouble of removing it, but drove their transport over the piece of human flesh tramping and grinding it into the mud and ground. Such was their haste to reach Paris.

One question which has been asked me probably more frequently than any other since my return to America has been "How did they treat you?" In order that our treatment may be fully understood it is necessary first of all that the German character or the German at war be properly understood. And it must be remembered that in my statements I refer only to the German at war, to the German in Germany. Probably eighty of the members of my Company including myself are of German descent. During the five years that I was connected with the Army my Company was always called the "dutch Company." But the German in Germany and the German-American are two entirely different persons. In my opinion the German, and particularly the German officer, is the biggest bluffer, the biggest faker, the biggest braggart, the biggest liar and the most gullible man I have ever known. He thinks that he can lie and that every body believes him, and that no person would ever think of lying to him; while the fact is that he is the poorest liar it has ever been my misfortune to meet.

Shortly after being taken prisoner I saw a German officer reprimand a soldier. This officer was a Prussian and reprimanded him for not having me, an officer, at the head of the line instead of back where I was, marching with my men. For various reasons I kept away from the French and stayed back with my own boys, many of whom were wounded. This German officer, over six feet in height and weighing over two hundred pounds, thrust his face within six inches of the face of the boy he was reprimanding, who was no more than eighteen years of age, about five feet in height and weighing about one hundred thirty pounds, purple with rage, and he yelled at the top of his voice, waving his hands frantically, spitting as he talked, and cursed the boy from head to foot, calling him everything he could think of. I made up my mind, as did every other American who heard this, that this German officer was a great big bluffer, that he was all wind or he would not need to talk in such a manner or act in such a way in reprimanding one of his men. Shortly afterwards when he was within a few steps of me he yelled at me at the top of his voice, I turned around, and though I did not know what he said to me and he did not know what I said to him, I yelled back just as loud as he had yelled, and he came up and apologized saying that he did not know I was an officer. However, a few minutes later he did the same thing to a boy from the 109th Infantry from Philadelphia, and as this boy saw what I had done, he turned around and yelled back at him just as loud as he had yelled, and he apologized to the boy.

As our column moved back through the German lines and passed the artillery, the Germans called us names such as "Schwein-hund". We laughed at them because at the same time, again and again, they exhibited their true feelings by yelling "You thought you were better than us, now here you are a prisoner, 'uh-huh'". Every time a German yelled this you would hear an American doughboy somewhere in the line answer back "ja". The mere fact that was on their minds was sufficient evidence to every American prisoner that we actually were better than they and that they admitted it. We were beginning to understand the German better and better. Again, a German boy came up and attempted to take a rain coat which I was wearing. I yelled at him to go away, I was an officer. He clicked his heels together and saluted and went on. Later I gave this raincoat to one of my boys who had been wounded. Two Germans came after the coat. I had a short struggle with them to save the boy, but they started in with their bayonets and got the coat.

The next question that has been asked me again and again is "What did they give you to eat?" I am fully convinced that all the American prisoners of war owe their lives to the American Red Cross. True, the Germans gave us something to eat, yet they did not give us enough to sustain life should any of us become ill. I was taken prisoner on July 15th. On that day I received nothing to eat, but on the 16th we were told that we could get some rations. We had neither knife, fork, spoon, mess-pan or tin cup. (One of the things that had struck us all as rather strange was the fact that when the French were taken prisoner they came over with two or three days rations, plenty of tobacco and cigarettes and a complete mess outfit and toilet articles. In other words, they were prepared. The Americans, when they were taken prisoner, came in dirty, bloody, grimy, without blouses, sleeves rolled up and with the appearance of having put up a hard fight. The French were immaculate, or at least, as clean as they were before they were taken prisoner). We went out to the garbage pile and there hunted out the best looking tin can we could find, scrubbed and washed and scoured it with mud and water, and were ready for mess. About five or six o'clock we went up to the barnyard and there received our first German meal, consisting of one can of soup made with dried cherries and water boiled together, no fat, and a piece of bread. The morning of the 17th we got nothing to eat, and were lined up along with a lot of French officers and moved out about eight o'clock back toward Fismes. All day long we marched stopping now and then for rest and once for a drink of water. About five o'clock in the evening we arrived at Fismes, and there, after a rest of an hour, received our first big meal, at German hands, consisting of a tin can of barley soup, (barley and water boiled together without fat), a can of imitation coffee, a piece of bread and a small piece of limburger cheese about one inch and a half square. We did not bother skimming the cheese—we ate it rind and all. We then left and started again on the road. It got dark, and I do not remember where we marched to that night. About twelve o'clock midnight I turned to one of the officers and said, "I don't believe I can make it any further, I am all in." He replied, "Stick to it. I believe we have only about a hundred yards more." We started to move again, I became faint and dropped to my knees. They helped me up, and it started to rain. The heavens seemed to open, it came down in torrents. We struggled on about a hundred yards into a corral, a low lying field. There was about an inch of water covering the field. We were exhausted. We took our steel helmets, put them on the ground as pillows and lay down in the water, wrapped our arms and legs around each other and slept. We rested this way for probably two hours and then got up and walked to keep warm. It was still raining torrents. About nine o'clock in the morning it stopped raining. We took off our blouses and wrung the water out of them, put them back on, started a small fire and tried to get warm. Shortly afterwards we were driven over into a barn. Here we found an imitation cot and some excelsior. Using the excelsior for cover we lay down and slept that day until our clothing dried on us, and it didn't hurt a single one. The next morning we got up and got another can of soup. This time the soup had some nourishment in it. I think it was made of corn meal and water, there may have been a little fat in it, I do not know. We started again and marched all that day, arriving at Laon in the late afternoon. We were exhausted and if my recollection serves me right we did not have a drink of water all that day until arriving at the out-skirts of Laon.

An incident occurred on our trip to Laon which will be long remembered by all the American prisoners of war. When we moved out in the early morning I noticed an old French priest with the French officers. He was a big, fine looking man with a long grey beard. He wore a heavy black robe reaching to the ground. He was between seventy-five and eighty years of age, and I wondered at the time whether this feeble old man would be able to march far or whether the Germans intended to haul him part of the way. He carried a large staff to aid him on the march, and smiling he trudged along speaking words of encouragement to the men. The heat was terrific. As we moved along mile after mile I noticed a haggard expression gradually creeping over his face, yet without a complaint and smiling pleasantly when any one spoke to him, he marched on. How long would he be able to stand it? How long would these German guards insist on making this old man march, was the question uppermost in the minds of all the Americans. We learned to love him for his pluck, endurance and cheerfulness, and yet we knew that it was only a matter of a few more steps before he would be entirely exhausted. A number of times we talked among ourselves, having in view making a request of the German guard to get some sort of transportation for him. Finally when within sight of the city of Laon, probably five miles distant, the old man sat down and said he could go no further. I have never seen such an expression of suffering and agony on the face of any human before. He had stuck to the march until almost the end before making any complaint. I had discovered a Frenchman who could speak German, and called his attention to the condition of the old man and suggested that he talk to the German in command of the prisoners. He said it would be no use, but I insisted, and the two of us went to the German and told him that this old man could go no further, that it was not right to treat a non-combatant, a Chaplain, the same way that combatants were treated. At first the German was angry, talked loud and waved his hands as all Germans do. As we were talking two Germans came by driving two horses in a sort of buckboard. As they came by I held up my hand and the German driving the horses stopped. I then called the attention of the German guard to this team and without saying a word he walked across the road and beckoned the old man to follow him. He brought him over and we helped him into the buckboard. Later that evening the old man was waiting our arrival in the city of Laon. We came marching slowly into the town and we were met by this old priest smiling pleasantly to everyone as he had done during the march. After hunting the German guard and myself out he thanked us profusely for the interest which we had taken in him. This incident and many others of a similar character which I had experienced taught me that the German was practically devoid of all the finer sensibilities and seemed to be blind to the sufferings of others.

We received nothing further to eat that day, but the next day we were introduced to a new dish, and near starvation as we were, it was too much for the majority of the men. It was a soup made of large cow beets chopped in chunks, some as large as a fist, boiled with water without fat. It was a purplish-greenish slime, with a bitter flavor. Some of us succeeded in eating some of it by dipping the black German bread into it, but the majority were nauseated from the odor alone.

It was at Laon that I came to the conclusion that the treatment of the prisoners depended largely upon the particular German with whom we came in contact. It was there that I saw two "English Tommies", half starved from lack of food and faint with fatigue, eyes protruding, faces drawn, ask a German sergeant permission to "lick out" a bucket from which they had been serving German marmalade. The German said "Ja", but as they hastily stepped forward to grab the bucket the German kicked it, and as the boys stooped over reaching for it the German kicked them both, throwing them head first on the cobble stones; and that German and a few others laughed heartily at the joke. However, at that same camp they were serving beer to the German soldiers. I went to one of the American officers and said, "I am going to try to get some of that beer", being sure that there would be more nourishment in the beer they were serving to their own soldiers than all the food they had served to the prisoners. The American officer said, "Don't do it, you will only get yourself into trouble, and probably the rest of us. You will probably only get cursed out." I said, "I don't believe it, I am going to take a chance." I got my tin can, walked down into the courtyard. A couple hundred Germans were there and they were gathering pretty thick around the place where the beer was being issued. I looked over the crowd carefully and finally picked out a boy about eighteen years of age, with red cheeks. I looked at him a minute, then winked and nodded my head backward as if I wanted to talk to him. He looked at me and then turning around to see if any one was watching him, he stepped out cautiously to my side. I could not speak German, but I said, "Kann ich nicht some Beer haben?" He looked at me about a minute and again very cautiously turned around as if he was afraid some person had heard or seen, and said, "Jawohl", jerked his head beckoning me to follow him, and we went pitter patter up three flights of stairs, I following the little German. When we got on the third floor, he motioned me to stand still, went into a room and coming out with a bucket of beer, he filled my can. He then said something to me which I understood (the wish was probably father of the thought) to mean "your can is not large enough", it was "nicht zu fuhl", or something like that. I immediately ran to my room and said to the fellows, "For Heavens sake, give me another can, the biggest one you have got". One of the fellows threw one at me, not knowing what I meant or was about, but in those days questions were not asked, and it was nothing startling to see any particular fellow acting rather strangely. I ran back to the German and he filled this can. I offered to pay him for it and he looked up at me and said, "Nein, nein, kamerad".

We remained at Laon, I believe, about three days. Every night we were there the Allied aeroplanes came over. We were on the third floor next to the roof of what I suppose had been a large ware-room. As soon as our aeroplanes were sighted, we were locked and barred in while "Jerry" ran for his dugout. The station was about five hundred yards away. This was the target, and I can assure you that every Allied prisoner fervently prayed that our aeroplanes might not miss the station. At Laon we were loaded in box cars. Prisoners had been brought in from the different fronts, and fifty-two of us were packed in one of the small French box cars marked "36 Hommes" or "8 Chevaux". There was rather a heterogeneous crowd in our car, thirty-nine Italian officers, thirteen Americans and a couple German guards. From time to time wounded German soldiers would crawl into our car for the purpose of talking with the Americans. We were in this car for four days and nights. It was too crowded for us all to lie down at the same time. It rained every day and the box car roof leaked. I believe it was three times on this journey that the train stopped and we were permitted to buy a bowl of some kind of soup and a piece of bread. We paid for it in French money. We arrived at Rastatt in the morning about seven o'clock and were taken over to what was a German barracks. Most of the buildings were round, with exceedingly thick walls, covered with earth. The windows were barred as a jail, and the entire barracks surrounded by a high wall excepting where the outside of the buildings ran even with the street. We remained there about five days and met a large number of French officers and some American officers who had been assigned to the British and had been taken prisoners some months before. It was there that we first learned that we could get in communication with the people at home through the International Red Cross, and that in the course of time the Red Cross would send us parcels of food. From Rastatt we were taken to Karlsruhe, and there placed in what had formerly been a hotel. Anywhere from one to six of us were placed in a room. They refused to allow any windows to be opened either at the top or the bottom; thus we could not secure any fresh air. However, a large pad-lock on one of the windows had been pushed up, but had not locked. As soon as we were left alone we unlocked the padlock and opened the window. Whenever we would hear the guard rattling with his key at the door we would quickly close the window and put on the lock and close it as before, and thus we were able to secure a quantity of fresh air. All of us were dirty and lousy. We had no way to bathe or wash our clothes, so we spent the time "cootie hunting".

Much has been said about the German Intelligence Department, and we had been led to believe that the Germans had the finest and most complete intelligence department in the world. I believe that every officer dreaded the time when he would be brought before the department to be quizzed. It was about the first of August, and up to that time we had not had a single question asked us except by the German people along our line of march. One day we were sitting in our room and a guard came in and asked for me. I went out with him, down to the office on the first floor of the building and there was met at the door by a tall German officer immaculately dressed. He bowed almost to the floor and spoke in perfect English. "Captain, I am glad to meet you. I am sorry to meet you under such circumstances and conditions, but it is the war. The war is awfully, awfully bad, do you not think so?"

I replied, "It is bad enough for me at the present time, I can assure you."

"Ah, that is true, but you must remember we cannot give you what we do not have."

The thought flashed in my mind for the first time that I was at last before the German Secret Service. He walked over to the table, and again bowing, he held a chair out for me as a waiter at a hotel would do, and said, "Captain, won't you please have a chair and make yourself as comfortable as possible? There are a few questions that I want to ask you and you are perfectly free to tell me anything and everything about the war and how you were taken prisoner, and you can rest assured that I will never tell a single soul what you say. Everything that you say will be put away in what you call in your language, the archives, and nobody will ever see them again, so you must have no hesitancy and just tell me everything that I ask you."

I glanced at him just a moment to see whether or not he was joking. I saw that he was very sincere, so looking as sincere as possible myself, I said, "Certainly, I believe I can trust you. Go ahead and ask me everything you care to ask and I will tell you all I know."

He sat down at the other side of the table, and said, "You are Captain. . . ., in command of Co. C, 110th Infantry?"

"Yes."

"You arrived at Calais, France, on the 17th of May, 1918?"

This question almost floored me. He was exactly right, but inasmuch as he had made a statement I did not answer the question, but waited a moment when he looked up and said, "Is that not so?"

"No, sir."

"Well, when did you land?"

"I do not remember the date or the month, but it was some time before this."

"Well, where did you land?"

I said, "Boulogne", and was frightened because I was not sure that any ships landed there.

"Did you not come over with your own Division and Company?"

"No, sir."

"Who did you come over with?"

"Oh, a lot of troops not assigned to any Division."

"Oh, I see," he replied, and carefully wrote it down.

I was beginning to feel much easier and was ready for any question that he might ask. He then said, "Did you not know these men before?"

"No, I never saw them before."

"Where did you join them?"

"In the front line."

"Where was the rest of your Battalion?"

"I don't know, I never saw them."

"How many ships were in your convoy?"

I said, "Sixty."—There were sixteen.

"How were you guarded?"

"Do you think that the United States would send over such a large convoy without guarding them to the utmost?"

"Certainly not."

"Well, we were guarded by the entire American Battle Fleet."

As a matter of fact we had one Battle cruiser part of the way across, part of the journey without any protection whatever, and were met out of the Irish sea by a number of British submarine chasers.

"Did you see any submarines?"

"No, I don't believe you have any. I think it is all a bluff."

"What kind of machine guns did you use?"

"Any kind we could get hold of."

"Do you mean to tell me that the Americans can shoot any kind of a machine gun?"

"I mean to say, that give any American any gun and he will know more about that gun and be able to shoot and handle it in one hour better than any German would in a month."

"Well, what kind of guns did you actually use?"

I told him we had the Lewis, Chauchot, the Vickers and some of the German automatic rifles and machine guns.

"How did you get the ammunition for all these different guns?"

I told him I didn't know, it was brought up to us. He then moved a map over in front of him and said, "How did you go from Boulogne?"

"We marched."

"Where did you stop the first night?"

I looked on his map, picked out a town and put my finger on the name. He looked again and said, "That would be impossible, that is sixty or eighty miles."

"Oh, wait a minute," I said, "I made a mistake."

And then using considerable more care I hunted out some town closer to Boulogne. He then traced my movements to some town where I told him I left the men. From there I told him I was sent by train to a station, the name of which I did not remember, and finally sent up to the line without knowing anything else. He asked me how many Machine Gun Battalions were in our Division.

I replied, "Oh, I don't know."

"I will show you."

He reached down on the desk and pulled out a large pasteboard card, about fourteen inches wide by twenty-four to thirty inches long. It was dirty, showing that the same had been printed a long time before and had been in use. On the paste-board card was printed the complete organization of the American Army, showing the Divisions, and the number of Infantry, Artillery, Engineer and other units composing the same with the number of men. When he showed me this, I said, "Why bother asking me questions? You know more about these things than I do."

"Where is your artillery?" he asked.

"Oh there you go again. You know very well where our artillery is."

"I mean your American artillery."

"Do you mean to tell me that you don't know where it is?"

He laughed and said, "Yes, your artillery units have not come across. The French artillery is backing you."

"That is right."

A few days later a lieutenant of the 10th Field Artillery who had been taken prisoner on July 15th was brought in before him. I have often wondered what he thought of my story after meeting this artillery officer. After rather a long conversation he finally asked me the question which had been asked hundreds of times. I felt I knew this German thoroughly, and had no reason to fear anything at his hands. So when he finally asked the question, "Why are you at war with Germany?" I turned to him and said, "What would be the sense of my attempting to tell you the reason we are at war against Germany? You people cannot understand any nation having ideals. You are all materialists and the only way you can reckon anything is by measuring it in dollars and cents. You shrug your shoulders at the sinking of the Lusitania, and the rape of Belgium was a military necessity, but did you ever stop to think that the balance of the world might possibly be right and that the single nation of Germany might be wrong? No. Your minds do not work along those lines, so that it would be useless for me to attempt to say anything or give you any reason, but since you asked the question, I will tell you the real reason. We are at war with Germany to defeat Germany."

He jumped up from his chair and turning to me said, "Do you think that a nation that has for years withstood practically the entire world, a nation which has given all of its man power, a nation which has practically starved itself, could be defeated? No. You will win the decision, but you will never defeat us. Of course, you know the last German drive was a failure, thanks to you Americans."

It was the first information of any kind whatever that I had had of the result of their attack on July 15th. We had heard rumors that all was not going well at the front for Germany, but that German evidently saw the pleased expression upon my face, and foolishly, instead of waiting, I asked, "How far did you get?"

He replied, "We don't tell prisoners that." Later on he said, "Why do you hate us so?"

"We don't hate you, we pity you."

Then after a conversation which lasted five or ten minutes in which I had told him that unless he were the exception, he would be the first German officer whom I had met who had the slightest conception of the meaning of the word "gentleman". Then proving the assertion made in the first part of this story, that the German is the most gullible man I have ever known, he turned to me and said, "Captain, I am going to tell you something. I do not want you to tell what I say to you. Of course, it would not matter so much if you did, because if you did, I would say that you were a liar, and they would believe me. But, Captain, I am going to tell you these things for the reason that you are the first American officer who has come before me who has been willing to tell me the truth from beginning to end."

That is my experience with the famous German Intelligence or Secret Service.

From Karlsruhe the officers were taken by train to the prison camp at Villigen, Baden, and on this trip had an experience which will never be forgotten by them, and, I believe, shows the true feeling and spirit of the French officers who had been in the war in the early years. At Offenburg we changed cars and were taken to a small camp and given permission to buy some soup, and there we received our first meat, a piece of bologna. A train load of French officers all of whom had been prisoners for four years and were about to be interned in Switzerland, met us. Some of them had chocolate and different kinds of food which had been furnished by the French Red Cross. They simply turned their pockets and bags inside out and gave to us who had just been taken prisoner the food which they knew we would need so badly. The thoughtfulness and the kindness shown the Americans by these French officers is one of the bright spots in my experience in Germany.

On arriving at Villigen, we found a camp consisting in a number of low buildings, or barracks, an office, a kitchen, and a sort of assembly room. The camp was surrounded by two high barbed wire fences, ditch ran between the two fences and barbed wire stretched along the ditch. On the outside, at intervals of about twenty-five yards was a sentinel box and sentinels day and night walked up and down outside the wires, while at the same time three inner guards patrolled the area within the enclosure. About twenty-two American officers and a hundred or more Russian officers with fifty to seventy-five non-commissioned Russian officers were in this camp, and it was there that we received our first food of any consequence. We had been about three weeks with practically nothing to eat. The American officers had been in touch with the Red Cross for some time and had saved a quantity of food for incoming American prisoners. Our treatment there was probably as good as we could expect. We were allowed to take a bath once a week. The Russians had a piano in a small room which they called the Music Room. Finally we received some athletic equipment, and a few books from the Y. M. C. A. We received a base ball and a volley ball and net and these things furnished us with a great deal of amusement. The days routine began about eight o'clock in the morning. Approximately twenty men were assigned to a barrack. Each barrack had a small kitchen stove in which we burned wood bought from the Germans. The twenty men in the room would divide up into families of four or five and run four or five messes. Taking the canned food furnished us by the Red Cross we would make all kinds of mixtures. Breakfast was some time prior to nine o'clock. At nine o'clock we had a roll call, and from then on nothing until about six o'clock and then another roll call. By signing a parole card we got permission to take walks, under guard, through the Black Mountains (Swartzwald). Twelve o'clock noon the Germans served dinner consisting of a thin soup and some kind of vegetable mixture hard to eat, and at six o'clock supper which few of us ever attended because we could not eat the stuff.

An incident which might prove of interest and throw some light on the German character occurred in camp. One of the officers had cut a picture of the sinking of the Lusitania out of some German propaganda. He made a frame for the picture and had the same hanging on the back of a wardrobe. A search was made by the Germans for maps, compasses, etc., and this picture was noticed. It was broken by the officer conducting the search. Complaint of this was made to the Lt. Colonel, Commandant of the Camp. He said, "That is not right. I will make him apologize," and he did.

All the time the men were in camp they were constantly planning a way to escape. Finally the plans were completed about the middle of October, when thirteen of the men decided to make a try. The windows in the barracks were covered with a very heavy iron netting. Wire cutters had been smuggled into camp. In three of the barracks different groups were going to make their getaway by means of cutting the wires and then thrusting out of the window a sort of ladder made from bed slats and pieces of board cut from the Red Cross boxes. Small strips were nailed across the board making a sort of a chickenrun. These ladders or runs were long enough to reach from the barracks across both fences where they would jump down to the ground and run. Electric lights were in the barracks and surrounded the outside and inside of the camp. Those on the outside of the camp and outside of the buildings were kept burning all night. The next part of the plan was to put out, by short circuiting, all the lights in and about the camp and then at a given signal all were to make their escape at once. About ten o'clock the lights in the barracks were turned out. Five minutes were then to elapse and those selected to put out the lights were to act. As soon as the lights were out their escape was to be made. I was one of those selected to put out the lights. This necessitated a long iron chain to be made. Someone had gathered together a lot of wire. From this wire they made chains with links about twelve inches long. I took a pair of socks, filled each of them with stones, and tied them carefully with strings and bound one sock on each end of the chain. The reason for this was, first, it would give me something to throw and second, the weight at the other end of the wire would act as a protection, for I thought I might in the excitement throw too far, and thus miss the wire. All was ready at ten o'clock. Before that time I had taken my chain and hid it in a dark corner where I was going to do my work. The two wires ran around the outside of the fence about twenty feet from the ground. Over these two wires I wanted to throw my chain, so that it would come in contact with both wires. As the lights went out I put on my hat and walked up to the place I had the chain hidden. A German guard was standing within five steps. He did not suspect anything so I walked right past him, and picked up the one sock filled with stones, took a step back and threw it. As the chain came in contact with the wire it did not short circuit at first and as the wire swung out and touched the chain fire flew in all directions. The Germans yelled "achtung, achtung", meaning "look out". The third time the chain swung the lights over the entire camp were extinguished.

By the time it took me to run back to my barrack, probably fifty steps away, we heard shots fired, and the men were on their way. From all directions we heard the Germans yell and shots fired, and we all simply waited and hoped. Three of the men, and probably the more spectacular escape, were at the other side of the camp. They had calculated that when these men made their escape along the one side of the camp the inside guard would be called out, they would then run down along the side of the camp with the guard and out of the prison. These three boys dressed themselves like German soldiers. They made wooden guns or something that in the darkness would look like guns. One of the boys could talk German. It worked out according to plan, only the German guard was so slow in getting out that only one of them succeeded. He cut his way through the fence and started down, hoping to meet the guard and run out of the barracks with it. Unfortunately the first man got there before the guard, but undaunted, he ran on to the gate and there met a German standing guard alone at the gate, with the key to the lock in his hand. He ordered in German in a loud voice, "Open the gate," and the German guard unconsciously pulled the gate open and let him out. He was so far in advance of the other two men that it was impossible for them to proceed further and they had to come back without escaping. Five out of the thirteen got out of the camp, three escaping in safety to Switzerland, two were re-captured and brought back to camp and placed in confinement in a cell. After they served their time they were ordered to some dungeon in Berlin. The guard took them away about the first week in November. They got as far as Cassel, where the guard was disarmed by some of the revolutionists and the men turned loose. They had no money, no food and did not know how to get out of Germany, so they got on a train and came back to prison camp.

About the first part of August censorship of the German Press was lifted and from then on we began to receive, I believe, more information than the people on the other side. We purchased maps from the Germans and traced the progress of the troops. At night when the lights were turned out we would lie on our bunks and sing to the German guards, "Ach due Lieber Hindenburg, Alles gebut."

After the armistice was signed we were given permission to go as we pleased through the city of Villigen, and there met with the German people. Their one dread seemed to be that we hated them and did not respect them. As a whole they looked up to the Americans and envied them. One German officer stated to me that "We are glad we lost the war because we lost the Kaiser. Had we won the war things would be worse than they ever were before, and now we can have peace and our own Government." He laughed very heartily and said, "If we won the war, we would have to be in the Army of Occupation and would not get back home for a long time. Now you have to go in the Army of Occupation and you won't get back home for a long while."

On the day before Thanksgiving we were taken out of the prison camp. It was about four o'clock in the morning. Snow was on the ground and it was cold. We were lined up ready to move when the German Commandant came out and made the following address. We listened patiently. At its conclusion there was a moments silence as if waiting for a reply. The only reply made was a sharp command "Squads

"Sooner than you expected, your day of liberation has arrived. In a short time you will be back again with your own dear folks in America and England. Tell them that the German people have no more grievance against them. It does not consider itself as conquered, but as conquering as you can see by the troops coming back from the front; because it has won its own liberty. Now it is your turn to give the German people a just place in the peace terms which will give them the liberty to live quietly and peacefully with the world at large, and which will leave no hate to again disturb the peace of the world. We all hope that you may reach your home safely and find every one in good health. I again request you not to part from Germany with hatred against us, and to influence your people to look upon Germany as it is now, not as it has been judged, perhaps justly, up to the present time. The new Germany has a desire to live at perfect peace with the recent thirty enemies but in the same manner claims an honorable peace which will give her the possibility to live as promised by President Wilson. Again happy returns."

This, I believe, illustrates very clearly the position held by the majority of the German people.

We arrived in Konstantz about noon and remained over Thanksgiving. Here we were taken through the city by guides and shown all the places of interest, and the next day we rode through the mountains of Switzerland to France.

All of our soldiers who were in the trenches and fought in the battles with the Germans had terrible experiences and know that the late war was the most frightful ever waged. Those taken prisoners did not expect mild treatment at the hands of the enemy. Their fears were realized but they were determined to endure their privations and hardships patiently and heroically. Their sympathies were with their comrades who were bravely waging the bloody warfare in the front lines.

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF

November 10, 1919.

To the Members of the 110th Regiment of Infantry:

It is a great pleasure to greet the former members of the 110th Infantry through the pages of their Regimental History.

The associations formed during "The World War" will never be forgotten by those who participated. Yet it is of the utmost importance that the deeds of individuals and organizations be preserved for posterity. The sacrifices made during the war would be in vain if we and future generations do not apply the lessons we have learned.

I am happy to see the 110th Infantry taking steps to preserve the achievements accomplished on the field of battle.

I wish each member of the regiment continued success in his civil pursuits.

Sincerely yours,

General, United States Army.

Since the beginning of the human race, from time to time, man had engaged in conflict. At first the one who saw his possession of the cave he occupied menaced by another covetous thereof, made known his objections by looks and words, and then, unless the menace ceased or prudence dictated otherwise, by deeds. At this stage weapons probably were limited to the hands, feet and teeth. As intelligence developed the combatants began to perceive and make use of weapons with which they could injure the opponent before he could come hand to hand. Clubs and stones came into use and were gradually met by some defensive object which was the forerunner of the shield and even complete armor, as the club and stone were the forerunners of the spear, the bow and still more effective weapons.

Likewise increasing intelligence caused man to begin the construction of habitations, still very crude but an advance on his cave shelter, and permitting the development of combination of families into tribes, since the site of these habitations could be selected so as to permit quick assembly of the various families that by descent and choice gathered into a tribe.

As the tribes increased in size the bands that could be assembled for offense or defense, and used in combat also increased in size, and organization and training were slowly evolved, and had their influence on the warring tribes, and the results of their struggles.

Doubtless at times there were periods of peace, or at least temporary cessation of active warfare, between tribes. Inter-communication existed then to at least a limited degree, simple treaties were entered into, and at times matters in dispute were settled without resort to force; friendly advice, diplomatic communication, and possibly a rude sort of arbitration taking the place of a resort to force.

Doubtless some strove earnestly to bring about a cessation of all warfare by resort to arbitration; and believed at times they were on the threshold of success; that the sword and the spear were about to be beaten into the plowshare and the pruning hook; that the war drum would throb no longer; that no longer would be heard the sound of bugles, the tramp of marching feet.

Constantly strife between tribes increasing in size into the state, the empire, the nation as known today, denied this hope which again and again springs up, and always of more vigorous growth, as wars have increased in size and complexity from the hand to hand struggle of war individuals fighting for the possession of a cave, to the great struggle but lately ended and known as the World War.

Why, in the wisdom of the Creator and the economy of nature, these constantly recurring wars occur, we do not know. Possibly it is because life is conflict, and when conflict ceases, life itself will have ceased. Whether the glorious hope to prevent all war is ever realized we can not tell. This much we do know; in the past that nation in peace prepared for war best withstood the shock when war came; that nation which through luxury, sloth or self indulgence lost its power to defend against aggression soon became a vassal dependency and then disappeared.

In the constantly recurring struggles the various peoples of Europe have engaged with a fury conceivable only by those who have taken part therein, or have actually observed the manifestations of race hatred, inborn, inherited through many generations, and nurtured by home and school teachings. The casual tourist in Europe can see mute evidence of the fury of past struggles. The hills of Germany are crowned by ruins of castles that give some idea of destruction wrought generations ago. And today in France there is a strip of ground from Switzerland to the sea that bears witness to the very apotheosis of fury and destruction; villages, towns and cities beaten into mere formless rubble; flourishing forests turned into barren sand; orchards and vineyards turned into dreary wastes; fertile fields seamed and gashed by those who were endeavoring to shield themselves from the storm of projectiles that blasted away the very soil that had given life to the vegetation that in turn had disappeared under the pall of poison gas.

For some time the United States stood aloof and watched the unprecedented struggle. The means and methods to overcome the opponent increased until the United States saw its neutrality violated in contiguous territory and its rights violated on the high seas; its men, women and children killed without warning while journeying by routes held by the United States as entitled to respect and freedom from injury. Then the United States entered the conflict which thus completed the circuit of the globe.

All credit to those who loyally devoted themselves to the great task entered upon. The credit is shared as fully by those who sent their sons and brothers as by those sent; by those whose duty required their presence in the back area as by those on the very front; for to him who has given the best that is in him all credit is due.

It is to be remembered, however, that to the combatants, the front line, is given the opportunity to make the most violent exertion, to perform the most dangerous service, to pay in blood the price of victory. And among the various arms and services of the front line the Infantry, though least spectacular, stands preeminent. It is the Infantry, far more than any other arm that pays with its dead for every foot of ground gained, and for the final success. Incompletely informed writers, of late, have begun to apply the term "Doughboy" to all American soldiers in the World War. They are in error. For many years the term "Doughboy" has belonged to the Infantry soldier.

Most people are familiar, at least by name, with the Fleur-de-lis of France; and those who are familiar with her battle scarred fields are also familiar with the poppy whose scarlet flower seemed the companion of the darker stains there seen in such profusion. In France there is also another flower, a lily, which, according to legend, reserves its bloom to mark the graves of the heroic dead.

The names of such flowers have been used in a poetical reference to the Infantry as follows:
 "Fleur-de-lis for the garden, purple and white and rose; Poppies red by the roadside where the marching column goes;
 But up on the height where the Doughboys fight the Dead Man's Lily blows.
 "Roses of France, you sorrow for the one dead by your wall;
 Poppies red in the wheat fields weep where the hundreds fall;

But up on the steep where the thousand sleep the Lily has spent her all."

They whose names appear on the tablet we unveil belonged to that arm. Their company is credited with the largest payment for victory made by any company, less one, in a regiment which stands very high on the list as regards the payment made. And it is quite probable the same proportion holds good throughout the entire American Expeditionary Force. The mounds of earth covering the American dead that showed so plainly the cost of forcing the crossing of the Ourcq River and capturing Grimpettes woods, of the long struggle on the Vesle, the forcing of the crossing and the advance to the high ground overlooking the Aisne, the difficult and costly advance down the valley of the Aire, that marked the beginning of and hastened the final collapse of the German armies, all bear mute evidence of the payment made. Of the difficulties of the Aire Valley, General Hirschhauer, commanding the French Army in the region we took over, said to me on telling me the zone of advance assigned to the 28th Division: "I congratulate you and your Division. It holds the high seat of honor; it has been given the most difficult portion of the front to be attacked. Go to the Observation Post and look at the seas of wire and of trenches you will have to pass over. And when you attack, good luck, and Mars be with you!"

We can not form in bronze or fashion in marble any monument or memorial that would add to the glory of these heroic dead. In the soaring time of life, when its currents run deep and strong, when the joy of living is greatest and the desire to survive is strongest, they gave their all. They paid the price and in paying died.

We mourn their death, but hold high our head and feel a swelling of the heart in pride at the manner of their dying. To us remains the duty to keep in memory their deeds and to do all in our power to secure in those who follow, the ability and the readiness to do likewise when necessity arises.

Our Heroic Dead

—BY—

This record of the 110th Infantry would be incomplete without a chapter devoted to those heroic members of the Regiment who were faithful unto death. Those of us who have come back, cherish the service and comradeship of those who have not returned, in sacred memory. We take a solemn pride in their glorious achievements and feel a gratitude that cannot be put into language that we served in honorable association with them. Our sympathies go out in tender ministrations to their friends and relatives and we want them to be assured that we are bound up with them in a common grief and sorrow. Some of them were brilliant and gifted youths, students and scholars and teachers, others, fathers of little children with wives whose lives were bound up in their own, and the sons of parents who loved them and would have spared them hardship and risk; but who in their hearts were proud of them all the time. Others were men with practical business gifts beginning to play their part in the industrial and commercial life of the nation. We know how eagerly all of them rushed to the colors when the call came and offered their lives with the dew of the morning on them, in what was to them beyond all question a sacred cause. Sustained by a great enthusiasm they gave themselves up to distasteful tasks, submitted to unwonted discipline, engaged in work from which they naturally recoiled, and served with all they had, even to the shedding of their life's blood, for the cause of country and God. They were esteemed in life for what they were and what they did and in death they received the sincere homage and admiration of fellow patriots. One of the pathetic sights on the battlefield and in the hospital was the manner in which these heroes met their death. The general impression one gained, who was called to witness the end of many of the brave fellows, was the absolute unselfishness of their conduct. They went into a battle not thinking of themselves. They did not fight for fame or honor or territory, not even for a ribbon or a medal; but just to do their bit for their country in its need and peril seemed to be their consuming ambition. As long as America can breed a race like these noble-hearted, sacrificial fellows we need have no fear.

If these brave men had anything to say, it was a word of announcement of their end, or a message to those at home, or an expression of solicitude concerning someone else near by. Many touching incidents could be narrated showing how they acted to shield a comrade or rescue a wounded member of the organization. Indeed, there were numerous woundings and deaths because a risk was taken to save a comrade and friend. Nothing could have been more touching than the loyalty which they showed to their pals or their "buddies", as they called their fellow fighters. And those who survived the shock of a battle felt a debt and obligation to these honored dead which no sacrifice on their part could meet.

HOW THE DEAD WERE BURIED

Testimony to this feeling was shown in the tender and almost reverential care with which details of soldiers went forward to bury the dead. On the fighting front this work was exceedingly difficult. Men were sometimes killed within the lines of the enemy and to rescue the dead was impossible until the foe had been pushed back. At other times the attack became so fierce that ground would have to be yielded on which many a comrade had fallen and the only thing to do was to wait for the counter-attack when the ground was recovered. This was particularly true in the fighting in Conde Woods where we were compelled to yield to the frightful onslaughts of the Germans. We spent several days of anxiety wondering if we should be able to gather up the remains of those left on the field. We had a confidence that the enemy would be compelled to surrender what he had gained and in this we were never disappointed. Then, men were killed between the lines, in no man's land, and the only time their bodies could be brought back was under cover of darkness and this was an extremely hazardous enterprise. We well remember an incident when we were in the fighting on the Vesle River. A noble young officer in command of a raiding party had been killed and it was necessary for the men to retire to their own lines. The Germans knew that the officer was lying out there and they knew also the care we took to bury our dead. Confident that details would seek to recover this body, they set up machine-guns in position to bring the ground in that particular locality under fire and they were not disappointed, for true to habit our men went forth to rescue the remains of this brilliant young officer and the Germans in their brutal fashion opened fire and several casualties were registered on our troops. Another situation which made the burial of the dead difficult was when a critical stage was reached in battle. There were times when everything had to yield to the bringing up of ammunition. The wounded could not be brought back and the dead could not be taken care of, for every detail that could be spared from the front line must engage in the supreme necessity of the moment. As soon as the crisis was relieved the details would assume their normal duties.

In the burying parties where chaplains were at all available and they were near enough to be summoned, in the vast majority of cases the denominational affiliations of the soldier were respected if possible. A Protestant received a burial by a Protestant minister and a Roman Catholic likewise had the service of a priest. Where no chaplain was available the men themselves dealt tenderly and reverently with the remains and the body was laid to rest in prayer and with the reading of an appropriate passage of scripture.

The method of burial on the fighting front was to wrap the body in a blanket and carefully mark the place of the grave. To guard against any mistake one of the two metal identification disks, which every soldier wore, was securely fastened on the remains and the other was nailed to the wooden marker always placed at the head of the grave. In addition, a paper on which the name, number, date of death, cause of death and date of burial were written in hard pencil, was tacked to the marker and another paper on which the same facts were written was placed in a bottle and buried neck downward at the foot of the grave with just enough covering to protect it from the weather.

Before the act of burial a man's pockets were searched for any personal effects. These carefully wrapped and labelled were turned over to the Supply Officer of the Regiment who in turn delivered them to the Division Quartermaster's office. The plan contemplated the ultimate arrival of these effects at the Effects Bureau, Hoboken, New Jersey, from which point they were to be sent to the nearest relatives. Since our return to the United States numerous inquiries have been received regarding the effects of deceased soldiers and our reply to such inquiries was to ask the inquirer to write or call at the bureau in Hoboken. In this way some treasured mementos have been restored to the families of those who have died. The correct address to which letters should be sent is "Effects Bureau, United States Army, Hoboken, New Jersey".

The orders concerning reports of burials were scrupulously obeyed. This particular task was imposed on chaplains. Promptly after burial the chaplain prepared his reports on blanks specially provided for this purpose. These reports covered the following points: Name and number of deceased soldier; rank and organization; date and place of burial with name of map used and coordinate numbers; the number of the grave and statement of how it was marked and address of nearest relatives. A chaplain was required to prepare three copies of each individual burial report. One copy was sent to the Adjutant General's office of the A. E. F., a second copy to the Central Records office and a third to the Graves Registration Service.

The Graves Registration Service was an organization of trained undertakers which covered the field on which an action had been fought after the enemy had been pushed back far enough to enable the members to do their work without confusion. They scoured the terrain and searched out all obscure corners in search of any remains that might have been missed by burial parties working with fighting troops. Furthermore, they checked up all graves and noted the locations. After this was done a site for a cemetery was selected and isolated graves and groups of graves were disinterred and the bodies assembled where they were reburied under the direction of skilled undertakers. Since our return we have learned of larger cemeteries of American dead and reports indicate that the remains of our fallen comrades are given the attention which they deserve and which could not be as carefully bestowed in the midst of battle. Accompanying illustrations furnish an idea of how the graves of American soldiers look at the present time.

SHOULD OUR DEAD BE RETURNED?

It is unfortunate that the discussion of the return of the soldier dead should appear to have a controversial aspect. There is no disposition on the part of those who served overseas to force their views on the relatives who have met bereavement in battle. The question of the return of the dead is a purely private question which each individual family so afflicted should have the utmost freedom in deciding. From this decision there should be no appeal. The returned soldier is willing to lend his influence to anything that will in any way ease the burden of pain and bring comfort to those who have suffered through the loss of one who was dear to them. It is known that the government is willing to do what the families of the deceased wish in this matter. Therefore, no debate on the subject is allowed.

When the soldiers returning from France were asked whether the dead should be brought back, they invariably answered that they should rest where they fell. It is an old tradition among soldiers that they should lie on the fields on which they fought and no doubt these returning soldiers were influenced by this tradition. But this was not the only thing that influenced their opinions, for they knew that if the dead were permitted to remain, these two nations, France and the United States, would be more closely knit in international comradeship. Beautiful memorial cemeteries would be established and in the course of time many American pilgrims would journey to the graveside of our heroes and in that way the communion of peoples would cement a friendship which nothing could disturb or separate. If at any time relations between these countries should become strained, questions would arise, such as: How can we break with France? Have not our heroes fought in a common cause with them against a common foe? Do not our brave sons lie on the soil of France, mute witnesses to a friendship sealed in blood? It was considerations such as these that prompted our returned soldiers to express their opinion when they were asked about the disposition of the dead. They gave their answers not in an argumentative way, or in a contentious spirit, or, least of all, with any thought of wounding the sensibilities made tender by sorrow. These men feel a loyalty to their dead comrades and would never intentionally utter anything that would cause the wounds of sorrow among their families to smart with pain. Their reverence for the honored dead is as great as their reverence for their country and indeed, both are one, in their view they think of those heroes still singing:

* "If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever America."

GENERAL ORDERS No. 7.

1. The Commanding General is pleased to announce that the French people, our comrades in arms in the cause of Liberty and Eighteenth-century as well as a common enemy, have, through their Parliament, by unanimous consent, declared "That July Fourth, the anniversary of the Declaration of the Independence of the United States, will be celebrated as a French National Holiday within the limits permitted by the military authorities. July Fourth will be observed amongst the troops at rest and more particularly in the sectors neighboring those where American units are stationed. The units should, by organizing contests, conferences, sports, etc., demonstrate to their brothers in arms their friendship and gratitude.

The Commanding-in-Chief of the American Armies desires local Commanders to co-operate cordially in any celebrations planned by the French authorities. He desires that they make this an occasion to increase and to cement the warm relations existing between the French and the American Armies.

BULLETIN:

1. On the afternoon of July 1, two platoons of the 111th Infantry participated with the 153rd French Infantry Regiment in the attack on Hill 204. The following letter, written by Colonel Matter, commanding the 153rd French Infantry Regiment, to the Commanding Officer, 111th U. S. Infantry, is published for the information of the command:

"I have the honor to inform you that the detachment of your regiment which you have been so good as to put at my disposal for the attack of July 1st, has shown in its baptism of fire an admirable attitude.

"The detachment was placed with the 2nd Battalion of the 153rd, which had as its mission the taking of the woods on Hill 204.

"The platoon from Company A, operated on the eastern edge of the woods; the platoon from Company B, on the western edge. At the hour 'h' (6:00 P. M.) the assaulting troops left the trenches where they had been staying, in order to allow artillery preparation on Hill 204.

From the beginning of the attack the American Detachments were marked by their courage, bravery and their enthusiasm.

"In spite of the firing of the enemy's heavy and light machine guns, trench mortars, riflemen placed in trees, these men bravely threw themselves on their adversaries.

"A fierce hand-to-hand contest immediately took place in the thick and almost impregnable woods, where each man sought his man. The combat was violent, and your men never ceased during all the operation to arouse the enthusiasm and admiration of their French comrades by their magnificent behavior.

"Lieutenant Shenkel, especially, distinguished himself during this combat, making a great impression on his own troops and our soldiers. Led on by this ardor, with seven men, the Lieutenant found himself surrounded on all sides. This detachment cut its way forward by using the baits of their rifles and bayonets on the enemy's ranks and succeeded in rejoining their comrades; Lieutenant Shenkel himself killing, with a pistol shot a German Officer.

"The attitude of all American ranks, especially the non-commissioned officers, was also noticeable. Of six non-commissioned officers participating in the attack, five have fallen gloriously killed or wounded. All officers, N. C. O's and privates were superb in their enthusiasm and courage.

"I would appreciate very much if you would bring to the knowledge of your regiment the splendid conduct of your men, who fought for the first time with us, and let everybody know that with such admirable soldiers as yours, and ours, the defeat of the Germans is certain in the near future.

(Signed) MATTER."

The Commanding General of the 39th French Division adds:

"I join with all my heart the sentiments of admiration which Colonel Matter expresses for the valiant troops which have just given to ours a splendid example of bravery. I join my salutations and respect to the brave men who have fallen on the field of honor, the number of which is, unhappily, too great.

(Signed) POUTIGN."

The Division Commander desires to congratulate the two platoons participating in the attack of July 1, upon the receipt of such splendid commendations from the Regimental and Division Commanders under whom they served. He believes that the action of these men is but an example of what the whole 28th (Keystone) Division will show when opportunity offers.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 109.

July 14 is hereby declared a holiday for all troops in this command not actually engaged with the enemy. It will be their duty and privilege to celebrate French Independence Day, which appeals alike to every citizen and soldier in France and America, with all the sympathetic interest and purpose that France celebrated our Independence Day. Living among the French people, and sharing the comradeship in arms of their soldiers, we have the deeper consciousness that the two anniversaries are linked together in common principles and a common cause.

ORDRE GENERAL No. 318.

OFFICERS, NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF THE TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION

Shoulder to shoulder with your French comrades you were thrown into the counter-offensive battle which commenced on the 18th of July. You rushed into the fight as though to a fete.

Your magnificent courage completely routed a surprised enemy and your indomitable tenacity checked the counter-attacks of his fresh divisions.

You have shown yourselves worthy sons of your great country and you were admired by your brothers in arms.

Ninety-one guns, 7,200 prisoners, immense booty, 10 kilometers of country reconquered; this is your portion of the spoil of this victory."

Furthermore, you have really felt your superiority over the barbarous enemy of the whole human race, against whom the children of Liberty are sitting.

To attack him is to vanquish him.

American Comrades: I am grateful to you for the blood so generously spilled on the soil of my country.

I am proud to have commanded you during such days and to have fought with you for the deliverance of the world.

P. C., 9th August, 1918.

GENERAL ORDER

Before the great offensive of the 18th of July, the American troops which were brigaded with the French VI ARMY distinguished themselves by taking from the enemy the BOIS DE LA BRIGADE DE MARINE (BELLEAU WOODS) and the town of VAUX, and stopping his offensive on the MARNE and at FOSNOY.

Afterwards they took a most glorious part in the Second battle of the MARNE, rivaling the French troops in attacking spirit and valor.

They have, during twenty days of continuous fighting liberated numerous French villages, have made an advance of forty kilometers over difficult terrain, and have succeeded in crossing the VESLE RIVER.

Their various deeds are marked by names which will in the future glorify the military history of the United States of America.

TORCY, BELLEAU, PLATEAU D'ETREPIPLY, EPIEDS, LE CHAMEL L'OURCQ, SERINGES-ET-NESLES, SERGY, LA VESLE-ET-FISMES.

The young divisions which entered the battle for the first time showed their possession of a dignity in keeping with the traditions of the Regular Army. They have the same ardor will in defeat the Boche and the same discipline which guarantees that an order given by the Chief will always be executed whatever difficulties be encountered and whatever sacrifices have to be made.

The splendid results have been obtained by the energy and ability of the Chiefs and by the bravery of the soldiers.

I am proud for to have had the command of such troops.

AMEX ADVANCE TO FISMES FORCED THE GERMAN FLIGHT

French Official Documents Give Graphic Details of American Division's Successful Push.

By Don Martin

With the American Armies

Friday, August 17, 1918.

The following is translated from a report by the French IV ARMY, this report being compiled from Official Documents in the Army's possession:

"Compelled to make a general retreat as the result of our counter-offensive of July 18, the Germans attempted to take up positions on the Ourcq and they took part in heavy fighting on the heights which dominate this river. They were compelled, however, to give way under the repeated blows of our Allies and then from July 30 on, the enemy commenced a new retreat. In the direction of the Vesle. Definitely dislodged from the heights of Seringes and Hill 230, northeast of Serzy, they had to meet the strong advance on the part of the Americans, and they were routed by energetic and who were prepared to descend the slopes of Ronchères while on their right the French were advancing across the Maunier Woods.

"It was the movement of the American Division which advanced from Ronchères to Fismes, progressing nearly parallel to the route that runs through Coulonges, Cohan, Longueville Farm and Fismes, that we will follow, beginning July 30, the date of this division's entry into the sector, until August 5, when it entered Fismes."

GLORIOUS LOYALTY

"An interesting point is that this division was made up of a great many men of German origin, who in this shedding their blood for the United States gloriously showed their loyalty.

"On July 30, the Americans attacked Grimpeux Woods, after a short artillery preparation, and they reached the southeastern corner of the wood, but the German resistance at this point was very stubborn. They counter-attacked and threw back the advance troops of the division. The fighting was extremely severe and there were many hand-to-hand combats.

"On the next day, July 31, the entire woods fell into the hands of the Americans. The machine gun nests which held up their advance on Cierges had been crushed or captured, and the way was clear. Entrenched in the woods the Germans already had shown a keen sense for infantry maneuvering, employing the tactical means which are sure of accomplishing their purpose and giving evidence of fine qualities and initiative and imagination. In addition, they show an excellent knowledge of the use of machine guns, auto-rifles and light mortars. That is why they were able to again reduce the German defenses.

"Hill 230 was taken in a superb manner and 70 prisoners were scored.

"From the moment the enemy fled and only weak rearguards were left to oppose the advance of the Americans. These latter swept those obstacles before them on the route and took without much difficulty Chemery, Moncel, Villoms. As Cohan the Germans came in for some hours of fighting, they were already on the ground, the United States Troops had attained the heights to the north of Dravegny. Consequently a progress of six or seven kilometers had been made in the day of August 2. For seventy-one hours straight the infantry had fought, in spite of the difficulties of procuring food caused by the fact that only a narrow road afforded the convoys an opportunity of coming up and that hard rains had eased the roads."

NEW OBSTACLES.

"On August 1, the Americans had a new series of obstacles ahead of them, the most important being Reddy Farm and Hill 230. They had to take up the fight again, and they already had shown a keen sense for infantry maneuvering, employing the tactical means which are sure of accomplishing their purpose and giving evidence of fine qualities and initiative and imagination. In addition, they show an excellent knowledge of the use of machine guns, auto-rifles and light mortars. That is why they were able to again reduce the German defenses.

"Hill 230 was taken in a superb manner and 70 prisoners were scored.

"From the moment the enemy fled and only weak rearguards were left to oppose the advance of the Americans. These latter swept those obstacles before them on the route and took without much difficulty Chemery, Moncel, Villoms. For seventy-one hours straight the infantry had fought, in spite of the difficulties of procuring food caused by the fact that only a narrow road afforded the convoys an opportunity of coming up and that hard rains had eased the roads."

PURSUIT AT DAWN.

"In spite of the fatigue and privations of the advanced units the pursuit was taken up again at dawn of August 3. The line which runs by Les Bouleaux was reached easily enough, but then, the enemy turned and faced the Americans with many sections of machine guns and a strong artillery which rained down on the villages of the valley, crossroads and the ravines.

"It was necessary to retire methodically and maneuver on the strong points of the adversary. This permitted the United States Troops to reach the heights of the Bois de la Brigade de Marine and St. Gilles. The Division has thus added to its gains seven kilometers deep.

"One supreme effort would permit it to attain Fismes and the Vesle."

"On August 4, the Infantry combats localized with terrible fury. The outskirts of Fismes were solidly held by the Germans, where their advanced groups were difficult to get. The Americans stormed them and reduced them with their light mortars and 37's. They succeeded, though not without loss, and at the end of the day they were able to take the village of Fismes. The distance of one kilometer of Fismes, masters of Ville-Savoye and of Cheselle Fme.

"All night long the rain hindered their movements and rendered their following days' work more arduous."

WOODS CONQUERED.

"On the right the French had, by similar stages, conquered the series of woods and swamps of the Maunier Woods to the east of Saint-Gilles and were at this time on the plateau of the Le Bonne-Maison Farm.

"To the left another American unit had been able to advance up on the Vesle to the east of Saint-Thibaut.

"On August 5 the artillery prepared the attack on Fismes by a well regulated bombardment of the woods and the final action. The Americans penetrated into the village and then began the task of clearing the last points of resistance. That evening this task was almost completed. We held all southern parts of the village as far as the Ebeugny road and patrols were sent into the northern parts of the village. Some even succeeded in crossing the Vesle, but they were satisfied with making a simple reconnaissance, as the Germans still occupied the right bank of the river. The remainder of the day that was left to do was the complete mopping up of Fismes and the strengthening of our positions to withstand an enemy counter-attack.

"Such was the advance of one American Division which pushed forward from Ronchères (July 30), a distance of eighteen kilometers, and crowned its successful advance with the capture of Fismes."

ORDRE

The time having now come for him to hand over the command of the zone of battle to General Bullard, commanding the Third Corps A. E. F., General Demondestris is commending the splendid Corps addresses all his thanks to the splendid troops of the 25th and 32nd American Divisions, who have proved during the pursuit, which is still being continued, not only their courage, but also their staying qualities. To the casualties, the toils and the hardships due to the difficulty of bringing up rations during the marching and fighting of this period were unable to break their high morale, their go and their war-like spirit.

General Demondestris is proud to have had the opportunity to command them. He hopes that the day will come when he will have them next to him as comrades in our common fight.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 143.

It fills me with pride to record in General Orders a tribute to the services and achievement of the First and Third Corps, comprising the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 26th, 28th, 32nd and 42nd Divisions of the American Expeditionary Forces.

You came to the battlefield at the crucial hour of the Allied cause. For more than four years the most formidable army the world has as yet seen had pressed its invasion of France, and stood menacing its capital. At no time had that army been more powerful or threatening than when, on July 15th, it struck again to destroy in one great battle the brave men opposed to it and to enforce its brutal will upon the world and civilization.

Three days later, in conjunction with our Allies, you counter-attacked. The Allied Armies gained a brilliant victory that marks the turning point of the war. You did more than give our brave Allies the support to which, as a nation, our faith was pledged. You proved that our altruism, our pacific spirit, our sense of justice have not blunted our virility or our courage. You have shown that American initiative and energy are as fit for the test of war as for the pursuits of peace. You have justly won unstinted praise of our Allies and the eternal gratitude of our countrymen.

We have paid for our success in the lives of many of our brave comrades. We shall cherish their memory always, and claim for our history and literature their bravery, achievement and sacrifice.

This order will be read to all organizations at the first assembly formation after its receipt.

General, Commander-in-Chief.

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

GENERAL ORDERS No. 13.

1. The Division Commander is authorized to inform all, from the lowest to the highest, that their efforts are known and appreciated. A new Division, by force of circumstances, took its place in the front line in one of the greatest battles of the greatest war of history. The Division has acquitted itself in a creditable manner. It has stormed and taken a point that was regarded proof against assault. It has taken numerous prisoners from a veteran vaunted Guard Division of the enemy. It has inflicted on the enemy far more loss than it has suffered from him. In a single gas application it inflicted more damage than it has inflicted on it by gas since its entry into the battle.

It is desired that these facts be brought to the attention of all, in order that the tendency of new troops to allow their minds to dwell on their own losses and the exclusion of what they had done to the enemy may be reduced to the minimum.

Let all be of good heart. We have inflicted more loss than we have suffered, and we are better men individually than our enemies. A little more grit, a little more effort, a little more determination to keep our enemies down and the Division will have the right to look upon itself as an organization of veterans.

CHARLES H. MUIR,
Major General.

MEMORANDUM No. 3.

It is brought to the attention of all in the Division, that in the recent fighting in Fismette, it is known that a man, dressed in American uniform, ran along the street shouting out words calculated to bring about the surrender of the American soldiers. The man was seen to believe that this man was a German dressed in the American uniform. It is proper always to conclude that a man engaged in such performance, i. e., running away from the enemy and spreading alarm by his words or manner, is either an enemy dressed in our uniform or is one of our own men who must be restrained by such force as is necessary. Officers and non-commissioned officers are authorized and directed to KILL any man so conducting himself if it is necessary to bring an end to such conduct.

While we are all proud of the splendid success that has come to the Army even in its initial effort, and while we feel that our countrymen were justly exultant, let us fix our minds firmly on the final victory and strive more earnestly than ever to carry out our great purpose.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE

This morning, Northwest of VERDUN, the First Army attacked the enemy on a front of twenty (20) miles and penetrated his line on an average depth of seven (7) miles. Pennsylvania, Kansas and Missouri troops serving in Major Liggett's First Corps stormed VARENNES, MONTBAINVILLE, VAUQUEIS and CHEFFY.
After stubborn resistance, troops of other Corps crossed the FORGES Brook, captured the BOIS DES FORGES, and wrested from the enemy the towns of MALANCOURT, BETHINCOURT, MONTAUCOY, CUISY, NITILLLOY, SEPTSAARGES, DANNEVOUX and GERCOUET and DRILLINCOURT.

The prisoners thus far reported number over 5,000.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST ARMY U. S.

From Commander-in-Chief
To Commanding General, 1st Corps, U. S.
Subject: Results expected.

The Allied troops are now engaged along the western front in the largest combined movement of the war. It is of extreme importance that the French American Army drive forward with all possible force. There is evidence that the enemy is retiring from our own front. Our success must be followed up with the utmost energy and pursuit continued to bring about confusion and demoralization and to prevent the enemy from forming his shattered forces. I am counting on the splendid spirit, dash and courage of our Army to overcome all opposition. Our country expects nothing less.

JOHN J. PERSHING.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST ARMY CORPS, U. S., SEPT. 28, 1918.—TO THE COMMANDING GENERALS, 28th, 35th and 77th DIVISIONS:

1. For dissemination through brigade and regiments to battalions and companies and report to these Headquarters that this dissemination has been accomplished.

2. The Corps Commander desires this made special so that the wishes of the Commander-in-Chief may reach every man of this Corps before dark today.

By command of MAJOR GENERAL LIGGETT:

Chief of Staff.

HEADQUARTERS 28th DIVISION, U. S., SEPT. 28, 1918.—TO INCLUDE PLATOON COMMANDERS:

1. The above will be read to all men as soon after receipt as is practicable. The Commanding General desires to impress upon all concerned that an opportunity affecting the final results of this war is before us and should be pushed to the limit of human endurance. The Hun is retreating: it is our duty to make it a rout.

2. The Division Commander directs that this be read to every man in the Division before dark today.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE

This morning the attack was resumed west of the MEUSE overcoming a stubborn resistance. We have advanced our lines from two to five kilometers, carrying Hill 240, north of EXERMONT and taking from the enemy the villages of GENNES, FLEVILLE, CHATEL CHEIRY and LaFORGE.

In the face of heavy artillery and machine gun fire, troops from ILLINOIS, WISCONSIN, WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA, VIRGINIA and WEST VIRGINIA, and Regular Troops belonging to Major General Bullard's Corps, forced the enemy back to the KRISTEILDE position, south of the BOIS DE FORET.

MEMORANDUM No. 17.

1. The 28th Division has successfully engaged in two campaigns and is now known as a veteran and fighting Division.

Every effort must be made to inculcate this spirit in the minds of members of the Division, so that it may be handed down as a Keystone tradition.

2. Extreme smartness in clothing, appearance, set-up and saluting of individuals will be insisted upon.

It will be assumed that officers are riding in all passenger-carrying automobiles, and at all times upon the approach of automobiles all members of this command will come to attention and salute.

3. All Commanding Officers will insist upon proper military carriage and deportment and strict form of courtesy. It is expected that officers will set an example.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 19.

1. The Division Commander desires to express his appreciation to all officers and soldiers of the 28th Division and of attached units who, at all times during the advance in the valley of the AIRR and in the ARGONNE FOREST, in spite of many hardships and constant personal danger, gave their best efforts to further the success of the Division.

2. As a result of this operation, which extended from 5:30 on the morning of September 26th until the night of 8-9 October, with almost continuous fighting, the enemy's line was forced back more than ten kilometers. In spite of most stubborn and at times desperate resistance the enemy was driven out of GRAND BOURVILLE, PETITE BOURVILLE, MONTLAINVILLE, APEMONT, PLAINCHAMP FARM, LA FORGE and CHATEL CHEIRY, and the strongholds on Hills 223, 224 and LA CHENE TONDU were captured in the face of strong machine gun and artillery fire.

3. The following letter regarding this achievement is of interest to all:

"ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS FIRST ARMY CORPS"

From: Commanding General, 1st Army, U. S.
To: Commanding General, 28th Division.
Subject: Commendation.

I desire to express to the 28th Division and its Commander my appreciation of the splendid work done by the Division on October 7, 1918. The capture of Hill center and the combined advance of the right and left brigades bringing about the fall of the very strong positions of the enemy on the LA CHENE TONDU and the TAILLE 'ARBE demonstrate excellent leadership and first-class fighting ability.

The advance in exploitation in front of your right brigade resulting from the foregoing actions was a very bold procedure which will undoubtedly lead to even greater results.

H. LIGGETT,
Major General, U. S. A."

4. As a "new" Division on the VESLE the Twenty-Eighth was cited in orders from General Headquarters for its excellent service, and the splendid work just completed assures it a place in the very front ranks of the fighting "RED" Divisions. With such a position to maintain, it is expected that every man will devote his best effort to the work at hand—to hasten that final victory which is now so near.

It is indeed a pleasure to realize that our recent activities have been appreciated, and that the efforts of all who have taken part in this work have brought additional credit to the Division.

Subject: Recent activity of the 28th Division.

1. I desire to inform you of my gratification at the vigorous and successful activities of your division since its entry into line on the front of the Second Army. The recent patrols and raids have resulted in making "No Man's Land" our land, and in lowering the morale of the hostile troops on your front, as well as in inflicting losses on them, and capturing a considerable number of prisoners. Such conduct exemplifies the American spirit and cannot fail to create a feeling of confidence on the part of our own troops and of corresponding depression on the part of the enemy. The 28th Division has shown its ability to execute promptly the tasks which have been given to it to perform, and its officers and men have exhibited an efficiency and dash which are highly commendable.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 263.

The enemy has capitulated. It is fitting that I address myself in thanks directly to the officers and soldiers of the American Expeditionary Forces who, by their heroic efforts have made possible this glorious result. Our armies, hurriedly raised and hastily trained, met a veteran enemy, and by courage, discipline and skill always defeated him. Without complaint, you have endured incessant toil, privation and danger. You have seen many of your comrades make the supreme sacrifice that freedom may live. I congratulate you upon the splendid fruits of victory which your heroism and the blood of our gallant dead are now presenting to our nation. Your deeds will live on the most glorious pages of America's history.

Those things you have done. There remains now a harder task which will test your soldierly qualities to the utmost. Succeed in this and little note will be taken and few praises will be sung; fail, and the light of your glorious achievements of America's history will be dimmed. But you will not fail. Every natural tendency may urge towards relaxation in discipline in conduct, in appearance, in everything that marks the soldier. Yet you will remember that each officer and each soldier is as representative in Europe of his people and that his brilliant deeds of yesterday permit no action of today to pass unnoticed by friend or foe. You will meet this test as gallantly as you have met the tests on the battlefield. Sustained by your high ideals and inspired by the heroic part you have played, you will carry back to your people the proud consciousness of a new Americanism born of sacrifice. Whether you stand on hostile territory or on the friendly soil of France, you will so bear yourself in discipline, appearance and respect for all civil rights that you will confirm for all time the pride and love which every American feels for your uniform and for you.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 214.

"It has long been our custom to turn in the autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. This year we have special and moving cause to be grateful and to rejoice. God has in His goodness assured us peace. It has not come as a mere cessation of arms, mere relief from the strains and tragedies of war. It has come as a great triumph of right. Complete victory has brought us, not peace alone, but the confident promise of a new day as well in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations. Our gallant armies have participated in a triumph which is not marred or stained by any purpose of selfish aggression. In a righteous cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly served their nation in serving mankind. God has indeed been gracious. We have cause for such rejoicing as revives that strengthens in us all the best traditions of our national history. A new day shines about us, in which our hearts take new courage and look forward with new hope to new and greater duties. While we render thanks for these things let us not forget to seek the divine guidance in the performance of those duties, and divine mercy and forgiveness for all errors of act or purpose, and pray that in all that we do we shall strengthen the ties of friendship and mutual respect upon which we must assist to build the new structure of peace and good will among the nations.

Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease upon that day from their ordinary occupations and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to God, the Father of nations.

"In witness thereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done in the District of Columbia, this sixteenth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-third.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON."

GENERAL ORDERS No. 232.

It is with a sense of gratitude for its splendid accomplishment, which will live through all history, that I record in General Orders a tribute to the victory of the First Army in the MEUSE-ARGONNE battle. Test and strengthened by the reduction of the Mt. Mehel salient, for more than six weeks you battered against the pivot of the enemy line on the Western front. It was a position of imposing natural strength, stretching on both sides of the Meuse River from the bitterly contested hills of Verdun to the almost impenetrable forest of the Argonne; a position, moreover, fortified by four years of labor assigned to render it impregnable; a position held with the fullest resources of the enemy. That position you broke utterly, and thereby hastened the collapse of the enemy's military power.

Soldiers of all of the divisions engaged under the First, Third and Fifth American Corps and the Second Colonial and Seventeenth French Corps (Corps the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 26th, 28th, 29th, 32nd, 33rd, 35th, 37th, 42nd, 77th, 79th, 80th, 81st, 82nd, 84th, 85th and 91st American Divisions, and the 13th and 26th French Divisions, and the 10th and 15th French Colonial Divisions—you will be long remembered for the stubbornness of your progress, your storming of obstinately defended machine gun nests, your penetration, yard by yard, of woods and ravines, your heroic resistance in the face of counter-attacks supported by powerful artillery fire. For more than a month, from the initial attack of September 26, you fought your way slowly through the Argonne, through the woods and over hills west of the Meuse; you slowly enlarged your hold on the Cotes de Meuse to the east, then, on the 1st of November, your attack forced the enemy into flight. Pressing his retreat, you cleared the entire left bank of the Meuse south of Sedan, and then stormed the heights on the right bank and drove him into the plain beyond.

Soldiers of all army and corps troops engaged—to you no less credit is due; your steadfast adherence to duty and your dogged determination in the face of all obstacles made possible the heroic deeds cited above.

The achievement of the First Army which is scarcely to be equaled in American history, must render a sense of proud satisfaction to the troops who participated in the last campaign of the war. The American people will remember it as the realization of the hitherto potential strength of their contribution in the cause of which they had sworn allegiance. There can be no greater reward for a soldier or for a soldier's memory.

This order will be read to all organizations at the first assembly formation after its receipt.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 7.

1. The following communication from the Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, is published for the information of all concerned:

AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES
Office of the Commander-in-Chief,

Chaumont, March 21, 1919.

Major General William H. Hay,
Commanding 28th Division,
American E. F. France.

My Dear General Hay:

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to congratulate you and through you the officers and men of your Division on the splendid showing made at the inspection and review on March 21st at Colombey-les-Bouilles. The appearance and equipment of the troops and also the condition of the animal transport of your Division are to be highly commended. To me this is an indication that such high morale in your command which it possessed while in the fighting line.

Arriving in the spring of 1918 for training with the British, the period of instruction of the 28th Division was cut short, and by the middle of July it was thrown into the active battle to take part in the successful Champagne-Marne offensive. For nearly two weeks the infantry brigades operated under French and other divisional commanders, taking part in the Aix-Marie offensive as the center division of the 3rd Division, which was fighting its way north from the river. On the 28th, however, the division was regrouped under its own commander and from that time fought as a unit.

The 28th Brigade went into the line, relieving the 99th Division (French) in front of Cierges and the Bois de Grimpettes where, after two days' severe fighting the Ourcq River was crossed and the town of Gerges entered. On the night of August 26th the division returned to the battle in the Fismes sector along the southern bank of the Vesle River. From this time until its relief on the night of September 7th by the 26th Division it was continuously engaged in small local fights, in the course of which the river west of Fismes was crossed and the town of Fismette was occupied. After a short period of resting and refitting, it entered the great Meuse-Argonne offensive in small local fights, in the course of which it attacked on the morning of September 26th and until relieved on the night of October 28th, was in continuous action, advancing ten and one-half kilometers against strong enemy resistance and capturing among other towns those of Varennes and Apremont. On October 16th it was again placed in the line—this time in the Toul sector near Thalaucourt. From this position it attacked on November 10th and captured the town of Vaux, where hostilities were suspended.

In view of this record, the officers and men of the 28th Division may proudly carry home with them the gratitude of the Allies with whom they fought and the pride of their fellows throughout our Forces, who want them to know of my own appreciation of the part they have played in the victories which are to the credit of American arms.

Sincerely yours,

GENERAL ORDERS No. 11.

1. The following communication from the Commanding General, Second Army American Expeditionary Forces, is published for the information of all concerned:

HEADQUARTERS SECOND ARMY AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

Office of the Commanding General

Toul, France, 2 April, 1919.

From: Commanding General, Second Army.

To: Commanding General, 28th Division.

Subject: Operations of the 28th Division.

1. Upon the departure of the 28th Division from the Second Army for return to the United States I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the work of this division while under my command. This Division has served in all of the major operations of the final year of this war, such as:

(CHAMPAGNE-MARNE Defensive (15 July—18 July)
AISNE-MARNE Offensive (23 July—31 July)
FISMES Sector (7 August—17 August)
OISE-AISNE (18 August—8 September)
MEUSE-ARGONNE (26 September—9 October)
THIAUCOURT Sector (16 October—11 November)

2. On July 15 this Division assisted in stopping the great German drive south of the MARNE and in the AISNE-MARNE Offensive, operating under French and American Corps, pushed forward to the VESLE River, where it held a sector for more than a month of continuous fighting. During this time the 28th Division was operating under my command in the III Corps, and under my direction this Division established and held a sector for more than a month of continuous fighting at the VESLE and the subsequent advance towards the AISNE RIVER this Division bore the brunt of the fighting for it was in front of this Division that the enemy was making his strongest resistance. After being relieved on September 8th this Division moved into the ARGONNE FOREST, and with only a few days' rest went into the great MEUSE-ARGONNE Battle, which resulted in the signing of the Armistice. The work of this Division in this offensive is too well known for me to recount at length, but such names as VARENNES, ARGONNE FOREST, APRÉMONT, MONT-BLANVILLE and CHATEL CHERY are written in history after the name of the 28th Division. After serving for thirteen days, this Division was relieved and sent to the then quiet THIAUCOURT Sector for rest, but although the Division was tired and worn out, its indomitable spirit arose and the THIAUCOURT Sector was changed from a quiet sector into an active one.

3. During the many operations in which this Division was engaged, many prisoners, arms, and much material were captured. From the signing of the Armistice, during a period of trying waiting, the Division's interest never flagged; its appearance, condition and state of preparedness has steadily improved and upon them the Commander-in-Chief has congratulated the Division. The fighting spirit of the 28th Division is shown by its casualty lists which is fourth among the divisions of the American Expeditionary Forces. This Division has always been a combat division in every sense of the word, and in my belief should be classed as an A-1 Shock Division. I desire to extend my most sincere congratulations to the officers and men of this Division, which has in its operations shown the highest spirit of the American troops. I again extend to you all my most sincere congratulations and best wishes.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 8.

1. In relinquishing command of this brigade, which the undersigned had the privilege of commanding during the last days of its participation in the battle now in progress, I deem it my duty to make a record of my appreciation of its distinguished service in the General Orders of the Brigade.

2. When the simple facts are recorded that at the end of fourteen days of constant combat, one of the battalions of the 109th Infantry Regiment when relieved from the firing line was commanded by a Second Lieutenant, the only remaining officer on duty with that battalion, and that one battalion of the 109th Infantry Regiment when withdrawn from the firing line was commanded by one of its Sergeants. The high devotion to duty of the officers and men of the brigade is made manifest and any words of praise for such devotion could only prove inadequate.

EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

To Commanding Officer, 110th Infantry:

In relinquishing command of the 55th Brigade, I wish to extend to you my sincere appreciation of the earnest support and efficient service given at all times by yourself and your organization while I was temporarily in command of the Brigade in the last eleven days it was in the battle now in progress.

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

France, October 20, 1918.

From: Chief of Staff, 28th Division.

To: 110th Infantry.

Subject: Commendation.

1. The Division Commander desires me to express his appreciation of the work done by the officers and soldiers of the 110th Infantry Regiment, and during the recent offensive in the valley of the AÏE and the ARGONNE FOREST with true devotion to duty, gave the best that was in them to further the success of the Division.

2. During this advance many hardships had to be endured and the fact that the regiment willingly responded at all times to any calls upon it is especially noteworthy. Also, the advance down the valley under strong artillery and machine gun fire which culminated in the taking of PLEINCHAMP FARM deserves the highest commendation.

By command of MAJOR GENERAL HAY:

W. O. SWEENEY,
Chief of Staff.

HEADQUARTERS ONE HUNDRED TENTH INFANTRY AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

France, 2 November, 1918.

To Commanding Officer, Officers and men of the 110th Infantry:

By Division Orders I have been directed to return to the United States for duty, and I take this as my only opportunity for expressing to all the Officers and men of this Regiment my appreciation of the splendid and loyal support given me at all times. I have been constantly connected with this regiment in various capacities for more than 20 years, and severing relations with the organization is with the deepest regret. My association with the Officers and men of the 110th Infantry will be one of my fondest recollections.

It is during our relations of the last few months of which I particularly desire to speak. I do not think a more courageous or conscientious organization of men was ever assembled. Your work under the most trying circumstances has been performed with a cheerfulness and a spirit unsurpassed, and which has always crowned your efforts with victory. The old 10th Pennsylvania Infantry, the father of the organization was never known to retreat. The 110th Infantry has never given up one foot of ground unless ordered to do so by higher command. You have been making history. The Marne, Conde-en-Brie, Grimpeuses Woods, the Vesle, Argonne Forest, all will have a glorious place on the most brilliant pages of American History.

I hope for your continued success and bespeak for the regimental commanders of the future the same loyalty and the same efforts you have made for me.

That the war may soon end and that you may be safely returned to your homes is my prayer.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 4.

1. The existence of the 28th Division now ends. Each member has every right to be proud of its deeds during the great drama in which it took part.

It now becomes the duty of the surviving members of the Division to take up their normal duties. The call of the camp, field or barracks may take some of you back "to the colors"; but the great majority will return to the professions, the sciences, the arts, and the labor that constitute the life of a people.

In saying farewell the Commander under whom you served desires the hope that the plaudits, the admiration, the appreciation, the gratitude that mark your return, may in no way unfit any for further and increased usefulness; that each will bring to his new task, that industry, courage and fidelity that mark the true soldier.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 38-A.

MY FELLOW SOLDIERS:

Now that your service with the American Expeditionary Forces is about to terminate, I can not let you go without a personal word. At the call to arms, the patriotic young manhood of America eagerly responded and became the formidable army whose decisive victories testify to its efficiency and its valor. With the support of the nation firmly united to defend the cause of liberty, our army has executed the will of the people with resolute purpose. Our democracy has been tested, the forces of autocracy have been defeated. To the glory of the citizen-soldier, our troops have faithfully fulfilled their trust, and in a succession of brilliant offensives have overcome the menace to our civilization.

As an individual, your part in the world war has been an important one in the sum total of our achievements. Whether keeping lonely vigil in the trenches, or gallantly storming the enemy's stronghold; whether enduring monotonous drudgery at the rear, or sustaining the fighting line at the front, each has bravely and efficiently played his part. By willing sacrifice of personal rights - by cheerful endurance of hardship and privation; by vigor, strength and indomitable will, made effective by thorough organization and cordial co-operation, you inspired the war-worn Allies with new life and turned the tide of threatened defeat into overwhelming victory.

With a consecrated devotion to duty and a will to conquer, you have loyally served your country. By your exemplary conduct a standard has been established and maintained never before attained by any army. With mind and body as clean and strong as the decisive blows you delivered against the foe you are soon to return to the pursuits of peace. In leaving the scenes of your victories, may I ask that you carry home to your high ideals and continue to live as you have served—an honor to the principles for which you have fought and to the fallen comrades you leave behind.

It is with pride in our success that I intend to you my sincere thanks for your splendid service to the army and to the nation.

Faithfully,

JOHN J. PERSHING.

Commander in Chief.

Extracts from General Orders Awarding D. S. C's.

By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress approved July 9, 1914 (Bul. 43, W.D., 1918), the distinguished service cross was awarded by the commanding General, American Expeditionary Forces, for extraordinary heroism in France to the following named officers and enlisted men:

WAR DEPARTMENT.

Washington, December 24, 1918.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 139.

Charles R. Rowan, first lieutenant, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. Being familiar with the ground over which an attack was to be made, he volunteered to leave his own company in the reserve and lead another company which was without officers. The enemy attacked before our own operations were begun and he was wounded by a machine-gun bullet. Exemplifying in the highest degree the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty, he remained with his command for an hour and a half until the hostile attack was repulsed. He has since died from the wounds received in this engagement.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Washington, December 27, 1918.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 143.

Charles L. McLain, captain, 110th Infantry. For repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action on the Marne River, France, July 15, 1918 and at Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. He was an observer with the French when the enemy attack on the Marne River was started July 15, 1918. All the officers of an Infantry company having been killed or wounded, he voluntarily reorganized the remainder of the company and successfully fought his way through the enemy, upon two occasions being surrounded. In this operation he was badly gassed. At Apremont, September 29, when his own company had reached its objective, he, finding that another company was without officers, voluntarily assumed command of it and led the first wave. In so doing he was wounded, but he continued in action until the objective was reached.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Washington, December 28, 1918.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 145

Robert F. Jeffrey, corporal, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. He was a member of a section operating 37-millimeter guns which was attacked by the enemy. After removing the guns to safety he learned that the officer commanding the section had been captured, whereupon he organized a party of 5, attacked the enemy's patrol, numbering 35, and succeeded in delivering the captured officer, killing 15 of the enemy and personally carrying two. Later in the same evening in entire disregard for his own safety, he assisted a sergeant in organizing 75 men for a counter-attack, which they launched in the face of heavy fire at close range, driving the enemy back for more than a kilometer.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 202.

Andrew B. Lynch, sergeant, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. He was on duty with a section operating 37-millimeter guns. Under orders he moved the guns to the rear, and then learning that his commanding officer had been taken prisoner, he, with another soldier, organized a party of 5, attacked the enemy patrol numbering 35, and killing 15 of them, he personally rescuing his commanding officer and capturing 3 prisoners. Immediately afterwards he took command of 75 men and launched a counter-attack, driving the enemy before them for over a kilometer. His conduct exemplified the greatest courage, judgment and leadership.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 50.

Joseph H. Thompson, lieutenant colonel, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, October 1, 1918. Counter-attacked by two regiments of the enemy, Col. Thompson (then Major) encouraged his battalion in the front line by constantly braving the hazardous fire of machine-guns and artillery. His courage was mainly responsible for the heavy repulse of the enemy. Later in the action he rushed forward on foot under heavy rifle and anti-tank fire and led tanks on enemy machine-gun nests and succeeded in reducing these strongholds. He was ordered to the rear after being painfully wounded by shrapnel. Home address: Mrs. Violet E. S. Thompson, wife, Patterson Heights, Beaver Falls, Pa.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Washington, May 15, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 64.

J. Edward Boyle, captain, Machine Gun Company, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Varennes, France, September 26, 1918. While bringing his company into position he was severely wounded, being struck in 11 places by fragments of high explosive shells. Being that his being wounded and the enemy fire had caused some disorganization of his command, he assembled his platoon and section leaders, assigned them their missions, and, although bleeding profusely, set them an example of coolness and bravery. Inspired by his bravery, the company moved forward, getting into action at a critical period of the fight. Home address: Mrs. Edna B. Boyle, wife, 801 Seventh Avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa.

John J. Dean (Army serial No. 1240919), sergeant, Company H, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Montblainville, France, September 27, 1918. Although wounded in the lung by a machine-gun bullet, he refused to be evacuated. Upon his platoon reaching its objective, he consolidated the new position and repulsed a strong counter-attack with heavy losses to the enemy. He then reported to his battalion commander, refusing a litter, saying that all effectives were needed in the lines and walked to the dressing station. Home address: Mrs. Hattie Molter, aunt, 2332 North Twelfth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Henry E. Hacker (Army serial No. 377831), private, Company A, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, October 1, 1918. He overheard a lieutenant report to the battalion commander the location of an enemy machine-gun nest which was causing heavy casualties among our troops. Due to heavy shelling, delay in the bringing up of a 1-pounder crew was serious, and Pvt. Hacker, realizing the need for immediately silencing the enemy machine guns, acting on his own initiative, advanced alone over a fire-swept area for about 500 yards, attacked and captured the enemy crews of six men and two machine-guns, and brought them back to our lines. Home address: Mrs. Anna Hacker, wife, 960 Tinton Avenue, Bronx, New York, N. Y.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 71.

Edward Martin, lieutenant Colonel, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 29, 1918. In command of an inexperienced battalion, he led an attack against a strongly held position, and advancing with the front line, raised the most of officers and men by his coolness under heavy fire and utter disregard for personal danger.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action Lieut. Col. Edward Martin is awarded one oak leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished service cross. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918. Although painfully wounded when regimental headquarters was destroyed by shell fire, he went forward with a battalion commander and directed the successful attack against a strong enemy position, remaining in command of the regiment until its relief. Home address: Mrs. Charity Scott Martin, wife, Waynesburg, Pa.

E. J. Stackpole, Jr., captain, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Baslieux-lez-Fimes, France, August 24, 1918. Directed to advance to a new position, he led his men forward with great gallantry. Although painfully wounded in the back and leg by shell fragments, he remained on duty with his men, inspiring them by his courage and coolness to hold a difficult position against repeated attacks by the enemy in force for a period of 24 hours. Home address: Mrs. E. J. Stackpole, Jr., wife, Harrisburg, Pa.

John J. Kennedy, captain, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 29, 1918. Learning that two of his men were lying wounded in an exposed position in front of our lines, he went forward alone, facing heavy fire, to their rescue. After carrying one of the wounded men back to our lines, he was confronted by a German upon his return. Ticking up a rifle of the wounded man he had come to rescue, he shot the German, and then completed his mission of rescue. Home address: Michael J. Kennedy, father, Scottdale, Pa.

Peter Ratkovich, (Army serial No. 1639640), private, Company C, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Varennes, France, September 26, 1918. In company with other soldiers on his own initiative, led a charge on an enemy machine-gun nest, and although severely wounded pressed forward, wounding three and capturing three of the enemy. Home address: Vidvo Ratkovich, cousin, box 321, Amador, Calif.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 74.

Thomas B. Anderson, major, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918, and near Baslieux, France, September 5, 1918. Leading his battalion in an attack, he refused to be evacuated and gassed, until the objective had been gained and the position consolidated. His courage was an inspiration to his men. Five weeks later he was killed while leading a patrol across open ground, swept by heavy fire, against the enemy machine-gun nest. Home address: Mrs. Ruth J. Anderson, wife, Lloyd Avenue, Latrobe, Pa.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 95.

Frank S. Long, first lieutenant, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Fleville, France, October 5, 1918. Having been wounded in the back which was treated for wounded men of his platoon, Lieut. Long refused to be evacuated, but returned from the dressing station to his command. While withdrawing his platoon to a better position under a heavy barrage he was instantly killed by shell fire. His courage and self-sacrifice furnished a splendid inspiration to his men. Next of kin: Colonel F. S. Long, 71st Artillery, (C. A. C.) Home address: 309 West One Hundred and fifth Street, New York City, N. Y.

Daniel L. Jones, (Army serial No. 1238908), sergeant, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Baslieux, France, September 6, 1918. In command of a detachment of Signal men in the crossing of the Vesle River, Sergt. Jones was severely gassed while transmitting an important message to the rear. He, however, continued with his message the entire distance to the regimental headquarters where he arrived exhausted and suffering severely from burns and gas inhalation. Although tagged at the dressing station for evacuation he refused to be evacuated and returned to the front line, later bringing three other men blinded by gas to the rear. Sergt. Jones subsequently died September 18, 1918, from the injuries received. Home address: Mrs. Daniel L. Jones, wife, Latrobe, Pa.

Anthony Fiorentino (Army serial No. 1247119), private, Company I, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Magnaux, France, August 5, 1918. Volunteering to locate an enemy machine-gun nest which was sniping wounded men of the company, Pvt. Fiorentino advanced alone and by drawing the enemy fire enabled his company to destroy the nest and continue the advance. In exposing himself to the enemy he was fatally wounded and was killed and died on the field shortly afterwards. Home address: Frank Fiorentino, father, 110 Furnace Street, Rankin, Pa.

Joseph S. Ferguson, first lieutenant, 110th Infantry (Company H). For extraordinary heroism in action near Varennes, France, September 26, 1918. Lieut. Ferguson was engaged in "mopping up" the town, when he discovered a considerable force of the enemy coming from digouts and taking up positions in the rear of the front line with machine-guns and anti-tank guns, from which they fired upon the front line immediately after the attack. He immediately advanced and once the heavy casualties that might be caused to our troops and the impossibility of further advance by the front line with this enemy force in its rear, Lieut. Ferguson, on his own initiative assembled a portion of his men, skillfully conducted them to a police office in the rear of the town, thence toward the west, and captured the entire enemy force, consisting of about 20 officers and over 100 men, thus enabling the front line to continue its advance. For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 19, 1918, Lieut. Ferguson is awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished service cross: As he was reforming his platoon in a salient position after a withdrawal, he went forward under enemy machine-gun and sniping fire and carried to shelter a severely wounded soldier. Home address: Mrs. Dorothy Ferguson, wife, 3713 North Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WAR DEPARTMENT

GENERAL ORDERS No. 98.

William S. Tinsley (Army serial No. 2216380), private, Company I, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. During a determined enemy counter-attack Pvt. Tinsley volunteered with another soldier to locate the source of enemy fire which was causing heavy casualties to the front line. After a determined search under fire the source of the enemy, they opened fire, killing two, wounding two, and capturing a machine-gun. Their courageous feat materially aided his unit to continue the advance. Home address: William S. Tinsley, father, 19 East Second Street, Wichita, Kan.

Ulman C. Hender, captain, Company K, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918. Severely wounded in the shoulder early in the attack on the Bois de Grimpettes, Captain Hender (then first lieutenant), though he was suffering intense pain, refused to be evacuated, but continued to lead his company forward, until the entire woods had been captured and the new position consolidated. Home address: Lieut. Col. Charles J. Hender, father, 1428 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Henry M. King, second lieutenant, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. During a determined enemy counter-attack, Lieut. King (then sergeant), encountered with another soldier to locate the source of enemy fire which was inflicting heavy casualties on his company. Going forward under fire and discovering seven of the enemy, they opened fire, killing two, wounding two, and capturing a machine-gun. Their courageous feat materially aided his platoon to continue the advance. Home address: Mr. Samuel J. King, father, 111 Scheerer Street, Greensburg, Pa.

Blake Lightner, second lieutenant, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Courmont, France, July 29, 31, 1918, and near Montblainville, France, September 27, 1918, to October 3, 1918. Lieut. Lightner voluntarily established an advance observation post at Courmont. During his work he was knocked down by the concussion of an exploding shell, but remained at his post. Throughout the action in the Argonne he repeatedly exposed himself while leading his men at Montblainville, although wounded by a shell splinter, he continued in action, and succeeded in putting into operation German machine-guns against the enemy, greatly assisting in repulsing their counter-attack. He refused to be evacuated until ordered to the rear. Home address: Mrs. Ruby Lightner, wife, 923 1/2 Chestnut Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Eugene B. Cassidy, (Army serial No. 1241866), sergeant, Company M, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near the Vesle River, France, August 26, 1918. With utter disregard for his own safety, Sergt. Cassidy voluntarily left shelter and, going 100 yards in advance of the line under heavy machine-gun and shell fire, rescued a wounded comrade. Home address: Cassidy, father, 1404 Sedgewick Avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alvey C. Martz (Army serial No. 1239663), sergeant, Company C, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Condé-sur-Briac, France, July 15, 1918. Under violent shell and machine-gun fire, Sergt. Martz assisted in reorganizing the remnant of a shattered company, which was surrounded by the enemy, and held the position until the group was again cut to pieces. With an officer and two other soldiers he then succeeded in fighting his way from within the enemy line, carrying a wounded comrade to the rear. Sergt. Martz arrived with his pistol. Home address: Mrs. Lincoln A. Martz, Glencoe, Pa.

George Ogden (Army serial No. 1241102), corporal, Company H, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Montblainville, France, September 27, 1918, and near Baslieux, France, September 2-9, 1918. While acting as battalion scout, Corp. Ogden succeeded in driving away the crew of two enemy machine-guns by sniping. Operating one of these guns himself and a sergeant the other, they materially assisted in repulsing an enemy counter-attack. On another occasion, while leading a patrol across open ground, he was wounded by shell fire, but succeeded in getting on the flank of the enemy and by rifle fire forced about 100 to retreat from a trench in disorder, inflicting many casualties. Later he succeeded in getting in the rear of the enemy position, and remained in hiding until night, then returned with valuable information relative to the enemy positions. Home address: Mrs. Rachel Ogden, mother, 4081 Manayunk Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

John G. Belko (Army serial No. 1239395), private, first-class, Company A, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, September 29, 1918. Pvt. Belko made several trips under heavy fire, carrying wounded comrades to shelter. On the same day he advanced alone 60 yards ahead of the line under heavy machine-gun sniping and sniping fire, and succeeded in capturing and harassing his company with rifle grenade fire. He was later wounded in action. Home address: John Belko, father, Braddock, Pa.

Amado, Garcia (Army serial No. 1626968), private, first class, Company K, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 26, 1918. With two other soldiers, Pvt. Garcia, crawled 300 yards in front of our lines through the enemy's wire, and attacked a hostile machine-gun nest. The enemy crew opened fire on them at a range of only 10 yards and resisted stubbornly, but they succeeded in killing three of the crew and driving off the others with clubbed rifles. They returned to our lines under heavy fire. Home address: Mrs. Maria Garcia, mother, Acornita, N. Mex.

Walter P. Zohnowski (Army serial No. 1298919), private, first class, Company M, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Apremont, France, October 1, 1918. Having volunteered with two other soldiers to establish liaison with another unit which had been cut off by a hostile counter-attack, Pvt. Zohnowski rushed the enemy machine-gun nest, killing four of the enemy and capturing four prisoners. After taking his prisoners to the rear, he volunteered and led a small force in a successful attack on the enemy. Home address: Mrs. Jennie Zohnowski, mother, 2953 Milvale Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Lauriano Martinez (Army serial No. 1626989), private, Company K, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 26, 1918. With two other soldiers Pvt. Martinez crawled 300 yards in front of our line through the enemy's wire and attacked a hostile machine-gun nest. The enemy crew opened fire on them at a range of only 10 yards and resisted stubbornly, but they succeeded in killing three of the crew and driving off the others with clubbed rifles. They returned to our lines under heavy fire. Home address: Mr. Martinez, father, Chacon, N. Mex.

Harry B. Reach (Army serial No. 1241545), private, Company K, 110th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Varennes, France, September 27, 1918. Acting as a company runner Pvt. Reach voluntarily carried numerous messages under heavy machine-gun fire, displaying marked courage and devotion to duty. Home address: Joseph Reach, brother, Carneys Point, N. J.

ITALIAN MILITARY MISSION

G.H.Q., A.E.F.

Chaumont, June 8th, 1919.

Dear Sir:

His Majesty The King of Italy, Victor Emmanuel III<sup>d</sup>, has designed to confer on you the Italian War Cross for Merit, which I include.

The King of Italy has wished that this decoration which in Italy is given to reward those who most distinguished themselves in action, should be awarded to you in recognition of the gallantry you have shown and of the merit you have thereby acquired for the common cause, even though you have not fought on Italian soil.

I. PERELLI, Brig. General,

Chief of Mission

To Cpl. Jeffrey, Robert E.

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

France, October 15th, 1918.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 18.

1. It gives me great pleasure to record in General Orders a tribute to the service and valorous conduct of First Lieutenant HENRY LAMI, 88th Regiment Territorial French Infantry, who distinguished himself in extraordinary gallantry in action, in connection with military operations against an armed enemy of the United States and of France.

Lieutenant LAMI was officer adviser attached to an American Infantry Regiment, and was admired by all for his modesty, courage and coolness. He had been severely wounded and captured, escaped by this unit, up to September 6th, 1918, when he was gassed in the course of the progressive following an Infantry attack, death ensuing as a result of gas absorption.

HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

It gives me great pleasure to record in General Orders, a tribute to the valorous conduct of the following name officers and soldiers of this Division who have distinguished themselves by extraordinary gallantry in connection with military operations against an armed enemy of the United States under the following circumstances:

GENERAL ORDERS No. 21.

September 28, 1918, Company D, 110th Infantry, under command of First Lieutenant JOHN W. MERRICK, gained their objective—the western end of a mine about one kilometer west of Apremont, to find they were subjected to frontal and enfilading fire and without shelter. He was ordered to withdraw and while doing so was painfully wounded by machine gun bullets through the elbow and hand. Disabled and suffering great pain, he and his men bravely directed his men at great peril to himself, getting back what was left of his Company together with men of other units who had attached themselves.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 25.

The attack on Chatel Chevery, September 29, 1918, not being supported on the right, the advance units of the 110th Infantry came under frontal and enfilading fire of all calibers, and the Brigade Commander desiring to discontinue the advance, Second Lieutenant HENRY G. CULPEPPER, 110th Infantry, volunteered to go to the front and stay the movement, and later, personally, by small groups, withdrew the said troops over a firewreath area with slight losses. To do this it was necessary for him to expose himself. His conduct was courageous and this work skillfully done.

The same day in response to the wish of the Brigade Commander, he visited the units on the right, interviewed the necessary officers and brought back a very valuable report. During this entire trip he was exposed and constantly under machine gun and sniper fire.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 8.

During the attack on Bois Grimettes, First Lieutenant JOHN L. ROBINSON, Liaison Officer, 1st Battalion, 110th Infantry, established liaison on our left that was of great assistance, and the Brigade Commander, at the time of the attack, after having been definitely fixed, was staged 30 minutes earlier and this information had to be gotten to the front line. Lieut. Robinson volunteered and under a hail of machine gun and artillery fire, went from the left to the right of the line notifying each commander, thereby preventing incalculable loss. As the terrain was such that his progress could be seen by almost the entire command, this service on the part of Lieut. Robinson greatly strengthened the morale and made the successful attack which followed possible.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 9.

On July 30, 1918, just previous to the attack on Grimettes Woods, near Courment, France, the zero hour was changed by Corps Headquarters. At this time the troops were in position. Lieutenant WILLIAM E. FIERCE, Company Captain, Adjutant, Second Battalion, 110th Infantry, at the Regimental P. C. having heard of the change, voluntarily and on his own initiative, proceeded through hostile fire to the front line, where he gave notice of the change in plans and thereby prevented any delay in the attack.

France, April 14, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 14.

Sergeant NORMAN L. DUNCAN, No. 1240499, Company F, 110th Infantry, on September 27, 1918, near Montblanville, France, commanding his platoon in the open field and subjected to intense machine gun fire from front and flank, hearing the call of a wounded comrade in front of his line, voluntarily proceeded to his rescue in full view of the enemy and regardless of personal safety. Though seriously wounded himself, he nevertheless administered first-aid to his comrade, inspiring all his men by his cool and courageous conduct.

On September 29, 1918, near Apremont, France, Corporal CLARENCE BUCHHEIMER, No. 1630442, Company C, 110th Infantry, knocked unconscious by a machine gun bullet which grazed his scalp during an enemy counter-attack, upon recovering consciousness went forward under heavy machine gun and artillery fire and carried a wounded comrade to a place of safety. His conduct exemplified great courage and disregard for personal safety.

Camp Dix, N. J., May 16, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 2.

Sergeant JAMES R. PATTON, (deceased), No. 1241392, Company K, 110th Infantry, on October 4, 1918, near Chatel Chevery, France, advancing from the second wave to locate the first platoon of his company, was severely wounded in the head. Upon reaching the commander of the first platoon that the enemy was threatening to cut it off, volunteering to go for assistance, he was mortally wounded before reaching the second wave but succeeded in transmitting his message to another before dying, thereby saving the first platoon.

Camp Dix, N. J., May 16, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 3.

Sergeant CLAUDE T. YOUNG, No. 1230165, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, in command of his 37 m/m gun platoon when the Infantry in which he was supporting were held up by machine gun fire on September 6, 1918, near Baslieux, France, placed a 37 m/m gun, with the assistance of three others, in front of the enemy, and knocked unconscious by a machine gun bullet which grazed his head himself, although subjected to very heavy rifle, machine gun and artillery fire, with the result that the two enemy machine gun nests which were delaying the advance of the Infantry were destroyed. His actions exemplified great personal courage and coolness under fire.

HEADQUARTERS FOURTH ARMY CORPS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, APO No. 775

Cochem, Germany, March 23, 1919.

This is to certify that Edward Martin was under my command and personal observation from the time I assumed command of the 28th Division early in December, 1917, until he was detached and sent to the United States in the Fall of 1918.

I always found him an extremely alert, conscientious and energetic officer of unusual ability in all the disciplinary matters of military life and especially aggressive and capable in combat.

Because of his worth and services, he was promoted from Major to Lieutenant Colonel in the 28th Division on my recommendation. Later he was selected for the same reasons to go to the United States, in order to take command of some regiment about to be formed. A step that at that time carried with it further promotion to a Colonelcy, which was further carried by his promotion to a Colonelcy with regret that I learned that he had arrived in the United States too late to receive such promotion. I consider that his services fully entitle him to such promotion and that he was quite capable to have fulfilled the duties of such advanced rank.

HEADQUARTERS ONE HUNDRED TENTH INFANTRY, CAMP DIX, NEW JERSEY

GENERAL ORDERS No. 1.

It gives me great pleasure to record, in General Orders, a tribute to the valorous conduct of the following named soldiers of this Regiment who have distinguished themselves by extraordinary gallantry in connection with military operations against an armed enemy of the United States under the following circumstances:

4. "Near Fignes, France, on the eve of the 26th of August, 1918, Private Louis Martinet, an Indian replacement, with two other men, crawled three hundred yards in front of our lines, crossed the enemy wire and attacked one of the several enemy's machine gun nests. The enemy crew fled and he was killed by a burst of ten yards and resisted stubbornly, three being killed or mortally wounded and the others driven off with clubbed rifles. The machine gun was destroyed and the party returned safely to our own fire. Further enemy gunners. Private Martinet's conduct exemplified the greatest valor and courage."

3. "On October 6, 1918, Private James H. Jenkins, Company E, 110th Infantry, while on runner duty with 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, in the vicinity of Plein Champ Farm, carried an important message to Regimental P. C. over terrain that was beaten by shell fire. He crawled a great part of the distance, delivered his message and made his way back to his organization."

4. "Near Montblanville, France, September 27th, 1918, Private 1st Class Louis C. Heavens, Headquarters' Company, 110th Infantry, was on duty as a runner for 37 m/m Platoon. He provided the only means of communication between the platoon which was on the front line and the Battalion Headquarters. During the entire day Private Heavens made innumerable trips carrying vital messages through the thickest machine gun, rifle and artillery fire. The conduct of Private Heavens on this day exemplified the greatest personal courage, faithfulness to duty, and exceptional bravery under fire."

5. "Near Varennes, France, September 28th, 1918, Private 1st Class Edward L. Lynch, Headquarters' Company, 110th Infantry, was on duty as a runner with 37 m/m Platoon. During the day Private Lynch maintained communication between his platoon, which was constantly moving forward with the front line, and the numerous temporary locations of Regimental Headquarters. In so doing, Private Lynch had to journey through the densest fog over unknown ground, and over territory constantly swept by machine gun, rifle and artillery fire. Private Lynch's conduct on this day exemplified the greatest personal courage, devotion to duty and bravery under fire."

6. "Near Varennes, France, September 26th, 1918, Private 1st Class George R. Baker, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, was 'Leader' on a crew operating a 37 m/m gun which had been placed on the front line for direct close range fire. Overwhelming machine gun fire, together with artillery, were directed against this gun, mortally wounding the crew operator. Lifting the Gunner's body from the position, Private Baker took his position and both loading and aiming the gun himself, continued to fire his weapon until ordered to draw back. The conduct of Baker exemplified the greatest personal courage, devotion to duty and, in my opinion, showed very exceptional bravery under fire."

7. "Near Apremont, France, September 28th, 1918, Private Simon L. Anderson, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, was on duty with a section operating a 37 m/m gun. His own gun having been put out of action by enemy fire, Private Anderson discovered a disabled tank to which he made his way, crawling and rolling under withering machine gun fire over a distance two hundred yards. Climbing into the tank and finding both operators severely wounded, Private Anderson started to open fire with the 37 m/m gun mounted in the tank. Private Anderson's conduct on this day exemplifies the greatest personal courage, judgment and exceptional bravery under fire."

8. "Near Baslieux, France, September 6th, 1918, Sergeant Daniel L. Jones, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, was in command of detachment of signaller in the advance in the attack. While carrying this regiment across the Vesle River. While transmitting an important message to the rear, Sergeant Jones was severely gassed by a shell which hit in the group of men engaged in the work. The entire crew was incapacitated, making it necessary for Sergeant Jones to personally carry the message to Regimental Headquarters, where he arrived exhausted and suffering severely from burns and gas inhalation. Although tagged at the dressing station, Sergeant Jones, making no mention of his wound to the front line, where he, unaided, brought three of his men, then blind from the effects of the gas, to the rear. Two days later Sergeant Jones died from the effects of his injury."

9. "Under the faithful and efficient leadership of 2nd Lieut. Donald M. Kimmel (then Band Leader) and the following enlisted personnel of the band, cheerfully and willingly performed every duty that was assigned to it and frequently went beyond the bounds of duty. Its members courageously acted as stretcher bearers and administered first aid to the wounded under enemy fire until forbidden by orders. On July 17, 1918, near Conde-en-Brie, France, when volunteer stretcher bearers and first aid men were called for to help the 109th Infantry, the band of this regiment volunteered to a man and worked from 7:00 P. M. that day to 10:00 P. M. the following day under shell fire and with but very little assistance, carrying off the wounded and administering first aid."

Their efforts greatly aided in keeping up the morale of the men during the long wait in Europe after the signing of the armistice and were a constant source of pleasure to the officers and enlisted men of this regiment.

10. "Near Monthlivaux, France, September 27th, 1918, Sergeant Frank Imbrogno, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, was in charge of a section operating a 37 m/m gun. He placed his gun one hundred yards in front of his own front line under the severest shelling and machine gun fire from the enemy. In so doing the gunner and loader of his gun were wounded. Under the severest shelling and machine gun fire he destroyed two machine gun nests which were holding up the left flank of the infantry. The conduct of Sergeant Imbrogno on this day exemplified the greatest personal courage, judgment and leadership, and in my opinion showed exceptional bravery under fire."

11. "Near Courmont, France, July 29th, 1918, Captain John J. Kennedy, 110th Infantry, then a Second Lieutenant commanding a platoon of Company E, 110th Infantry, led his platoon forward in an attack across the Bois de Grimettes. His platoon, together with another platoon from the same company, reached the most advanced point attained by any of our troops that day. The attack having been held up on account of fire received from both sides, an order to retire having been received, Captain Kennedy was obliged to retire with his platoon to a protected position in the rear. Upon reaching this position Captain Kennedy, who had discovered an order to retire having been issued and left in an exposed position about fifty yards to the front, went forward alone and in full view of the enemy under a heavy machine gun and rifle fire and carried back to safety, first one of these men and then the other. As Captain Kennedy reached the second wounded man a German soldier appeared at the edge of the woods nearby. Captain Kennedy picked up the rifle of the wounded man and shot the German after which he picked up the wounded man and carried him to safety.

12. "Near Baslieux, France, September 6th, 1918, 2nd Lieut. William F. Caldwell, then commanding a platoon of Company F, 110th Infantry, led a daylight combat patrol with the mission of cleaning out some German trenches in front of our outpost. As 2nd Lieut. Caldwell was advancing at the head of his patrol, one of the German trenches discovered a German machine gunner with his gun in an emplacement about 100 yards in front of the trench. Climbing out of the trench he charged across the shell view and fired at the machine gunner, who was captured and machine gun and gunner. Finding that the gunner was badly wounded and could not be brought back he destroyed the gun and returned to the trench. The enemy extended his position, where he fired fire to the trench where his men were. In returning, Lieut. Caldwell received a machine gun bullet through the lung, which later caused his death."

13. "Near Fleville, France, October 5, 1918, 1st Lieut. Frank S. Long, 110th Infantry, upon receipt of orders to move his company forward, did so over the Baulny-Fleville Road, which was then being very heavily shelled, and upon reaching his position got his men under cover. He then reported to his Regimental Commander and was instructed to return to his company and remain with it until further orders were received to move forward. Upon returning he was struck in the right side by shrapnel while dressing wounded men of his company. He had his wound treated at First Aid Station, where he was ordered to the rear. This he refused to do and returned to his company. A subsequent attack was made on the front line and the company was ordered to cover, and in supervising this work he was struck by a one pounder shell and instantly killed. Lieut. Long's conduct exemplified the greatest personal courage and leadership, and in my opinion was of inestimable value to the morale of his men."

14. "Near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918, Major Thomas B. Anderson, then commanding the 110th Infantry, was severely and painfully wounded on the left leg by shrapnel and was also gassed. Regardless of the great pain he remained on duty with his troops until the attack was successful, and he had recovered his leg and was able to organize for a counter-attack. He continually exposed himself to rifle and machine gun fire. Despite his wounds Major Anderson remained continually on duty with his battalion during the period between July 30th, 1918, and September 5th, 1918, during which time the regiment was in the front line for three weeks along the Vesle River. On September 5th 1918, he led his battalion across the Vesle River and up to the plateau north of Baslieux, France, where an attack was made on a strong enemy position. When the advance was held up by enemy machine gun fire Major Anderson personally led a small patrol forward, in utter disregard for his personal safety, to get a better view of the face of the machine gun fire, and in full view of the enemy, for the purpose of destroying a particularly troublesome machine gun nest. Before the enemy position was reached Major Anderson was hit by machine gun fire which killed him. His devotion to duty and fearlessness were a great inspiration to the men of his battalion. His conduct exemplified the greatest courage, judgment and leadership."

15. "Near Varennes, France, September 27th, 1918, Private Harry B. Reach, while acting as company runner, volunteered to establish liaison between the different platoons. He carried information and messages between the platoons and was constantly exposed to enemy fire. He regarded personal risk and his courageous conduct were an inspiration to the company, while the assistance rendered by this Company Commander was invaluable in carrying out a successful attack. His conduct exemplified the greatest courage, judgment and leadership."

16. "Near Courmont, on Cierges Hill, July 30th, 1918, Corporal Floyd R. Cain, (No. 1239031), Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, was on duty with a section operating a 3-inch Stoker's Trench Mortar. He was in the front line between the front and support line, and upon observing his fire was not reaching the enemy positions, he moved his gun a distance of three hundred yards under the heaviest machine gun and artillery fire to within ten paces of the line of outposts, where he again opened fire with his Stoker's Mortar upon the enemy positions cresting the hill. The conduct of Corporal Cain on this day exemplified the greatest personal courage and judgment, and in my opinion showed exceptional bravery under fire."

17. "On the morning of November 11, 1918, Company H, 110th Infantry, was ordered to support the 109th Infantry, in an attack on the woods of Courmont, France. The 109th Infantry was ordered by the Lieutenant in charge of Company H to take six and Sergeant Charles W. Hamilton (No. 1240917), Company H, 110th Infantry, although not being next in command, voluntarily took command of the company, marching the enemy fire to the rear. In the progress of the attack the 109th Infantry, left the company in its proper position and went forward under very heavy machine gun, automatic rifle and artillery fire. To replace the 109th Infantry, Company H was ordered to support them. At the time Sergeant Hamilton took command there was confusion in the ranks, but his prompt action in volunteering creditably cleared the confusion, and his men followed him in perfect order. Sergeant Hamilton's coolness and courageous leadership greatly increased the efficiency of the troops."

18. "Near Courmont, France, July 30th, 1918, Captain Ulman C. Conroy, then commanding the 110th Infantry, was severely wounded in an attack on the Bois de Grimettes. Despite the pain from this wound, and regardless of personal danger, Captain Hendler continued to lead his platoon forward until the end of the heavy fighting, when he consolidated. He then permitted his men to carry him to the rear. The courage of Captain Hendler was a great inspiration to his men, and the example he set was of inestimable value to the morale and confidence of his company."

19. "At Apremont, France, on the evening of September 29th, 1918, 2nd Lieut. Henry M. King (then a Sergeant), was on duty with Company E, 110th Infantry, in an attack on the Bois de Grimettes. He was launched against our lines just after dusk. There was heavy machine gun and automatic rifle fire directly in front of Lieut. King's position. He was severely wounded in the right arm, but he could not be located from our position. Lieut. King volunteered to find the enemy's position, and with utter disregard for personal safety, he made a bold dash into the enemy's position, where he was met by several men, who were inflicting heavy casualties on our forces. Upon fire, they drove them off, killing two, wounding two and capturing a machine gun, thus greatly aiding the morale and efficiency of our troops and

20. "On the evening of September 29th, 1918, after the outposts and parts of the front line in front of Apremont had been driven in by an attack of the enemy, our men were stopped by a very heavy machine gun fire which were being inflicted on our forces by heavy machine gun and rifle fire, which could not be located from our front line. Private William E. Tinsley (No. 12216380), Company 'I', 110th Infantry, volunteered to find the source of this fire and, with his rifle, he went forward to the machine gun, started forward. Just before reaching the first building they saw seven or eight men dimly outlined. They were within five yards of the men. Sergeant and himself for a second time making the attack that immediately followed. Opening fire with their rifles two Germans were killed. The other Germans dropped to the ground and opened fire. Private Tinsley and the Sergeant also dropped to the ground. The lay of the ground and the success of the attack were such that the position of the enemy could only be seen by the flashing of the rifles and a machine gun which they had set up. By rising on their feet and firing at the flash of the machine gun, Private Tinsley succeeded in changing position they succeeded in wounding two more Germans. The others fled, leaving the machine gun, thus greatly aiding the morale and efficiency of our troops, and making the attack that immediately followed successful. Priv. Tinsley's conduct exemplified the greatest courage and judgment."

21. "On the afternoon of September 27th, 1918, on the left of the village of Monthlifaeville, Private 1st Class John G. Belko, (No. 1229670), Company A, 110th Infantry, under heavy fire, made several trips carrying wounded men from danger to cover. On the same afternoon Private 1st Class Belko Advanced alone about sixty yards in front of his company in making a machine gun nest. He was ordered to retreat to flight about twenty Boche who were doing much damage to the left of the line with rifle grenades. Private 1st Class Belko, on this day, after an exceptional bravery under fire, was by his own disregard for his personal safety gave inspiration to those about him. Private 1st Class Belko was on an October 3rd, 1918, near Chatel to Serzeant and was killed in action on October 9th, 1918, near Chantel-Chery, France."

22. "On September 26th, 1918, near Fresnes, France, Private 1st Class Raymond D. Fisher, (No. 1239449), Company 'A', 110th Infantry, after having been wounded by a rifle bullet went to the assistance of two wounded comrades, under heavy machine gun fire, and succeeded in getting them back to cover. He also gave first aid and rendered assistance of others in going after the wounded men, and showed a devotion to duty and disregard to personal safety which was an inspiration to those about him."

23. "At Hill No. 188, near Clergues, France, on the evening of July 30th, 1918, Private Grover C. Adkins (No. 1627114), Company L, 110th Infantry, in company with another soldier, having fought courageously on the line for three days, volunteered to go forward alone to guide Company D, 110th Infantry, into position on the line. Private Adkins accomplished his mission in the face of very heavy fire from enemy machine guns and one pounders, placing Company D, 110th Infantry, properly in position on the line. He also gave first aid to his company. The conduct of Private Adkins, under fire, on this occasion exemplified the greatest courage and total disregard for personal safety."

24. "On the morning of November 9th, 1918, 1st Lieut. William Holmes, 110th Infantry, was in charge of a raiding party consisting of five officers and one hundred and one enlisted men of the 110th Infantry who were making a daylight raid on the Hindenburg Line in the vicinity of the Bois de la Croix. The raid was a complete success. Lieut. Holmes in entire disregard for his own safety, assisted in the organization of the party under a very heavy concentration of enemy shell fire. He personally encouraged and directed the men of the party, and his fearlessness of danger enabled the men to reach their objective in the face of the friendly barrage. He led the party through the enemy barbed wire, proceeding considerable distance into enemy territory, destroying machine gun emplacements and killing the enemy. He also gave first aid to the wounded and assisted them to the rear, subjecting himself to severe enemy machine gun fire. Lieut. Holmes' conduct exemplified excellent judgment and leadership, and by his coolness and courage while leading, as well as directing his men, he was a great inspiration to them. His courageous deeds incited them to the successful conclusion of the raid in spite of heavy losses."

25. "From July 15th, 1918, to November 11th, 1918, the Regimental Headquarters were almost constantly under enemy fire. On July 28, 1918, the Regimental P. C. was blown up by enemy shell fire at Fresnes, France, and Lieut. Colonel Peter, second in command, and four enlisted men were killed. The headquarters at Fresnes, France, the Regimental Headquarters were again blown up by enemy shell and three officers and fourteen enlisted men were killed and five officers and several enlisted men wounded. The headquarters at Fresnes, France, were destroyed for a second time. Despite shrapnel and high explosives and regardless of the pain and discomfort caused by gas, Regimental Sergeant Major Joseph J. King (No. 1238901), and Sergeant Major Leonard H. Whitehill (No. 1239111) of the 110th Infantry, and the Regimental Clerks and Stenographers continued efficiently to perform their duties, and the orderly section, motor cycle and car drivers continued to carry the messages and reports to the front line and back to Brigade and Division Headquarters over roads constantly under enemy fire. At the same time the Battalion Sergeants Major and the Orderlies assigned to them performed their duties efficiently in spite of the dangers and difficulties at Headquarters. During the period the previous two following men performed faithful and efficient service of inestimable value in connection with above:

26. "Near Fienes, France, on the eve of the 26th of August, 1918, Private 1st Class Amado Garcia, an Indian replacement, with two other men, crawled three hundred yards in front of our line, crossed the enemy wire and attacked several machine gun nests. The enemy crew of six men opened fire at a range of ten yards and resisted stubbornly, three being killed or mortally wounded and the others driven back. The machine gun was destroyed and the party returned safely under heavy fire of other enemy guns. Private First Class Garcia's conduct exemplified the greatest valor and courage."

27. "At Hill No. 188, near Clergues, France, on the evening of July 30th, 1918, Private Florantino Fiorino, 110th Infantry, volunteered to go forward alone to guide Company D, 110th Infantry, into position on the line. Private Fiorino accomplished his mission in the face of very heavy fire from enemy machine guns and one pounders, placing Company D, properly in position on the line and returned to his company. The conduct of Private Fiorino, under fire, on this occasion exemplified the greatest courage and total disregard for personal safety."

"On the morning of August 25th, 1918, while advancing on the Vesle River near Magneux, France, Company L, 110th Infantry, were losing heavily from enemy machine gun fire. Sergeant J. J. Dixon, 110th Infantry, volunteered to go forward alone and locate the machine gun nest, which he did, drawing heavy fire, thus enabling the other men to wipe out the nest and to advance without further loss to his company. The action of Private Fiorino showed the greatest courage, valor and utter disregard for personal safety, and his devotion to duty and fearlessness of danger were an inspiration to those about him."

28. "On the morning of July 29th, 1918, near Fresnes, France, Sergeant Harry B. Dixon, Company L, 110th Infantry (at that time a Corporal), while returning from guiding a ration party to the lines, located at the foot of Hill No. 188, saw a soldier whom he recognized as a member of the 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, in the roadway in a semi-conscious state. Upon going to his relief Sergeant Dixon discovered that the soldier was unable to proceed further, due to gas and exhaustion. Upon examining the soldier's papers he was ordered to take him and found that it was a very important and urgent message, asking for an immediate barrage to save a certain sector of our line, which at that time was suffering heavy losses from the enemy. This message was signed by the Commander of the 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, at that time occupying the front line."

Sergeant Dixon, realizing the importance of this message reaching its destination, immediately started for Regimental Headquarters, which at that time was at Courmont. In order to reach headquarters with the least possible delay, it was necessary for him to pass through a heavy barrage, which was being laid down by the enemy. He was successful in completing his mission and delivering the message to its proper destination in time for the enemy to return barrage laid down and save our line. In carrying out the mission which he assumed Sergeant Dixon acted with no thought of his own safety and showed the greatest personal courage and devotion to duty of any soldier in the 110th Infantry."

29. "Near Vilette, France, on the Vesle River, on the evening of August 29th, 1918, Sergeant John Black, Company G, 110th Infantry, commanded one of four patrols which were to attack and drive out the enemy from the railroad near Vilette, France, in the roadway at the mouth of the river. They were to hold the ground after driving out the enemy. As they advanced, the patrols were met with heavy machine gun and rifle fire. The other three patrols were forced to retreat. Sergeant Black, who was in the lead, reached the railroad, drove out the enemy and had his men dig in on the south bank of the railroad. He sent back word that he would hold the position until the following morning. The next morning he was ordered to retreat. Throughout the night of the 29th, and the following day, Sergeant Black and his men were repeatedly attacked with rifle and hand grenades by the enemy, but stubbornly held their position. The next morning, August 30th, 1918, Sergeant Black was ordered to retreat. He exposed himself with total disregard for his personal safety, so that he could direct the fire of his platoon upon a retreating body of the enemy. While in this exposed position he received a machine gun bullet through the body and died a few hours later."

30. "Near Courmont, France, on July 30th, 1918, Corporal William H. Temple, Company G, 110th Infantry, was an automatic rifle gunner in the second platoon, Company G, 110th Infantry, and a member of the force attacking the Bois de Grimpettes north of the Oureq River on the above date. During the advance Private Madrid, a member of the first platoon, was hit through the arm and was unable to walk. He was ordered to retreat. The Commander of the second platoon asked for volunteers to assist in carrying back Private Madrid, and Corporal Temple responded. He was ordered to take Private Madrid to another man, picked up Private Madrid and carried him through heavy machine gun and shell fire, a distance of three hundred yards, to a safe place. Private Madrid was unable to walk and was ordered to retreat while being carried back. Corporal Temple was not wounded during this action."

"During the action on the Vesle River in August, Corporal Temple was badly gassed and was sent to the hospital on August 16, 1918.

He was unable to rejoin his company until February 24, 1919. The courage and determination of Corporal Temple is nearly equal to all, and his action on that day is of the greatest value.

31. "On September 29th, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, Sergeant William Kokos, Company L, 110th Infantry, was in command of a detachment of eighteen men stationed in front and to the right of the town of Apremont. He had been ordered to stay there. In the evening after dark, while reconnoitering, he discovered that the line on both sides had dropped back to the town, leaving his detachment in a very exposed and dangerous position. He immediately decided to retire to a place of more protection. At the time the detachment fell back, the enemy launched a heavy counter-attack, but Sergeant Kokos skillfully led his men to a new position and then he ordered them to then distributed the detachment at points of advantage and opened fire on the attacking force, causing the enemy heavy losses. This act of gallantry assisted in repelling the counter-attack and the enemy and materially in preventing the enemy from recapturing the town of Apremont.

"In directing the detachment during this attack, by his good Sergeant Kokos was nearly surrounded by the enemy, but at one time he escaped and coolness he kept his men well in hand, being able to direct himself without the loss of any men of his detachment.

"The conduct of Sergeant Kokos all through this engagement showed him to possess great leadership, and the initiative he promptly and decisively in times of emergency. The courage, bravery and endurance displayed by him was of great inspiration to the men over whom he assumed command, keeping up their morale and having great effect on the success of his leader's plan.

"During the engagements at Pleinchamp Farm, October 5th, 1918, and Châtel Chery, October 7th, 1918, Sergeant Kokos was in command of Company L, 110th Infantry, all officers of the company being killed or wounded excepting the Company Commander, who was in charge of the battalion.

"Later, during this drive, all officers of the 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry, being either killed or wounded, excepting the commander of Company L, who was in command of the 3rd Battalion, he assumed command of the Battalion and held command until the Division was relieved by the 82nd Division.

32. "On the morning of September 5, 1918, while Company L, 110th Infantry, was in the position in an old trench system, 1,300 meters north of Baslieux, France, the company received losses from an enemy sniper on the right flank. Private Reuben Ax, deceased, was seriously wounded, falling 15 yards in rear of parados. Sergeant John M. Graham, Company L, 110th Infantry, who had already gained the trench position, seeing that Private Ax was in such a position as to be unable to help himself, immediately volunteered to take the place of a place of safety and going out to the aid of Private Ax, under continual fire from the sniper, carried him into the trenches where first aid was administered to him by them.

"This act of the Sergeant Graham was extremely hazardous, as the point where Private Ax fell was the reference point upon which the enemy sniper concentrated his fire. In doing this Sergeant Graham utterly disregarded his own personal safety, displaying the greatest courage and valor in his devotion to a fallen comrade."

33. "On the morning of July 31, 1918, at Hill No. 188, near Clerges, France, Private 1st Class Arnold Coleman, Company L, 110th Infantry, in company with another soldier, was attached to the Scout Section, 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry, and were detailed for duty in the rear by the battalion commander, upon hearing that his company, then in the front line, had been without food for three days, because of ration parties which had been sent back, being unable to get forward, located a ration dump, secured permission from the officer under whose command they were at that time to carry these rations, voluntarily over a plateau which was being hotly shelled and worked with machine gun fire by the enemy, and delivered same along the line to the men. Prior to receiving the food the men were very hungry and exhausted. Having received the ration, they were able to attack Grimpettes Woods and gained their objective. The assistance rendered through the fearlessness and utter disregard for personal safety on the part of Private Coleman had a material effect on the success of this attack and the very heavy losses sustained by the enemy in this action.

34. "On the afternoon of July 17th, 1918, the 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry, was stationed in the support lines west of Conde-en-Brie, France. Information from the front line not coming back, the Battalion Commander sent forward a patrol for the purpose of obtaining information from the French front lines.

"In going forward, the Sergeant in charge was seriously wounded and the patrol commander, being seriously wounded, was unable to direct Sergeant Harry P. Douglas, Company L, 110th Infantry, then a Bugler, assumed command of the patrol, reorganized it and assisted in carrying the wounded Sergeant to a place of safety. Then Sergeant Douglas decided that one man could not do the job. He obtained information and ascertained better that the entire patrol instructed the patrol to remain under cover and went forward alone under heavy shell fire. Obtaining the information desired, he returned to the position. During his work he was knocked down by the concussion of an exploding shell, but remained at the line of support, carrying the wounded Sergeant with them.

"The information obtained was of the utmost importance, and Sergeant Douglas was highly commended by the Battalion Commander for the completion of his mission. He was also commended for his initiative in handling the situation, assuming command, also for the courage and bravery which he had shown in obtaining the information under such heavy shell fire and under fire.

"In this act Sergeant Douglas utterly disregarded his own personal safety and showed the greatest courage and valor in his devotion to the mission which he had assumed and carried out."

35. "At Courmont, France, during the fighting on the Ourcq River, Sergeant Blake Lightner was Scout Sergeant of the 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry. During the fighting on the 29th, 30th and 31st of July, he voluntarily established a forward observation post and kept his Battalion Commander informed of the situation. During his work he was knocked down by the concussion of an exploding shell, but remained at his post.

"On September 6, 1918, on the heights between the Vesle and Aisne Rivers, Sergeant Lightner, led a daylight patrol against several machine gun nests which were giving our men trouble. The patrol had to cover its feet holes, as the machine gun fire was so heavy that it was impossible to advance. While on the way back, Sergeant Lightner spotted a short section of trench filled with enemy infantry. He so placed his patrol that they could enfilade the trench and proceed in precisely the same manner as they were occupying it. During this action, Sergeant Lightner coolly stood erect and picked off the enemy

"During the night of September 6th, 1918, Sergeant Lightner's action in the Argonne he was of valuable assistance in locating enemy positions and in sniping them. He was successful in putting into operation German machine guns against the enemy, and in assisting in repelling their counter-attacks. On the 3rd of October, 1918, he was ordered to take a patrol to the aid of a shell splitter wound, which he had never reported. He had to be ordered to retreat.

"Commissioned 2nd Lieutenant on November 3rd, 1918, for his efficient work. He returned to his organization on November 6th, and was assigned as Scout Officer, 2nd Battalion.

"On the morning of November 9th he volunteered to accompany a raiding party of 100 men in the Bois de Haurouville Line in the Bois des Cerfs. He assisted in the organization of this raid, and the shell fire in the Bois des Haurouville Bas, and accompanied them on the raid, which was successful in causing heavy casualties, but was successful. A strong counter-patrol of the enemy, which was the quick action of Lieutenant Lightner, who gathered together a few men and held the enemy off with shot guns."

36. "On the morning of September 5th, 1918, while Company L, 110th Infantry, was going into position in old trench system, 1,500 meters north of Baslieux, France, the company received losses from an enemy sniper on the right flank. Private Reuben Ax, deceased, was seriously wounded, falling about 15 yards in the rear of parados. Mechanic Edwin E. Buehler, Company L, 110th Infantry, who had already gained the trench position, seeing that Private Ax was in such a position as to be unable to help himself, immediately volunteered to take the place of another soldier, left a place of safety and going out to the aid of Private Ax, under continual fire from the sniper, carried him into the trenches where first aid was administered to him by them.

"This act of the part of Mechanic Buehler was extremely hazardous, as the point where Private Ax was wounded was the reference point upon which the enemy sniper concentrated his fire. In doing this Mechanic Buehler utterly disregarded his own personal safety and showed the greatest courage and valor in his devotion to a fallen comrade."

37. "On the morning of July 31st, 1918, at Hill No. 188, near Clerges, France, Corporal William L. Bowersox, Company L, 110th Infantry, in company with another soldier, who were at that time attached to the Scout Section, 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry, and were detailed for duty in the rear by the Battalion Commander, upon hearing that his company, then in the front line, had been without food for three days, because of ration parties which had been sent back, being unable to get forward, located a ration dump, secured permission from the officer under whose command they were at that time, to carry these rations, voluntarily over a plateau, which was being heavily shelled and worked by machine gun fire by the enemy, and delivered same along the line to the men. Prior to receiving this food the men were very hungry and exhausted, shortly after receiving the same, Company L, attacked Grimpettes Woods and gained their objective. The assistance rendered through the fearlessness and utter disregard for personal safety on the part of Corporal Bowersox had a material effect on the success of this attack and the very heavy losses sustained by the enemy in this action."

38. "Corporal George Oden (No. 1241102), Company H, 110th Infantry, was a member of the Scout Section, 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, and was detailed for duty in the rear by the Battalion Commander, on the 30th and 31st, 1918, his work was on the Bois de Grimpettes, July 29th, 1918, he was in the rear of the company, and was in charge of the Scout River, north of Baslieux, he commanded a patrol of ten men, whose mission was to locate enemy positions. Corporal Oden, in daylight, led a patrol to a position where they were to capture the trench system containing about 100 infantry positions. By the rifle fire of his patrol and an adjoining patrol he drove out the enemy, forcing them to retreat in disorder and inflicting many casualties. He withdrew his patrol, and Corporal Oden, accompanied by Scout Paul, went ahead of the line, and found the body of the man killed, but was unable to identify him. He was forced to give up the search by enemy patrols.

"At Monthlaineville, September 27th, he drove away the crews of two German machine guns of the light type by sniping. When the enemy counter-attacked, he brought forward the 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, and with the assistance of Sergeant Stump, Company G, 110th Infantry, put them in operation against the attacking forces. The fire from these guns completely stopped the enemy's advance.

"On November 2nd, he went out alone to reconnoiter the Bois des Cerfs. He managed to get beyond the daytime outposts of the enemy, and was forced to remain in hiding until dark. He managed to escape before daylight and brought back the information he had obtained. This information was of valuable assistance to the artillery in directing their fire.

"On November 9th, he was assigned as a member of the raiding party of 100 men, who were to attack the enemy line near St. Beuve, Bois des Cerfs, in a daylight attack. While the raiding party was forming on the edge of Bois de Haurouville Bas it was subjected to a heavy shelling of gas and high explosive shells. The men were heavily gassed and when the men put on their gas masks they were unable to keep the lenses of the masks clear. They became scattered and moved back to the trench. Corporal Oden, seeing that the men were in a bad way, took off his mask, and with a total disregard for personal safety, led the party out of the path of the fire. As a result of his action, he was severely wounded. The first aid station for treatment. He suffered severely from the effects of the gas, and was taken to the hospital. He lost his power of speech for some time. He was treated by the Battalion Surgeon."

39. "Near Courmont, France, on the Ourcq River, 1st Lieut. Joseph Ferguson was in command of Company H, 110th Infantry. On the 31st day of July, 1918, his battalion was ordered to attack the heights north of the town. Company H was in the front line. The attacking force reached the woods covered by the enemy. The enemy had not yet advanced against the machine gun fire to which they were exposed. The order to retire was given but Lieut. Ferguson's company was the last to retreat. He retired to a sandbag trench north of the river and reformed. As Lieut. Ferguson was organizing his men, someone called his attention to some wounded men who were crawling back. He immediately walked out into the path of machine gun fire, picked up Private John W. Harty, who was badly wounded, and carried him back to the sunken road. He once more walked out and exposed himself and encouraged the men crawling back. During this action Lieut. Ferguson was severely wounded by snipers' bullets, and his clothing torn, but he was not harmed."

"On the Vesle River, during August and September, 1918, he was in command of the same company, and led his company valiantly, with a total disregard for his personal safety. In the Argonne, he was once more in command of his company. After the disbandment of the Company Commander, Lieut. Ferguson was one of the first to enter the town of Varennes. During the advance on Montblainville, on the 27th day of September, he was severely wounded and died several days later in the hospital."

40. "The faithful and efficient service of the Personnel Section, 110th Infantry, under the command of Captain James A. Griffin and Captain Edward W. Wood is highly commended. After the records of the regiment in connection with history of the regiment, and on November 11, 1918, Sergeant John M. Schneider (No. 1240500), (later Regimental Sergeant Major), and the records keeping the records and status of soldiers of the command, doing this under enemy fire and regardless of personal safety.

"Since the signing of the Armistice this section worked day and night towards compiling the great number of records and reports required, adjusting the status of the members of the regiment, and securing data in connection with history of the regiment."

42. "Sergeant Colvin A. Peterson (No. 1239432), Headquarters' Company, 110th Infantry, (then a Private of Company A, 110th Infantry), near Courville, France, in August, 1918, while acting as a runner between Regimental and Battalion P. C.'s, daily and nightly made a very tenuous terrain constantly shelled by the enemy and in full view of the German lines for at least 500 meters. Sergeant Peterson repeatedly volunteered for particularly hazardous and difficult trips and was of inestimable value to his regimental commander."

43. "The valorous conduct and efficient service of the One Pounder Platoon, Headquarters' Company, this regiment, under command of Lieut. George T. Rogers, Lieut. Meyer S. Jacobs and Lieut. Arthur J. Schwaiteiser, from July 15, 1918, to November 11, 1918, was constantly under enemy fire, the guns often accompanying the attacking forces of the first echelon. His men performed their duties fearlessly and efficiently and their work was of inestimable value."

During this period the following enlisted men served with the One Pounder Platoon:

45. "Near Villettes, France, August 18, 1918, Sergeant Harry Riser was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry, when he was needed by the 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry. Sergeant Riser was placed in charge of a detachment from Company H, 110th Infantry, and sent to reinforce Company M. The following morning the 3rd Battalion attacked the enemy position on the railroad near Villettes. While attacking an enemy machine gun nest Sergeant Riser was severely wounded, but with the help of Sergeant Conley he succeeded in putting the enemy machine gunners out of action."

"Near Confront, France, July 30, 1918, 1st Sergeant James M. Smith was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. In the attack on Hill No. 212 (Sergy), Sergeant Smith with great presence of mind directed the men under his command and was of great assistance to the Company Commander in keeping the men in position. When the Company retired from their position on the hill, Sergeant Smith was one of the last to leave and did not retire until every man under his command was in a position of safety."

"Near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918, Sergeant William E. Amos was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. In the attack on Hill No. 212 (Sergy), Sergeant Amos exhibited exceptional bravery and devotion to duty. While the attack was in progress Sergeant Amos with two volunteers was of great assistance in carrying wounded men to the dressing station, about one kilo south of the hill. At all times he was under a heavy machine gun fire from the enemy positions on the hill. By his presence and acts Sergeant Amos inspired the men under his command."

"Near Varennes, France, September 26, 1918. Corporal Paul Stainbrook was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. Nearing the town of Varennes the Company was held up by fire from enemy machine gunners. Corporal Stainbrook realizing that this obstacle must be removed advanced in front of the first wave with two other volunteers and with an automatic rifle silencing some of the machine gunners. He proved to be very valuable to the Company Commander."

46. "The valorous conduct and efficient service of the Medical Officers and the enlisted personnel of the Medical Detachment of this regiment from July 15, 1918, to November 11, 1918, almost constantly under enemy fire they performed their duties fearlessly and efficiently and the work they did was of inestimable value to the regiment. 47. "Near Apremont, France, on October 1st, 1918, during a heavy enemy counter-attack, Sergeant Leonard L. Fishback, by firing a machine gun Company 110th Infantry, observing an enemy trench mortar near a hedge row secured a rifle and in full view of the enemy knelt and fired at that point until the mortar was silenced, thereby saving many casualties in his company and the adjacent infantry. Sergeant Fishback showed great coolness and the qualities of leadership in bringing his section, composed almost entirely of green men into action in the midst of the enemy barrage preparatory to his counter-attack."

"Near Baslieux, France, on September 6th, 1918, Private Evans L. Barnhart (No. 1240082), Company D, 110th Infantry, remained with a wounded man while the rest of the battalion was forced to retire. Later Private Barnhart placed the wounded man on his shoulders and returned for assistance to bring him in. Private Frank W. Lowman (No. 1240214), Harry R. Larue (No. 1240167), Company D, 110th Infantry, and Private Wayland France (No. 1242089), Company B, 110th Infantry, volunteered for this, and all advanced about 500 yards to where the wounded man lay, they succeeded in carrying him safely to the trenches occupied by the company, which had fallen back about 700 yards at this time. During this time they were subjected to machine gun and artillery fire, crossed open ground for the entire distance."

48. "Private 1st Class Arnold O. Farquhar (No. 1239408), Company A, 110th Infantry (now a Sergeant), on September 29th, 1918, at Apremont, France, during a German counter-attack on the town, through heavy shell, rifle and machine gun fire, by his bravery and coolness succeeded in delivering important messages."

Private 1st Class Harrison E. Modin (No. 1239429), Company A, 110th Infantry, on September 15, 1918, at Baslieux, France, did, after having been gassed, volunteer to and did carry a message through a shell swept area."

"Corporal Thomas Jones (No. 1239570), Company A, 110th Infantry, Corporal Harry Davidson (No. 1239571), Company A, 110th Infantry, 1st Class John G. Belko (No. 1239471) and Private 1st Class John Curka (No. 1239397), all of Company A, 110th Infantry, on September 6, Baslieux, France, under heavy machine gun fire, succeeded in establishing an isolated automatic rifle position about 100 yards in advance of the front line and held it for three hours. Later upon the advance of the right flank rushed forward and captured 14 prisoners and several machine guns."

"Private Morris Lenardo (No. 2300137), Company A, 110th Infantry, on October 1st, 1918, at Apremont, France, during a counter-attack on this town by the Germans, captured 150 yards in front of the line of attack and captured eight prisoners."

49. "Corporal John Hodgson (No. 1239503), Company A, 110th Infantry, on September 28th, 1918, at Apremont, France, advanced alone under heavy enemy fire about 150 yards in front of the line and located several machine gun positions, which later resulted in their capture."

"Private 1st Class Samuel Daugherty (No. 1239444), Company A, 110th Infantry, on September 27th, 1918, at Montblainville, France, after having been shot through the leg by a rifle bullet, did volunteer to carry a message to the line and succeeded in delivering same, through an area swept by artillery and machine guns."

"Private 1st Class Charles Nedetzky (No. 1239537), Company A, 110th Infantry, on September 28th, 1918, near Apremont, France, finding his squad cut off from the company and two of his comrades being wounded by the heavy machine gun fire, perceived it was necessary to divert the fire to the enemy position. He was the only man in his squad. Private Nedetzky did, unhesitatingly, by crawling off to one side, and away from his men, permitting the men to gain a place of safety."

50. "Near Baslieux, France, on September 6th, 1918, Private George B. Messmore (No. 1240186), Company B, 110th Infantry, volunteered to return to first aid station to get morphine for administration to a number of wounded men that it was impossible to evacuate. Private Messmore located a first aid station of the neighboring regiment of the 77th Division where he obtained morphine, which was then returned, thereby doing much to relieve suffering of wounded and saving several lives. During the half hour necessary for the trip Private Messmore was unharmed by machine gun and artillery fire."

"Near Baslieux, France, on the 6th day of September, 1918, Private Thomas B. Taylor (No. 1240105), Company D, 110th Infantry, volunteered to help evacuate wounded men from trenches to first aid station, 110th Infantry. This necessitated a trip of about one kilometer, at least 500 yards of which being acrossed by machine gun as well as to artillery fire. After his first trip, Private Taylor succeeded in bringing the first stretchers to arrive on the line. Organized, brave, courageous and unflinching, which he did the day, getting fresh men to help him when the others became worn out."

"On November 7th, 1918, Sergeant Ira C. Field (No. 1239559), Company B, 110th Infantry, led a wire cutting party out to the enemy's wire line and under enemy artillery and machine gun fire, succeeded in laying a wire so that a raid could be made later. In doing so he showed the greatest coolness, courage and bravery."

On September 30th, 1918, near Apremont, France, Corporal Arthur A. Krichbaum (No. 4260616), Company B, 110th Infantry, after delivering a message from Battalion Headquarters to the line discovered a machine gun nest. Making a detour, he delivered the message and returned to the company with the machine gun nest intact, and, bringing them into Battalion Headquarters."

51. "Near Varennes, France, September 26th, 1918, Corporal Charles W. Evans was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. Company H was attacking the town but had been held up by enemy machine gunners. Private Corporal Evans, with a party of four volunteers, entered the town and succeeded in silencing several of the enemy machine gunners and capturing several prisoners. Corporal Evans was killed by an enemy sniper while placing his men in captured enemy positions."

"Near Villette, France, August 18th, 1918, Corporal Robert J. Murphy was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. The 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry being in need of men, Corporal Murphy volunteered to assist in an attack to be made on the enemy positions along the railroad. Accompanied by Company A, 110th Infantry, and Company H, 110th Infantry, attacked an enemy machine gun position and put it out of action, also capturing prisoners."

"Near Varennes, France, September 26th, 1918, Corporal Joseph McCarty was on duty with Company H, 110th Infantry. Company H was attacking the town, but had been held up by heavy machine gun fire and an enemy 77 m/m gun firing point blank. Corporal McCarty, with a party of four volunteers, advanced 100 yards in front of the first wave and by skillfully maneuvering his men, succeeded in putting the enemy machine gunners out of action and capturing the 77 m/m gun and several prisoners. He then returned to our line with prisoners and information, which proved to be very valuable to the Company Commander."

"In the Meuse-Argonne Offensive about October 7th, 1918, all the officers having been killed or wounded, Sergeant William G. Roth, (No. 1239554), Company B, 110th Infantry, 110th Infantry, and Corporal Charles Chery, during the entire time he showed the greatest coolness and courage, and at all times was a great inspiration to all the members of his command."

52. "On August 25th, 1918, Corporal Edward M. Walker (No. 1239623), Private 1st Class Herman J. Burger (No. 1239711), Private 1st Class Leo Calise (No. 1239713), and Private 1st Class Emidio Federico (No. 1239727), all of Company B, 110th Infantry, who had taken part in a raid against the enemy near Villette, France, while the battalion was lying in support."

In the advance on the Ourcq, Vesle and Aisne Rivers, Cook Joseph L. Bailey (No. 4079624), and Cook W. J. O'Connell (No. 4079625) of Company B, 110th Infantry, while under heavy shell fire from the enemy, cooked and carried meals to the troops and showed great coolness and courage in carrying an important message to the front line."

"About August 24th-28th, 1918, while the battalion was in reserve, Sergeant Philander E. White (No. 1239611), Company B, 110th Infantry, repeatedly volunteered for wiring and raiding parties. During the operations he showed the greatest coolness and courage, and his coolness and bravery was a constant inspiration to the men of the company."

50. "In the Meuse-Argonne Offensive Mess Sergeant Meredith L. Wells (No. 123961), Company C, 110th Infantry, and Private 1st Class John W. Rhodes (No. 1239687), all of Company B, 110th Infantry, cooked and carried meals while continually under shell fire and rain from enemy aeroplanes to the men on the line. Their bravery and courage shown by these men was an inspiration to the others and helped greatly in keeping up the morale of the troops."

"Near Châtel Chehery, France, on October 4th, 1918, Corporal Jacob Isenberg (No. 1239760), Company B, 110th Infantry, volunteered to take a scouting party to the Aisne River to find out if there were any bridges over which the troops could cross. He led the party down to the river under heavy enemy artillery fire, got the required information and returned. During the entire time he showed the greatest coolness and courage."

In the advance on the Aisne River, about September 7th, 1918, Sergeant William J. White (No. 1239615), Company B, 110th Infantry, volunteered for and took a daylight scouting party out to locate enemy machine gun nests. During the entire time they were in plain observation of the enemy and under fire of the machine guns. Sergeant White showed great coolness and bravery in entering the ducats. His conduct during the entire time was an inspiration to the men.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 2:

1. "Near Fismes, France, September 6th, 1918, when all the officers of the company had been killed or wounded, Sergeant Smith Fuller (No. 1240956), Company C, 110th Infantry, took command of Company D, 110th Infantry, and successfully held the line for two days and two nights with the small number of twenty-five men. During this period the company was subjected to the heaviest kind of artillery and machine gun fire. The men of the company which was in a precarious position, in disregard for personal safety and the judgment and leadership he displayed, were a great inspiration to the men in holding out until relieved by the French."

"On August 25, 1918, near Magneaux, France, Sergeant Michael Warren (No. 1238922), Headquarters' Company, 110th Infantry, (now Second Lieutenant, 110th Infantry), voluntarily led the Trench Mortar Battalion, 110th Infantry, and an infantry platoon to the front line and covered the withdrawal of a company which was in a precarious position along the railroad track. In performing this task it was necessary for Sergeant Warren to march his platoon over a distance of eight kilometers under severe shelling and against constant rifle and machine gun fire. In this act the conduct of Sergeant Warren exemplified the greatest courage and leadership."

"On July 29th, 1918, near Magneaux, France, Sergeant Harry E. Clarke (No. 1242766), Company G, 110th Infantry, during the temporary absence of the platoon commander, reorganized his platoon under heavy shell fire and took it into action. He also, with the assistance of another, carried a badly wounded man to a place of safety through heavy machine gun fire. On the following day when badly wounded and in great pain he retained his cheerfulness and whistled while being carried to the first aid station. The men of his platoon were greatly influenced by his courage and cheerfulness."

2. "Near Serzy, France, July 29th, 1918, when Company F, 110th Infantry, was about out of ammunition and unable to obtain more, Mechanic J. Clyde Beers (No. 1246539), a member of that company, voluntarily and without any orders from a superior officer, walked about over the hillsides amid an extremely heavy machine gun fire and gathered ammunition, which had been discarded by wounded men, brought it back and distributed it among the members of the Company. In doing so he showed the greatest coolness, courage and bravery."

"In the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from September 26th to October 3rd, 1918, Private Harry G. McFarland (No. 1239777), Company B, 110th Infantry, then acting as a runner for Headquarters', 1st Battalion, 110th Infantry, voluntarily went to the front line repeatedly and took part in heavy fighting. Private McFarland did excellent work killing a number of the enemy. His conduct at all times was a great inspiration to the members of the command."

"On August 22nd, 1918, Sergeant John L. Kores (No. 1240550), Private Jacob D. Stauffer (No. 1240665), and Private James A. Moose (No. 1240636), all of Company F, 110th Infantry, volunteered for and took part in a raid against the German lines near Magneaux, France, while the battalion was lying in support."

3. "Near Courmont, France, July 29, 1918, Corporal Harold P. Wickenham, Company A, 110th Infantry (now 1st Lieutenant, 110th Infantry), when ammunition was badly needed on the firing line went voluntarily from the Battalion P. C. to the P. C., 42nd Division, and from there to the P. C. of the First Army Corps, walking in all about 59 miles. On account of the devotion to duty Lieut. Wickenham, the much needed ammunition was secured and taken forward to the front line."

"On July 30th, 1918, First Sergeant Robert E. Perkins, Company D, 110th Infantry (now 2nd Lieutenant, U. S. Army), fearlessly and ably led a platoon of that Company in the successful attack on the Bois de Grimpeilles. Lieutenant Perkins later in the advance north of the Vesle River was severely wounded while fearlessly leading Company D in a difficult and dangerous liaison mission on the left of the Regimental Sector. The courage and leadership of Lieut. Perkins was marked and his conduct was an inspiration to the men of his company."

"On July 15, 1918, near Courthierry, France, Bagler Walter B. Jones, Company C, 110th Infantry, in the absence of his Commanding Officer who was cut off by enemy barrage, took charge of a platoon and the Company Headquarters' Section and fought his way out through the German lines although repeatedly surrounded. Bagler Jones administered first aid to Sergeant Small, Company C, under heavy artillery fire and personally killed several of the enemy. His fearlessness and leadership greatly increased the morale of the men about him."

GENERAL ORDERS No. 3:

1. "Near Apremont, France, and throughout the entire participation of this regiment in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, 1st Lieut. Meyer S. Jacobs, Headquarters' Company, 110th Infantry, then commanding the One Pounder Platoon, 110th Infantry, fearlessly and effectively directed the placing and firing of the guns of his platoon, also exposing himself to heavy enemy fire in order to place his guns in an advantageous position. These guns at this time put out a German "77" and a great number of enemy machine guns and assisted greatly in breaking up several enemy counterattacks."

By Order of COLONEL THOMPSON:

WILLIAM E. PIERCE,
Captain and Adjutant, 110th Infantry.

NOTE.—During the Argonne-Meuse Offensive, the Regiment became greatly reduced in officers and men. For tactical purposes at times battalions were consolidated. Major Thompson, Captain Woodend and Durkin succeeded in second in command, and at times had tactical control of the Regiment.

The same was true of battalions. Lieut. Culpepper had control of the First Lieut. Kennedy of the Second, and Lieut. Waite of the Third. During battle conditions of the nature of this, the Regiment was frequently aimed, but no official note of the same was made. This note applies with equal force to the Second and Third Battalions.

Exact—Meaning that all missing men have been accounted for and some of the wounded in hospital. There are still men marked wounded who went to hospital and no later record found.

Individual Records

The following individual records of officers and enlisted men are made up from a card index kept by the Statistical Section of the Regiment during its tour of duty in France. Each morning the various organizations of the regiment sent their reports to the Statistical Section, which in turn, entered the data on each man's card and reported the same to the Division Statistical Section. Under G.O. No. 111, when a man was away from the regiment for 10 days, he was dropped from the rolls and taken up by the hospital or unit to which he happened to be attached. Therefore the records of many men appear on the cards as wounded on a particular day and ten days later their names were dropped from the rolls. In order to finish out the records your committee has carefully gone over the cards. Several members of each company and locality where men are located have been taken care of from that company or locality and checked them against all available data.

The records of Field Hospitals and also the Adjutant General's Office at Washington and Harrisburg have been carefully examined and their statements added to the cards.

The records are printed as follows: First the soldier's name, then his serial number in brackets, followed by his rank and organization and then all information possible regarding his change of status. Officers do not have numbers. Where the man did not have a number or the number is unknown, it appears "No No."

The two numbers in brackets near the end of many of the men's record, i. e. (124-26) indicates that this man's picture appears on page 124, picture number 26, in the Regimental Roster, which was made at Camp Hancock, Georgia, before going overseas.

M. D.	1238701 to 1238760 incl.
Sup. Co.	1238761 to 1238905 incl.
Hq. Co.	1238906 to 1239184 incl.
M. G. Co.	1239185 to 1239337 incl.
A.	1239338 to 1239537 incl.
B.	1239538 to 1239824 incl.
C.	1239825 to 1240045 incl.
D.	1240046 to 1240268 incl.
E.	1240269 to 1240489 incl.
F.	1240490 to 1240696 incl.
G.	1240697 to 1240908 incl.
H.	1240909 to 1241136 incl.
I.	1241137 to 1241357 incl.
K.	1241358 to 1241577 incl.
L.	1241578 to 1241803 incl.
M.	1241804 to 1242028 incl.

From the Adjutant General's Report of Pennsylvania, it has been possible to give the previous National Guard record of most of the officers. All officers noted in 1st Cavalry, 3rd Infantry, and 10th Infantry N.G.P. were drafted into the U. S. N. G. on August 5th, 1917, with their respective rank and regiments and assigned to the 110th Infantry with the same rank and assignment at its organization, except where otherwise noted.

All Second Lieutenants assigned April 19th, 1918, were enlisted men in the N.G.P. Commissioned at the Hancock, O. T. C.

All men marked discharged May 23, 1919, came home with the Regiment and were mustered out at Camp Dix, N. J. on or near that date.

There are quite a number of men assigned one day (notably October 12, 1918) and A. W. O. L. a day or two following. A. W. O. L. in the face of the enemy is a serious charge, yet most if not all of these men found their original organization located near them at this time. A good man wants and is wanted in his old outfit. As we welcomed our own men back and asked no questions, we understand where the others went. In fact, in many cases we find that men were reported (on duty with --- Inf.) and nothing more was ever done about it.

In the report of casualties suffered by the Regiment it will be seen that there are two lists headed "OFFICIAL." They were compiled on May 6th, 1919, and were sent to G. H. Q. to be incorporated in the historical records of the A. E. F. They are official in the sense that they were prepared before the Regiment was mustered out of service. The records headed "EXACT" were compiled subsequent to the muster out of service and are the result of later information. The lists also carry the distinction of action casualties and company casualties. Action casualties are those suffered by the Regiment in each engagement while company casualties were those suffered by companies in all engagements.

As a help to the reader we suggest that a connection exists between the Individual Records of Officers and Enlisted Men and the Abbreviated War Diary which ought not to be overlooked. In seeking for information about any officer or man it is easy to first look up his record in the Individual Records and if he was sick, wounded or killed on a certain date this fact is entered; then, by turning to the Abbreviated War Diary for the report of that particular day it will be easy to ascertain the location of the Regiment at that time on that day.

The list of officers is also printed not for the purpose of glorifying those who held the distinction of rank, but in intending as a convenience for those seeking information. If relatives or friends of any member in a unit desire information, a reference to the list of officers of that unit will supply the names. The list of enlisted men is given by the address of the officers who in many cases have the most reliable personal knowledge of the circumstances.

"The following statement concerning the death of Lt. Bert Guy was made to me on the 30th day of December, 1918, by Captain M. C. Cooper, 20th Aero Squadron, U.S.A. I was a prisoner of war in Germany and taken to the 10th U.S. Reserve Depot at Passchov Oct. 12, 1918. I was in the British Army. R. Whitefield Shanks, was also a prisoner and told me that he had buried the day before a Lieut. Bert Guy of the American Army. He died as a result of an operation on the head and was given a full military funeral. Dr. Beuthen Altman was the doctor in charge of Lieut. Guy and has his watch about 1000 francs, identification disk and other personal belongings. He died about the 10th of October, 1918." The home address he had in Conde Woods near Conde on Eric, I was with Lt. Frank G. Guy, W. Whitefield Shanks is 91 Konicia Drive, Dennetown, Glasgow, Scotland. The home address of Captain M. C. Cooper is 326 Market Street, Jacksonville, Fla." Statement given by Pvt. Frank G. Anderson, Co. B, 110th Inf. "I was a prisoner of war in Germany in Conde Woods near Conde on Eric, I was with Lt. Guy from about 8 A.M. We were with the 1st Platoon in the front line and tried to get back to the company P.C. We drew fire and were wounded. I was taken to the front. A German officer leaning over called "Kamerad". Lt. Guy told him to put up his hands. He lowered them instead and fired. Lt. Guy being wounded in the eye. We moved back again and found that we were cut off so we circled to the left. Further back we found German soldiers at the edge of the woods. We went back into the woods again and were captured later. As we were taken into Saunvigny, I was separated from Lt. Guy and never saw him again. Statement taken from Philadelphia Bulletin, Apr. 7, 1919. "In a corner of the cemetery in the shadow of tall pines on the outskirts of Beuthen, Silesia, is a grave. It is the grave of an American—of Lt. Bert Guy, of the 10th U.S. Infantry. What German officer leaning over called "Kamerad" American he hastened to tell me what he could of the only American Officer brought to that section of Germany. He only knew that sometime last year Lieut. Guy was brought to the hospital suffering from a wound in the head. He said the lieutenant only lingered a few days. His identity card showed he belonged to Company B, of the 110th Regiment, the Old Tenth Regiment, N.G.P. His belongings were contained in a pocketbook. They consisted of a receipt for shoes from Seidman & K.P. a watch which he purchased in Y. Laufen for $10.00 on the First National Bank of Beaver, Pa. a key to a lock for something in excess of 500 francs ($100); 1,200 francs ($244) in French money and $22 in American money. From the lodge receipt it was apparent Lieut. Guy's home was in New Brighton, Pa. It seems likely he had tucked away in his wallet as a souvenir the flattened and misshapen bullet which wounded him. All the articles mentioned are being sent to the American Red Cross in Berlin, where they are forwarded to America. It will be a comfort to Lieut. Guy's family to know he received a reverent Christian burial and his grave is well cared for." (36-1) Mrs. Bert Guy, 706 4th Street, New Brighton, Pa.

Wolfe, 55th Inf. "Statement given by Capt. Roy R. Rothrock, Co. G, 110th Inf. "Lt. Massey was killed on July 30, 1918, during an attack on the heights north of the Bourg River. He was hit in the head by a sniper's bullet and killed instantly." Taken from Official History Company G, 110th Inf. "2nd Lt. Thomas Massey, Jr. had served but a short time with our company, but we had learned to appreciate his ability as a leader. He was killed July 30, 1918, south of Georges, in the act of sending to the rear sketches which he had made of machine-gun positions. This work required a cool head and iron nerves, which Lieut. Massey demonstrated that he had. His name was not on the list of killed. This happened just beyond the town of Varennes on the hill. He was sent back to the first aid station but died on the way back." (103-1) John Meighen, father, Wind Ridge, Pa.

Map Forest D'Argonne - Scale 1:20,000 - Co-ord 00.2 - 77.9, by Chaplain E. Tetreau, 109th Inf. Statement given by Sgt. Charles W. Pace, Co. G, 110th Inf. On the 11th of October, 1918, I found the body of Lt. OrNSTEIN in a wine cellar in the town of Apremont, France, only his head was exposed as there had been a direct hit on the cellar. He had been dead for three or four days. I secured a digging party and dug his body out. It was oriented in an orchard north of Apremont, France. A Chaplain of the 109th Infantry officiated and took the required records." Taken from Official History, Company G, 110th Infantry, Sept. 23, '18; (69-23) 1166 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pa. OrNSTEIN was detached from our company and sent forward with another organization. Shortly afterwards we heard with great sorrow that he had been killed in action. While with our company he served with great courage and fearlessness. His example was an inspiration to us and we felt the loss severely."

1. From the best evidence obtainable, I believe that Second Lieut. Nelson W. Perine, was killed south of Clergen, Dept. Aisne, July 30, 1918. Perine was led to the rear by two members of the Headquarters Co., 110th Infantry a shell struck through killing Lt. Perine and Pvt. Young and seriously wounding Mech. Co. Farland. Pvt. Young was buried by a detail from Headquarters Co., but I could not locate the burial. The body of Lt. Perine was actually dead or buried until a copy of the following sent to me: "N. D. Perine, 521 South 48th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Commanding Officer, Bass Hospital vice one reports Second Lieut. Nelson W. Perine, Hq. Co., 110th Inf., missing in action July 30th. No further report until Graves Registration Service reported him as buried in Cemetery No. 564, Courmont, Department Aisne. Every effort being made to obtain full particulars. (Signed) Pershing."
2. This telegram, I believe, is conclusive that Lt. Perine is dead and he should be so reported. (Signed) A. O. King, Major, 110th Inf.

"I was severely wounded through 29th Div. dressing station October 1st, 1918, severely wounded and in most critical condition." Taken from Official History Company G, 110th Inf., "At Apremont, France, October 1st, 1918, Lieut. Charles Rowan detached and sent forward in command of another organization. On the afternoon following the news of Lieut. Oransten's death, we saw Lieut. Rowan being carried to the rear severely wounded." His commanding officer such a nature that he died within a few hours. "We could not express our loss of Lieut. Rowan. His death ended continuous service with this Company for a period of eight years. He gave us the best of his knowledge and ability in the days of our training and in battles he set us an example of fearlessness, courage, devotion to duty and inexhaustible energy. He cheered when we were down-hearted and led us forward to battles whether cheerful or otherwise. We had always in his heart the thoughts of the men under his command, always solicitors for their comfort and general welfare. We mourn the loss of a friend who was an officer and a gentleman in every respect." - COOK, PATRICK J. (1240084) PFC. Co. D; Killed (AB) Aug. 1, '18; Statement given by Sgt. Charles F. Moore, Co. D, 110th Inf. "A few minutes after midnight on the night of July 31, 1918, an aeroplane dropped a bomb hitting near Company D, in the woods near Jaugonne, France. Going back into the woods where the wounded and dead were lying, the rest of the company began to get the wounded out. Some were killed instantly and were left lying in the same position until daylight came. At daybreak, I went out a distance of fifty or sixty yards and saw Pte. Patrick J. Cook, lying there. It seemed that death was caused by concussion as he had only a small mark on the head where a slight trickle of blood had run down his face. He was buried the next day about two hundred yards from where he met his doom by the hands of Chaplain Chas. Schall (54-13) Thomas Cook, father, New Salem, Pa.

Engle, two other men and myself were on outpost when the German Drive started. Engle mistook some Germans for Frenchmen and went out to talk to them. Before that, I wanted to shoot, but he said "Don't shoot, they are French." Engle said something to them which I could not hear, discovered his mistake and shot down one of the Germans. They fired and he groaned and fell. He didn't struggle. We freed and the Germans ran. I crawled out to Engle with my rifle and listened to his heart and found no signs of life. We fell back and the Germans took the ground. I know nothing of his burial." (37-22) Mrs. Alice Engle, mother, Box 126, Manassas, Pa.

"On July 15, 1918, in Conde Woods after we were completely surrounded by Germans, we were fighting our way out. Going back, I met a French Lieutenant who immediately ordered us (Pvt. William Sedgwick and myself) into a small trench with three French rifle grenadiers. Shortly afterwards Cpl. Gartside and another soldier of Company B, fell in with us, both were badly gassed and exhausted. Within a half an hour a German sniper, who was firing at us from the rear, had wounded Cpl. Gartside in the head and killed the three Frenchmen who were with us. The four of us decided to try to find the sniper or sniper who were firing at us. We finally hit two of them and also an officer. Before very long the Germans, finding that we could not be hit, sent over liquid fire, which immediately set fire to the already dead Frenchmen, so we decided to make a break for it. We were firing in all different directions, this being the last I saw of Cpl. Gartside." Statement given by Pvt. Leon Mandel, Co. B, 110th Inf. "I saw Cpl. Gartside in the Hospital at Vichy. Pvt. W. Wolf, 55th Inf. Brig., Gravo No. 2; Statement given by Pvt. Ferdinand Thull, Co. B, 110th Inf. "July 15, 1918, in Conde Woods we were falling back and found a man lying wounded. I try sent Lindsay and another man, who was later killed, and myself back for a litter. We ran into a machine-gun and the other man and myself fell into a shell hole and Lindsay behind a tree. I tried to get into the woods but was captured. I found Lindsay later, when I came back with a burying detail. He was in a little dug-out about 50 feet from the tree with his hands folded on his chest and covered with a blanket, part of his right foot had been shot away. He appeared to have died from wounds. He was buried near that place." (35-32) Mrs. Margaret M. Lindsay, mother, 1900 Third Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

"He was detached from the Second Battalion to the Third Battalion, 110th Inf. to help Company "M" make an attack. After taking their objective at about 2 o'clock Captain McClellan and Company "H" captured McClellan on account of having a bad cough, to go up on the road where we were stationed. We yelled at him and he had started to crawl toward us. Our attention was then taken by a machine-gun which had opened fire on us. Calling to him the second time we did not receive an answer. He was close enough so that we could see him. He was dead, evidently he had been killed instantly. He was buried near a cave in Villetre (86-27) George McClellan, father, 720 Beech Street, Washington, Pa.

Wolfe, 524 Brig.; Statement given by Cpl. Howard Jewell, Co. B, 110th Inf. "July 15, 1918, about noon in the Conde Woods we were falling back, the squad deployed on either side of the road. McFarland was along the road from front. We drew machine-gun fire from the front that is the last I saw of him alive. A few days later I came back with a burying detail and found him about 50 yards from the road. He had crawled up on a limb of a tree which had fallen. He had his gas mask on and his rifle was lying by his side. He seemed to be lying there in an easy sleeping position. He was buried near that place." M. near Maguacres, France, I was on the outskirts of the town, he was in a yard with the rest of his squad. A rifle grenade or trench mortar shell struck in the yard. It wounded one man whom I led back to the first aid station. When I came back they had discovered Mastropieri and had carried him back to the Company P. C. in the town. He had asked the Sergeant to send his money home, if he was killed. We looked for it but found none. He appeared to be dead. His hands were cold, but his breast was warm. We were not sure he was dead, so we carried him to the first aid station, where he was pronounced dead. There was a record of his grave taken at that place." M. in Conde Woods, Mattioli came into Company Headquarters wounded in the shoulder and leg. His wounds were dressed and he started back to the first aid station. We never saw him again. Pvt. Frank Monzo, a prisoner just returned from Germany told me that after he had been captured he saw Mattioli about 200 yards in the rear of Company Headquarters. This was about 9:00 P. M. the same day. He spoke to him but received no answer. Monzo said that he was sure he was dead, but he might have fainted. No one knows where he was buried if he did die." Wilson were sent out on a patrol to get contact with the enemy. They were across the Vesle River near the town of Villette, and were both shot and lying within 3 feet of each other on the right bank of the patrols which were advancing up the hill. The patrol halted on a road at the top of the hill at the same place the two men were shot. The patrol laid there all day and neither Mauk nor Wilson moved or answered. I called to them a number of times and then crawled up to them. They were both dead. I could not turn them over to see where they were hit on the side of the enemy fire. - SASSONE, JOSEPH M. (377377) Pvt. Co. B; Assgd. Sept. 15, '18; Missing Oct. 8, '18; Statement given by Pvt. John Porco, Co. B.

- 110th Inf. "About 2:00 P. M. September 28 or 29, 1918, near Montblainville, France, in the Argonne, Sassonne, and I were standing behind a big tree shooting at Germans running across the road into the woods. Seeing many men killed and wounded I said, 'We better go back.' We are as safe here as any other place." A German one-pounder hit our tree four times. Then Sassonne was hit along side the head with a one-pounder and killed instantly. I was told by Pvt. John B. Reilo of Company B that he was hurled on the spot, also. I saw a detail digging a grave at the foot of the above tree apparently for Sassonne, who was lying nearby."

Grave No. 5, by Chaplain Joseph L. N. Wolfe, 55th Inf. Brig.; Statement given by Cpl. Howard Jewell, Co. B, 110th Inf. "On July 15, 1918, in Conde Woods, we were forced to deploy along the road. Speece had been helping Lt. Guy to get back. Lt. Guy had been wounded early in the morning. A German machine-gun opened up on us and he left the Lieutenant on one side of the road and came over on our side to help him, he was lying the fourth man from me, and was firing the Lieutenant's rifle. I saw the Lieutenant was still alive. A few days later I returned with a burying detail and found Speece dead where I had seen him last. He was lying on his stomach and seemed to have died without struggling. We buried him near the spot where he was killed." (43-12) Mrs. Mary M. Speece, wife, 733 Tenth Ave., New Brighton, Pa.

"July 15, 1918, in Conde Woods, I went to Stewart's squad and he asked him to hand me his rifle. He was wounded in the chest. I told him to go to the dressing station, but he refused. He offered me his money, saying that they were good yesterday, but not today as he was going to be done for today. He was laughing when he said this. The platoon was ordered back on our way we ran into machine-gun fire. We had to go through it and he was hit again. I handed him again and still insisted that he go on back but he refused again, saying that he was going to stick it out and go back together or not at all. He was too weak then to handle his rifle and started to lay it down when he was hit with five machine-gun bullets, he put his hands to his chest and said, "I'm done for." He then called to Cpl. Ford before he could say any thing more. He was buried by a detail from the company later." Buried by Chaplain Charles Schall, Sr. Chaplain, 28th Div. on Sunday, July 21, '18, Conde Woods. Wolfe, 56th Inf. Brig. Grave No. 5; Statement given by Cpl. Howard Jewell, Co. B, 110th Inf., "July 15, 1918, about 11:00 A. M. in Conde Woods we were falling back and resisting a German attack. Thomas came back from a platoon in the front line which had been knocked down by a high explosive shell before he reached us and was still nervous but cheerful. He was placed on the flank of our platoon to prevent the enemy from surrounding us. A German sneaked up on him and I saw Thomas shoot the German with his pistol. That is the last I saw of him alive. A few days later he was found dead near here. He appeared to have been hit with a grenade. I helped bury him near where he was killed." Mrs. Ollie Thomas, mother, Pittsfield, Ill.

- WILSON, BOYD E. (1241134) PFC. Co. H; Killed Sept. 8, '18; Statement given by Pvt. Harry Deal, Co. H, 110th Inf. "On September 8, 1918, Pvt. Wilson and I went out on a patrol to get contact with the enemy. They were across the Vesle River near the town of Vilette. They were both shot and laid within three feet of each other on the right flank of the patrols that were advancing up the hill at the same time. The patrol halted on the top of the hill on a road at the same place these two men were lying. We laid there all day and neither Wilson or Mauk had moved or answered during that time. They were within fifteen feet of me and I called to them a number of times and finally crawled up to them and found that they were both dead. I could not turn them over to see where they were hit on account of the enemy fire." (92-6) John C. Wilson, father, P. O. Box No. 237, Meadowland, Pa.
